Today

Hewks, Air Champion. Better Than Gold. Germany Does Something. Attacking Confidence.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

WHO IS THE GREATEST flier in America today? Capt. Frank Hawks answered the question yesterday, flying from Detroit to New York, 640 miles, in three hours.

Anybody with imagination stronger than that of a deep sea fish can realize that 640 miles in three hours, as an exceptional feat today, means that everybody will fly across the continent and the Atlantic Ocean in six hours, before the world is 50 years older.

[illegible] HAWKS not only [illegible]s place as the first flier [illegible]rica, but he renders val[illegible] service by arousing in [illegible] fliers a desire to equal [illegible]cel him.

Col. Lindbergh will not let Capt. Hawks keep the record if he can take it from him.

Whether he succeeds or not, Lindbergh will always have the public's affection. It will not forget old favorites.

DISCOVERY OF a gold mine containing two or three billions of dollars in gold would be welcome news, financing the world more strongly on a gold basis.

Discovery of a mine containing millions of tons of pure copper would be of great value to industry, although it might upset stock prices.

But no mineral discovery could be as welcome or as important as the discovery, announced yesterday, of huge radium deposits at Wilberforce, Ont.

These deposits are said to be greater than those owned by Belgium in the Congo, hitherto greatest in the world.

THE NAME WILBERFORCE connected with this discovery is interesting, since Wilberforce did more than any other to abolish bodily slavery.

JACK DONAHUE, DANCER, DEAD

By DAVID P. SENTNER,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Jack Donahue, one of Broadway's "regular fellows," died today.

He died as every real actor would like to die—at the top of his line, and with the gang saying nice things about him and meaning it.

They've been showing gobs of movies about song-and-dance men who were troupers through thick and thin. Donahue's career to the end was better than any movie plot.

Today he died of heart failure aggravated by kidney trouble. If he had left his show a bit sooner, when he started to break, he might have recovered.

His family and friends said there was no doubt his death was caused by the strain of dancing, stage fun-making and show writing.

But Donahue was a trouper and stuck to "Sons O' Guns," playing

SERIES TICKET SCALPERS HIT

By JAMES J. LONG,
Staff Correspondent.

SHIBE PARK, PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—Although a capacity crowd of 33,000 witnessed the first game of the World Series, between the Athletics and Cardinals, here this afternoon, ticket scalpers were unable to reap a harvest.

Although thousands were turned away at the gates, the enthusiastic fans were not willing to pay "fat" prices for the coveted pasteboards, and speculators were compelled to cut their original prices in half.

Sets of three box seats were sold for $24 and the sum asked for a set of three grandstand seats was reduced to $20.50.

Across the street from the park, directly back of the center field scoreboard, nearly 2,000 people witnessed the proceedings from roof grandstands built on tenements. Each of the 17 roof stands held about 100 persons. At the windows of these homes and out on the balconies others were grouped. All had a fine view.

The owners of each of these buildings were reaping a financial harvest, for each seat cost $5 and

ATHLETICS BEAT CARDINALS IN OPENING BATTLE OF WORLD SERIES

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

SHIBE PARK, PHILADELPHIA Oct. 1.—The Philadelphia Athletics, champions of the American League, defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, champions of the National League, here this afternoon in the opening game of the 1930 World Series.

The score was 5 to 2.

Among the notables who attended were President Hoover and several members of his cabinet, including Secretary of Labor James J. Davis. James Francis Burke, of Pittsburgh, was another interested spectator.

Ray Blades was in rightfield for the Cardinals on account of the lefthanded pitching offered by the American Leaguers.

The Athletics forged to the front in the second inning when they scored a run on Foxx's triple to right and Miller's sacrifice fly to Blades. Blades' failure to field Foxx's drive enabled the first sacker to get three bases on the hit.

The Cardinals overtook the Athletics in the first of the third inning when they scored two runs.

Successive singles by Mancuso, Gelbert and Grimes filled the bases. Two sacrifice flies by Douthit and Adams scored Mancuso and Gelbert.

Simmons enabled the Athletics to tie the score at two-all in the fourth inning when he drove the ball over the rightfield fence for the first home run of the series. Two were out at the time and the bases were empty.

The Athletic broke the 2-2 deadlock in the sixth inning when Bishop drew a walk and scored on Dykes' two-bagger to left center. The drive fell between Hafey and Douthit.

The American League champions scored their fourth run in the seventh, when Mule Haas tripled and scored as Grimes threw out Boley on the squeeze play.

Play-by-Play Description Of World Series Game

SHIBE PARK, PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—The play-by-play story of the opening game of the world series here this afternoon follows:

For the present, however, it was generally conceded that the Butler port is bett[illegible] equipped for operations.

The Transcontinental Air Tran port, subsidiary of the Pennsy vania Railroad, was given landin privileges at the county airport by the County Commissioners last week at the rate of $1 a year.

PITTSBURGH BID LOW

Surprise was expressed by re resentatives of the Pittsbur group, which failed to get the co tract despite their bid far bel that of the T. A. T. and West Air Express. No formal sta ment was forthcoming, but th were intimations that a fi might be made. Previously United Avigation Company gro had indicated legal steps would taken to prevent award of contract to the high bidders.

NIGHT FLYING CLAUSE

The night flying clause which the Pittsburghers could not meet is illegal, they contend. Their bid, if accepted, would have saved the government $5,000,000, they assert.

Extensive preparations had been made by the local group in event they would be granted the contract. They planned to buy fleet of Bellanca airbuses, a twi motored ship, capable of carryi 12 passengers and having amp storage space for mail and ba gage. They say this plane can operated much cheaper than t

HIGHEST BIDDER WINS

The contract was awarded to the T. A. T.-Western Air Express combine, the highest bidder, on a bid of 97½ per cent of maximum, as against a bid of 64 per cent of maximum submitted by the United Avigation Corporation, a consolidating of Pittsburgh Airways, Inc., and St. Louis interests.

Assistant Postmaster General Glover gave as the reason for awarding the contract to the higher bidder that the Avigation concern "did not meet the department regulation set forth in the advertisement, and did not qualify under the Watres act," according to Associated Press dispatches from Washington.

Glover also disclosed that the Avigation company did not submit a Commerce Department certificate with its bid. This certificate is awarded to lines authorized to carry passengers, mail and express after equipment and personnel have been found to meet safety requirements.

HINTS LEGAL FIGHT

James M. Condon, president of Pittsburgh Airways, admitted that his concern did not submit such a certificate, but he declared also that neither did any of the other bidders. Mr. Condon intimated that his concern would oppose the award of the contract through court action.

"BAERING" DOWN ON THE NEWS WITH ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Moscow dumped that wheat on us because the Cincinnati Reds didn't get into the world series.

Philadelphia is the cynosure of the eyes of the world. Eight of which we hope belong to the umpires.

It's World Series day in Philly. But only moving day in the rest of the works.

Ticket speculators are slapping on their usual tariff reprisals.

Baseball, elephant hunting and Arctic exploring have been finally recognized as outdoor sports by the Miniature Golf Association.

New York City with three major league baseball teams is trying to switch the subject to backgammon.

It isn't old home plate week in Chicago either.

GIRL, 14, KILLS HER FATHER

CHARLESTOWN, Miss., Oct. 1—(INS.)—Juanita Sullivan, 14, was in jail here today after admitting she shot and killed her father, T. C. Sullivan, because he had mistreated her mother.

Juanita told police that after many hours of thought and prayer over the matter that she came to the conclusion she should slay her father.

Tearfully, she said:

"I made up my mind that the only way out of the trouble was to kill him. I got daddy's shotgun and went to the front of the house and waited with the muzzle sticking out of the window.

"When he came in the front yard, I pulled the trigger."

When they called the doctor in last week in Cincinnati, he was making more than a dollar a minute for his ability.

FIRST ROLE FAILURE

His first stage part was in the role of a German comedian. His accent was so terrible that he was fired. Broadway first saw him in 1919 in "Angel Face." Later shows were "Ziegfeld Follies of 1920," "Two Little Girls in Blue," "Molly Darling," "Be Yourself" and his greatest show, "Sunny," in which he and Marilyn Miller co-starred.

Donahue had been called, with George M. Cohan, the last of the old-time hoofers of the stage. He never took a dancing lesson, he often related, but learned to dance merely by practicing and listening with his own ear for the rhythm of his step.

NATURAL WIT

Effortlessly, despite his broad-shouldered bulk, he danced and pattered with his agile feet almost by the half hour in "Sons O' Guns," keeping up a steady fire of soliloquy or badinage as he hoofed.

Jack Donahue

He was one of the few comedians who are themselves the fountains of the humor they dispense. A natural wit, Donahue not only invented most of his own comic dialogue, but wrote in the same humorous vein for the magazines, where he had begun before his death to win a name with his memoirs and with his "Letters of a Hoofer to His Ma."

He also operated a dancing school just off Broadway and had entered, only a few months ago, the field of theatrical production as co-sponsor of a play, "Lost Sheep," which had a fairly successful Broadway run and is now playing in Chicago.

NEVER FORGOT FRIENDS

Donahue never went "actor" even when he made the big lights. He was an "easy touch" along the "street of busted men," never forgot a friend and was untiring in contributing his talents gratis to benefit performances.

Jack was cheerful right up to the sudden turn today which sent him into unconsciousness. His wife and mother were at his bedside when he died.

He was the father of three children—Alma, Barbara and Constance. He called them his "ABC's."

ERIE AIR CRASH VICTIM FOUND IN HARBOR

Friend Identifies Columbus Manufacturer's Body, Searched Seven Days

CONNEAUT, O., Oct. 1.—(AP.)—The body of William McNulty, Columbus, O., salt manufacturer, was found today in Conneaut Harbor. He had crashed with Pilot Willard Parker, of Cleveland, in an airplane, into Lake Erie last Wednesday and evidently drowned while trying to swim ashore. Parker's body was recovered several days ago.

McNulty's body was identified by H. S. Williams of Columbus, a friends of the family, who came here with Mrs. McNulty to aid in the search.

Wreckage of the plane was found scattered along the shore.

McNulty and Parker took off from Cleveland Municipal Airport and indicated they intended to fly to Buffalo, N. Y.

The time at which the watch found on Parker's body had stopped indicated the flight had lasted hardly an hour.

SCALDS MOTHER WITH WATER

George Karch, Jr., 40, of 408 Chestnut street, judge of election of the Seventh District of the Twenty-third Ward, was sentenced to serve 30 days in the workhouse this morning after it was testified in North Side Police Court that he poured scalding water on his mother, Mrs. Rose Karch, 63.

County Patrolman John Briskey, living at the same address, made the arrest yesterday afternoon. George Karch, Sr., testified before Magistrate Ray E. Schneider that his son was drinking and poured hot water on his mother when she chided him.

Magistrate Schneider identified Karch as an election official, scored his behavior toward his mother, and sentenced him to the workhouse without option of a fine.

OFFICER HELD IN CONTO SLAYING

KITTANNING, Pa., Oct. 1.—A murder charge was lodged today against Constable William Raper for the slaying of Joseph Conto, Leechburg pop manufacturer, whose shot-riddled body was found in a thicket last Thursday. He was a friend of the dead man.

Raper was questioned until early today by state police, County Detective Charles R. Best and Chief of Police Martin O'Lear, of Leechburg.

Constable G. L. Knell, of Leechburg, will lead a group of boys to the scene of the murder tomorrow in an effort to find the gun and blackjack believed to have been used in killing Conto. Raper is said to have told police his blackjack was at home, but they have been unable to find it.

Author Surprised At Political Boom

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—Ellis Parker Butler, author-humorist, today, much to his surprise, discovered a full-fledged boom under way to name him chairman of the Queens County Democratic committee.

But politics, Mr. Butler hastened to explain, was no new experience to him, as he ran for president of the Band of Hope at Muscatine, Ia., in 1884 and was elected, too.

West View Church Elects 3 Trustees

The West View Methodist Episcopal Church, the Rev. O. B. Emerson, pastor, at a congregational meeting elected John J. Reel, C. W. Gollmar and Daniel Hill on the board of trustees for a three-year term. They will serve with six others. Mr. Hill, one of the oldest members of the church, has a record of 40 years official service on the North Side and West View.

DENNIS HARRIS, AMUSEMENT MAN, DIES

Succeeded Brother as Head Of Theater Organization; Pioneer in Film Houses

Dennis A. Harris, 54, widely known and popular theater executive, died in the Mercy Hospital last night. Mr. Harris, president of the Harris Amusement Companies, had been ill since last Wednesday, on which day he underwent an operation for appendicitis. He was believed to have recovered until yesterday morning when he suddenly became worse.

Mr. Harris was best known among moving picture interests, although his experiences covered every phase of amusement life. He was a brother of State Senator Frank J. Harris. He became president of the amusement companies upon the death of a third brother, the late Senator John P. Harris.

ONCE TROUPER

He was a life-long Pittsburgher and attended Central High School. Following his graduation in 1892 he became a ticket seller and treasurer in the theaters in which his brother, John P. Harris, was introducing motion pictures in this city. Six years later he made his stage debut with the Harry Davis Stock Company at the Grand Opera House.

Dennis Harris

He played a wide range of characters. He once supported Robert B. Mantell in Shakespearean repertoire. He also appeared with many other famous actors in both classical and modern drama. After his career as an actor he became manager, producer and stage director for the Davis Stock Company, later leaving to become associated with his brother in the management of the Harris and Davis enterprises.

WAS PATRIOTIC

Mr. Harris was known to be extremely patriotic. During the war he served as a public speaker in Liberty Loan drives and similar campaigns. He was a forceful speaker and was in demand for banquets and other gatherings.

Mr. Harris was a son of the late John Harris, Sr., and Bridget Gaughan Harris. He is survived by his brother, the senator, his widow, Mrs. Alice Riker Harris, and three sisters, Mrs. Christopher Durham, Mrs. John T. Wurtz and Miss Ellie Harris. He was a member of the Duquesne Club, the Knights of Columbus, Pittsburgh Athletic Association and St. Phillip's Catholic church, Crafton. He was a director of the Washington Trust Company and the Harris-Lawrence Company, Inc. He was past president of the Amen Corner and an honorary member of the Variety Club.

He was an uncle of John H. Harris, general manager of the Warner Brothers interests in the Pittsburgh area. His home is at Harris Terrace, Crafton.

Weather Conditions.

The anti-cyclone over Manitoba yesterday is now centered over Northern Michigan and continues to cause fair, cool weather over the Central valleys and most of the eastern states. There was frost this morning in the lake region, Upper Ohio Valley and Virginia. Pressure is relatively low over Southern Florida, causing thundershowers in the plateau region, Rocky Mountains and Dakotas. It is cooler in Virginia and West Virginia and portions of the plateau region and warmer in the western plains.

River Conditions.

The rivers are stationary. Stage at Franklin [illegible] feet; Lock No. 7, 10.0; Pittsburgh [illegible] Dam No. 4, 9.0; Dam No. [illegible] 7.2, and Dam No. 12 [illegible] are up.

of cancer, supplying the precious, powerful radio-active force in quantities sufficient to meet the demands of science. No discovery of gold or precious stones could mean as much.

GERMANY PROPOSES to meet the crisis of extreme radicalism on one hand and threat of Fascist leadership on the other BY ACTION.

Rigid economy will reduce national expenditures by a billion marks.

It is even suggested that Gen. Von Hindenburg's pay be reduced.

WE HAVE NO money worries here, with money to loan a drug in the market. We seem to lack the energy that does something, or ANYTHING. We are like a poor old lady, dispossessed from her prosperity lodgings, weeping on the sidewalk, not knowing what to do.

THE FIERY HITLER reminds you of the saying that if a man doesn't go too far he never goes far enough. He has gone far enough.

He not only threatens to impeach Hindenburg, but proposes to conquer Russia, "because Germany needs more territory for expansion."

A large Bolshevik bear in Moscow will have something to say about that.

ONE WALL STREET broker failed yesterday, and "short selling" followed by patriots willing to make money by raiding the market, causing indiscriminate injury.

The remarkable thing is that, in the year that has passed since the big slump, there have been practically no failures of brokerage firms.

ANY MAN THAT deliberately attacks stocks, seeking to destroy confidence in their value at this time, thereby increasing uncertainty and irresolution, is a public enemy.

The government should find a way of identifying such individuals. It would not be impossible, and merely naming them would help, for they are conspicuous, important men, and would not relish public disgrace.

ONE THING write down, and remember for future reference. This is the time to buy good stocks, if you have money to buy, and will not be frightened away from them.

But no time is good for gambling.

IMPRESSED BY the pathos, beauty and sincerity of the Passion Play, Henry Ford gave an automobile to Anton Lang, playing the part of Christ.

In 1930 that is only one more Ford car. Think what it would have been 1900 years ago. The whole world would have looked upon the fiery car as proof of miraculous powers beyond conception.

Snorting, backfiring, with headlights blazing, it would have meant more than a half dozen angels especially sent down. And, had it suited His divine purpose the Founder of Christianity, with such a vehicle, might have escaped unchallenged from His persecutors, taking His principal disciples with Him.

BRITAIN LOSES a useful, powerful man in Lord Birkenhead, who died yesterday. Beginning life as F. E. Smith, son of a poor barrister, his extraordinary success in life changed "Smith" to a "noble lord" and a nobody to a real statesman.

He wanted to be lord chancellor, and became lord chancellor.

He was secretary for India, served during the war in Lloyd George's cabinet, was one of the most powerful speakers in the House of Commons, and like other men that are successful, he never doubted his success.

POOR, DEEPLY in debt at the university, he sent for his creditors that threatened to put him through bankruptcy, and ruin his career, and said:

"Look at me, and tell me if you doubt that such a man as I will pay you all with interest. Don't be foolish, and throw away now what you are sure to get later."

They looked at him, extended his credit and left respectfully. If his will had enabled him to control himself as easily as he controlled circumstances and other men, he would be still alive.

$750,000,000 Yearly Spent for Beauty

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—American women's beauty bill is $750,000,000 a year. The estimate of annual expenditure at beauty shops and on cosmetics for home use was given to the American Beauty Congress by Prof. Paul H. Nystrom, of Columbia University.

Rumor Links Spanish Heir, Princess in Romance

BARCELONA, Spain, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—An all-Spanish royal romance was believed today to be in the making here.

Rumor linked the names of the Spanish heir, and the Princess Maria de Bourbon, 16-year-old Andalusian beauty, daughter of the Infante Carlos de Bourbon, captain general of Barcelona, and the Princess Luisa Francisca of Orleans.

The prince, arriving in Barcelona yesterday, called upon Don Carlos. Although there was no announcement of the purpose of his visit, no surprise would be occasioned here by an announcement shortly of his engagement to the Infanta Maria.

In Madrid, Premier Gen. Damaso Berenguer would not confirm reports of the engagement.

The Princess' full name is Maria Della Esperanza Raniera Maria Rocio de Bourbon y Orleans. She was born June 14, 1914, in Seville, and is considered one of the most beautiful of the royal and near royal women of Spain.

Previous reports of his engagement to Princess Ileana of Rumania have been denied.

HOOVER O ON TOUR OF 10 STATES

President Will See Series Game Today; To Answer Critics in Four Speeches

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—President Hoover set out today on a week's journeying that will take him on a triangular swing through 10 states and provide him with the opportunity — through the medium of four speeches — to make his first contributions to the current congressional campaign, in which the record of his administration is the principal issue.

SEES SERIES GAME

Accompanied by more than 50 persons, including four members of his cabinet, the President left for Philadelphia, where he witnessed the first game of the World Series. He will leave later in the day for Cleveland, where tomorrow night he will address the American Bankers' Association.

The White House deprecates the term "political" in connection with the President's trip, but fortuitously enough it is timed just five weeks in advance of the November election, and the states in which Mr. Hoover will speak are those in which the contests are keen.

TALK ON BUSINESS

Tomorrow night in Cleveland, before the American Bankers convention, he will speak on the business condition of the country, which the Democrats have made an issue by blaming the present depression upon his administration.

From Ohio, Mr. Hoover w[illegible] turn to Washington for the [illegible] end before departing for the [illegible] where on Monday he will [illegible] major speeches to the A[illegible] Legion and the American [illegible] tion of Labor. BANKERS CHAIN SYSTEM

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 1.—(AP.)—Community-wide branch banking in metropolitan areas and country-wide branch banking in rural districts "where economically justified" were indorsed by the American Bankers' Association in convention here today. The association had heretofore opposed branch banking.

Opposition had come from the Pennsylvania and New Jersey delegates whose representatives said they believed in the soundness of the present unit banking system and that branch banking interfered with individual initiative.

Rome C. Stephenson, of South Bend, Ind., was unanimously elected president of the association to succeed John G. Lonsdale. Harry J. Haas, of Philadelphia, was chosen first vice president and Francis H. Sisson, of New York, second vice president.

Escaping Gas Kills Wewly-Wedded Pair

STROUDSBURG, Pa., Oct. 1.—(INS.)—Married less than three weeks, Joseph Scagliatta, 26, and his wife, Concetta, 21, were found dead in bed here early today by Charles Biondo, the young bride's father. The family had been asphyxiated as they slept by escaping gas, according to [illegible] cians.

'Numbers' Office Raided; 1 Arres

An alleged numbers writ[illegible] headquarters at 55 Washingt[illegible] place was raided today by police who seized several adding machines, pads and books. Joe Sol[illegible] oman, 22, was arrested charged with operating a lottery. He was released in $2,500 bail for a hearing tomorrow.

Mt. Lebanon Man Named Court Crier

James P. Walsh, of 193 Birch avenue, Mt. Lebanon, a bailiff in the United States District Court since 1914, was appointed court crier today. Walsh succeeds Charles C. Lacher, recently appointed probation officer of the court.

Dr. Deetjen previously had lost a finger.

TUTTLE TARGET OF ROOSEVELT

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 1.—(AP.)—The subject of prohibition was in the gubernatorial campaign today in the form of a question by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, asking Charles H. Tuttle, Republican nominee, whether he would sign a state enforcement bill if elected.

In a speech thanking the Democratic convention for his renomination yesterday, Gov. Roosevelt said information had come to him that the price of support of drys among Republican leaders for Tuttle's candidacy was a promise that the Republican organization will pass a state enforcement act.

Gov. Roosevelt said:

"So today I ask him (Tuttle) this: 'If you become governor and if a state enforcement act is passed will you sign that act or not.'"

Hindenburg Plans Quiet Birthday

BERLIN, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—President Paul Von Hindenburg plans to celebrate his eighty-third birthday tomorrow far from the tense political atmosphere of Berlin. He took the train for his favorite holiday hunt, Dietranszell, Bavaria.

He expects to spend his birthday peacefully with close friends. Friday he will attend the funeral of Prince Leopold of Bavaria, who succeeded him as commander of the German armies in the east in the World War.

CHANNEL BEATS GIRL SWIMMER

DOVER, England, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—Miss Mercedes Gleitze, British woman swimmer, has failed in a new attempt to swim the English Channel.

Entering the water at 8:45 last night, she stayed in only about four hours, abandoning her efforts because of the intense cold.

In 1927 she claimed to have made the swim, but there was some question as to conditions of her feat and the Channel Swimming Association decided not to recognize it. Previously she had attempted the swim seven times and had failed.

Auto Exonerates Its Owner of Speed Charge

RACINE, Wis., Oct. 1.—(AP.)—The old bus simply wouldn't go that fast and John Marchant proved it.

The traffic policeman said he was driving 36 miles an hour. Marchant said he wasn't. The court continued the case and told the officer to go out and see for himself what he could get out of the car.

"Twenty-nine miles an hour was the best I could do," the policeman reported back to the court.

"Case dismissed," ruled the court.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Oct. 1.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Even if the gift of $10,000,000 by Edward S. Harkness to British charity stood alone, it would have important significance in the development of philanthropy. This great sum given for the promotion of human welfare in a foreign nation will emphasize again the common brotherhood and the interdependence of all people irrespective of national boundaries.

Calvin Coolidge

But this is only one of the generous responses reaching hundreds of millions made by the people of the United States for relief from suffering and for general improvement of conditions in nearly every country of Europe and Asia. These gifts are not only from the great philanthropists of our land but, through the American Red Cross and the Near East Relief, have come to include benefactions created by the general public.

Nothing like it has occurred in all past history. The only approach to it in our own experience was the legacy of the British subject, James Smithson, of over a half million dollars to the United States for the foundation of the Smithsonian Institution. Such philanthropies draw the world closer together and demonstrate the power of the human race to rise above international antagonisms.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

HUNT SKIDMORE IN CANADA

Local detectives today were of the belief that George C. Skidmore, wanted as a suspect for murder, had fled to New York or Canada.

His alleged accomplice, Henry Uccellino, alias White, of Oneida street, in the holdup of the Liberty Bell gasoline station, Warrington avenue, in which Charles P. Hammond, the attendant, was shot to death, has also eluded police.

Search for Skidmore was centered in Olympia Park for an hour last night when an anonymous telephone call from a woman informed detectives the youth was hiding in a shelter house. Armed with tear gas bombs and shotguns, the detectives searched the shelter houses, but found no trace of Skidmore.

Skidmore's younger brother Leonard, was rearrested on a warrant charging him with accessory after the fact of murder after his release on a writ of habeas corpus. After the second arrest the younger Skidmore was released on bond.

Writ Server Adds Laughs for Actress

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—Fifi Dorsay, film comedienne, brought down the house in a Brooklyn theater with the aid of a legal summons server. Miss Dorsay was just about to break into song when a young man stepped across the footlights and handed her a missive. She thought it was a mash note. The audience thought it was a put-up job. She informed them between tears it was a summons to appear in court within five days to answer an action brought by Lyons & Lyons, booking agents.

Court to Decide If Babies Have Right to Cry

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—The question before the court, be it known, is whether a baby on entering this world has a right to cry.

Residents in a Brooklyn apartment house, separated by only 10 feet from the Hebrew Maternity Hospital, have petitioned Magistrate Hirshfield that the hospital be adjudged a public nuisance.

The hospital replied:

"Babies have right, and the right of crying is inherent in every baby's heart and lungs."

A summons on the hospital, setting October 15 as the day for argument, was issued. Meanwhile, presumably, babies will be permitted to continue to cry if they so desire.

Admiral Byrd Will Speak Show Films Tonight at Mosque Safety Rally

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd appears as the featur speaker of the nineteenth annual National Safety Congre tonight, bringing the story of safety's part in the South Pol expedition before the 7,000 delegates and a liimted publi audience.

The famous explorer will arrive today by airplane fr Indiana, Pa. He will be guest of honor at a dinner in t Pittsburgh Athletic Club preceding his appearance in Sy Mosque. Officers of the National Safety Council and members of the local convention committee will be Byrd's hosts.

LIMIT PUBLIC

Originally planned as the convention feature for delegates, with Byrd's lecture illustrated by his personal motion pictures not released for public exhibition, as an attraction to follow the annual banquet, a continuous demand has caused the convention committee to release 700 tickets for purchase by the general public. These tickets have been made obtainable at the convention headquarter booth in the William Penn Hotel lobby.

The mammoth annual banquet will be divided between five halls of the Schenley Farms district. The banquet rooms will be in the Hotel Schenley, Syria Mosque, University Club and Webster Hall, besides the Pittsburgh Athletic Club.

BYRD TO BROADCAST

Following Byrd's lecture, the explorer will be escorted to the broadcasting station of KDKA in the William Penn Hotel, where he will meet staff members who assisted in broadcasting programs to the expedition during its two years' stay in Little America. The greetings will be broadcast between 10:15 and 11 p. m.

Dr. William S. Wadsworth, Philadelphia coroner's physician, spoke last night at a special dinner session on air-pollution in manufacturing establishments. He stressed the lack of co-operation on the part of manufacturers in collecting information as to poisonous gases in plant atmospheres. He said:

"There are hundreds of poisons polluting the industrial plant, but because they do not kill the worker instantly, the management ignores the condition or attempts to cover it up. Important information is withheld from the expert, with the result improvements are slow. Employes are forced to suppress accounts of poisonings of the more severe type.

COURTS DISASTER

"Any industry that shuts its eyes and ears and steps on the gas is courting disaster. Many have gotten away with it and more will try it, more or less successfully, but this hit-and-run stuff is criminal. Industry must co-operate with agencies by providing data on poisonous conditions so this condition can be remedied."

Throughout the day, sessions of the many sections composing the National Safety Council were being held in both the William Penn and Fort Pitt hotels. Addresses were scheduled by national authorities on safety and accident prevention. Nine noonday luncheons were planned. Many sections planned elections.

Pennsylvania Day was to be observed Friday, featured by a community safety session in the morning, a foremen's forum at Syria Mosque in the afternoon, while an executive's banquet will close the day.

A meeting open to the general public will be held Friday morning at 9 o'clock in the Willi Penn Hotel when national theorities will speak on saf problems in the home. Moth parents and teachers have b invited to attend the session.

GARBAGE RO IN SWISSVALE

Garbage collection conditions in Swissvale remained unchanged today, borough council not having taken action at its meeting last night when Burgess W. T. Pyle reported that collections were being made only once a week instead of twice as required by ordinance.

At Pyle's instigation, council was told Ordinance Officer James Broadfoot arrested John Hoffman, the garbage collector, and haled him before Justice of the Pea S. H. Wilson, of Swissvale. Wilson withheld his decision.

Council awarded the McCl Plumbing Company the cont to install a new boiler in municipal building at the cost $1,040.

Capone Aide Freed On $60,000 Bon

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—(INS Jack Guzick, field marshal "Scarface" Al Capone and sec in command to the gang ov lord, was free today after posting $50,000 in bonds when seized by federal operatives on charges of income tax evasion.

No sooner had he stepped from the courtroom than city detectives arrested him a second time on a vagrancy warrant. Again his bondsman acted quick and Guzick was once more free after $10,000 had been left as bond.

Georgians Voting To Pick Governor

ATLANTA, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—Georgia Democrats select a governor today in a run-off primary, the nomination being equivalent to election for lack of opposition. Voters choose between Richard B. Russell, Jr., 33-year-old speaker of the House of Representatives and son of the chief justice of the Georgia Supreme Court, and George M. Carswell, secretary of state and a veteran in state politics.

Movie Executive's Wife Wins Divorc

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 1.—(INS.)—Albert A. Kaufman, motion picture executive, was divorced by Mrs. Rita Krone Kaufman, Hollywood society leader, on grounds of desertion. The Kaufmans were married at Washington, D. C., on July 18, 1918, separated August 29, 1928, the complaint said. Mrs. Kaufman was awarded custody of a minor child and $50 a month.

County Provides For Bertillon Clerk

Employment of a clerk to keep the Bertillon records in the district attorney's office was authorized by the County Commissioners yesterday. The salary was fixed at $2,500. The position was created at the request of District Attorney Andrew T. Park.

INOIS JOINS HEARST FETE

By JOHN W. DIENHART.

Universal Service.

HICAGO, Oct. 1.—Gov. Emmerson, on behalf of the state of nois, has extended his whole-arted support to the patriotic nonstration to be held here on icago Day, October 9, in honor William Randolph Hearst. aving designated Lieut. Gov. E. Sterling to represent him e bestowal of tributes to the isher, the Governor took occa-on to comment on the recent ion of the French government having ordered Mr. Hearst to France in retaliation for the e of the secret Anglo-French treaty.

VERNOR'S MESSAGE

Governor Emmerson's message d:

"Expulsion of William Ran-lph Hearst from France is an of official pettiness which, my opinion, is not representative of the real feeling of French people.

It is in direct contradiction he American ideals of free- of the press and is not fied by the facts in the nder the circumstances, ectment is a reflection not n, but on the government nce.

h action will not deter erican press from taking firm stand on international matters in which the of the United States is ed."

ne Governor added he p ed to participate personally in exercises for Mr. Hearst to be d in the Soldier Field Stadium that an important out-of- n engagement, previously e, prevented his coming here. amuel Insull, among an im- ing list of civic and business ders, accepted an invitation to rve on the reception committee greet the official guest of the ty and county on his arrival. e complete list is expected to be ade public in a few days.

AN PARTY SIGNS

The Republican county central mmittee, headed by Chairman W. Snow, met with Mayor ompson to pledge its co-operation to make the event an un-edented one. Chairman A. J. mak, of Democratic county tral committee, will have a ular meeting of his organization today. The Mayor said:

"It will take the parade which which will accompany Mr. Hearst around the boulevard system two hours to pass a given point. Already 2,500 cars are scheduled to be in the caravan. Arrangements have been made to accommodate yourselves and h of your people as may also e to pay tribute to this dis-shed American."

Two California Political Leaders Praise Hearst

AN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—Universal.—Two prominent California political leaders, Congressman Richard J. Welch and Congresswoman Florence P. Kahn, commented on William Randolph Hearst's address over a national radio broadcast on his expulsion from France.

Congressman Welch said:

"Mr. William Randolph Hearst, an outstanding American citizen and publisher, was ordered to leave France because he published the contents of a secret Anglo-French naval treaty, a vital subject concerning which the people of this country had a right to be informed.

"Indignities of this character are the penalties that come to the people of a country, who it would seem have yet to learn the value of minding their own business concerning European affairs.

"Had we kept out of the World Court and away from the League of Nations and attended strictly to our own affairs, France and other European countries would have a higher regard for our country and the integrity of an American passport.

"Mr. Hearst is to be strongly commended for his patriotic service to the United States in guiding us away from the path of European entanglements."

TARDIEU SMALLER

Congresswoman Kahn declared:

"I listened to Mr. Hearst's radio address with a very good deal of interest and I thought it a very great opportunity for Mr. Hearst to get the subject squarely before the American people.

"There had existed considerable doubt in the minds of many who were interested in the matter as to just how the document got into Mr. Hearst's possession. I personally was interested to learn that Mr. Hearst received the document from two prominent French officials who subsequently were acquitted of any crime.

"And I certainly admired Mr. Hearst's statement and the way he has handled the whole question.

"He is human and humor both.

"Certainly Mr. Hearst looms bigger and Tardieu smaller through the episode."

REED APPROVES HEARST STAND

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—In commenting upon the radio speech of William Randolph Hearst regarding his expulsion from France, former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, in a telegram to Universal Service said:

"I fully approve of what Mr. Hearst said. I am inclined, however, to believe that he bears himself too modestly in this situation. For many years Mr. Hearst has served the American people in an advisory capacity. It has been wise counsel that he has given them because it has been always sterling Americanism.

"Mr. Hearst is one of those rare individuals who retains his faith in true American traditions and institutions, and he has the courage to voice those opinions and the wit to arouse and hold the attention of the American people.

"In this instance, Mr. Hearst has done a fine thing to call the attention of the American people to the spineless attitude of our government toward the rights of its citizens abroad. Perhaps it is too much to ask the present administration to do anything about it."

EDITOR DECRIES FRENCH ACT

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—(Universal)—Marcellus E. Foster, Houston publisher, who arrived on the French liner Ile de France, is not going back to France until her attitude toward America changes.

A frequent visitor to France and an admirer of that country, Foster said he had noticed suspicion and distrust there toward Americans for the first time. Hereafter, he resolved he will confine his travels to England and Germany and visit France only when he feels he is welcome.

Foster motored in Normandy with Mrs. Foster. Their stay in France was cut short by the death of Will C. Hogg, millionaire oil man and philanthropist, who was to entertain them. Foster said today:

"I do not know what has happened to France, but the spirit of the people has changed. They are no longer kindly and hospitable, but seem to regard Americans as invaders.

"The France of today is rich and prosperous, and with this wealth and prosperity has come a haughty and contemptuous spirit for the rest of the world.

"I know of nothing more absurd than the exclusion of Mr. William Randolph Hearst, but the action was indicative of the French people of today.

"I say this with deep regret for I have always loved the French and enjoyed visiting their beautiful country. This time, they made me feel as if we were not wanted. When people do that, there is nothing to do but stay away."

Fish to Be Victims Of Blasts to Move Liner

HIGHLANDS, N. J., Oct. 1—(INS)—Thousands of fish will be killed, and more thousands stunned when contractors set off, within a few days, the first of a series of giant dynamite blasts intended to remove the liner Fort Victoria as a menace to navigation three miles off Sandy Hook and two miles south of Scotland Light.

FOSS SEES U. S. REMISS IN DUTY

Universal Service.

BOSTON, Oct. 1.—Former Gov. Eugene N. Foss, of Massachusetts, used no "ifs" or "buts" in his condemnation of the expulsion of William Randolph Hearst from French territory because of his publication of the details of the Anglo-French naval disarmament pact. He said:

"The action of France in ordering Mr. Hearst from French soil was not only a personal affront to a man who had done nothing to deserve it, but it was in the nature of a figurative slap in the face for the United States of America.

"To my mind, the personal element in the episode is of secondary importance to its national significance and I am free to say that I think the government at Washington is decidedly remiss in having taken no official notice of the matter, or in not at least having set an inquiry on foot.

"I assume it to be a fact that a man of the caliber of William Randolph Hearst would stoop to neither bribery or any other questionable method to secure news for the papers.

"On the face of it, I think that as an American citizen Mr. Hearst was entirely justified in giving the publicity that he to a subject of vital interest importance to the people of United States."

TRUE STORIES of CONSTRUCTIVE BANKING—No. 13

It's Still—

"The Land of Opportunity"

HE LEFT his Central European village in 1925 and came to Pittsburgh, a youth of twenty. He got a job in the stock yards and on August 22, 1925 came in to the Farmers Bank to start a Savings Account with $8.00 from his first pay check.

America is still the land of opportunity. Work has been steady and he visits us every two weeks to make a deposit. Today he has more than $4,000.00 in his Savings Account. Average monthly interest at the present time is more than $13.00, an important addition to the amount he deposits.

The Savings Account is a fundamental factor in financial progress. It provides a means for profitable investment of small sums otherwise wasted and, with regular deposits, grows to impressive totals. Use a Savings Account to get the things you most want.

STORE METHODS IMPROVED

By J. L. MAHONY
Secretary, Retail Radio Merchants

The seal of the Retail Radio Merchants Association is known now wherever radio merchandise is sold.

As a result of the RRMA movement we may sincerely say that the radio store of today is in a stronger position than ever before.

We have had a year of operation under the leadership and discipline of this seal. Most of the larger better known radio retailers have become identified with the association and take an active part in its organization and management. They have helped to formulate a code of business ethics upon which the organization is founded and faithfully support every constructive movement sponsored by the group. Other dealers who have not joined the RRMA have followed in the association's footsteps in merchandising ideals it promoted.

Radio has been elevated to a highly technical shop with capable, registered service men.

The Retail Radio Merchants Association is entirely voluntary and non-profit making. It holds monthly meetings designed to instruct its members in special problems peculiar to their business. Its official family includes J. H. Phillips, president; George S. Hards, vice president; J. A. Simpson, secretary; J. E. Cooper, treasurer, with M. E. Lindenberg, J. F. Henk, W. B. Mullan, George S. Hards, Victor Nelly Jr., G. Webber Knight and C. W. Pelton as members of the board of directors.

Fire Prevention Talks Scheduled

Fire prevention, its various phases and the opportunity for fire chiefs to save their communities thousands of dollars yearly by educating the public to take preventive measurees was to be discussed by Franklin H. Wentworth of Boston, managing director of the National Fire Prevention Association, in the Chamber of Commerce today at noon and tonight.

The chamber next week will observe "Fire Prevention Week" in the Pittsburgh district.

TRAFFIC ESSAY CONTEST OPEN

The fourth annual traffic essay contest of the Better Traffic Committee opened in Pittsburgh public and parochial schools today. More than 92,000 pupils from the fourth through the senior high school grades were expected to take part. In addition a traffic safety lesson for teachers, for which 12 prizes totaling $520, also opened.

Two hundred and fifty cash prizes totaling $1,300, and five collegiate scholarships worth $700 have been offered to the writers of the best student essays on a near traffic accident, the parking problem downtown and the committee's proposed traffic code. The teachers writing traffic safety lessons which they used in their classes have been offered 12 awards totaling $520.

In the pupils' contest, grades four, five and six are in division one, seven, eight and nine in division two, and the senior high schools, grades 10, 11 and 12 in division three.

The lesson contest on safety methods for teachers is divided into four sections, including the three pupils' sections and one for teachers of the primary grades one, two and three.

Employes Attend Corn Roast, Dance

More than 200 employes and their families attended a corn roast and barn dance last night at Crescent Pines sponsored by the Palace Good Fellowship Club, comprising the employes of the Palace Credit Clothing Company, 623 Liberty avenue. Donald J. Lacker, president of the club, headed the committee in charge. Mr. and Mrs. David J. Bonwit and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Roth, members of the firm, attended.

'Purchase' Story Frees Wife, 18, From Man, 70

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—An 18-year-old girl, seeking a divorce, testified her 70-year-old husband had purchased her for his bride three years ago while she was an inmate in an orphanage.

The girl, Florence Gut, declared her aged husband had come to the orphanage hunting a wife, had taken a fancy to her and had obtained permission to wed her by offering her mother $2,000. She said she married Gut without knowledge that she had been "bought." She asked divorce on the grounds that her husband preferred dog and cat pets to her.

Judge John J. Sullivan awarded her a divorce and an alimony settlement of $1,000.

RAID BREWERY ON 'HILL'

Police led by Lieut. Thomas Gross today raided a wildcat brewery in a three-story brick building at 1426 Colwell street, said to be the principal source of beer for the Hill district.

They reported destroying 150 cases of beer and 27 vats of mash. Several cases and vats were confiscated for evidence against John Busha, 22, caretaker, who was arrested charged with violating the Snyder act.

STUBENRAUCH FIRED AGAIN

Herman Stubenrauch, "special" investigator for Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh and automobile detective, has been fired again.

The finishing touches ending the career of the stormy detective were administered today by Mayor Charles H. Kline when he signed the recommendation of the police trial board for Stubenrauch's dismissal.

The firing of Stubenrauch was the result of assault charges brought against him by a Burgettstown school teacher, who testified Stubenrauch slugged him with a revolver during an argument on the Sixth Street Bridge.

POLICE WIRES LINK 2 STATES

Pennsylvania's police teletype system today was connected with that of New Jersey. Officials of the two states exchanged felicities.

One of the first messages sent was one of congratulation from the Governor of Pennsylvania to the Governor of New Jersey.

Maj. Lynn G. Adams, of the Pennsylvania state police, sent a message of congratulation to Supt. H. N. Schwarzkopf, of the New Jersey state police.

French War Hero Pauses for Welcome

If you think all ice creams are alike try RIECK'S

Your first taste of Rieck's Ice Cream will show you a difference—in flavor—a richness—in smoothness of texture. And for two big reasons.

Rieck uses real rich cream—real Cuban-cane sugar—real fruits, nuts or other natural flavorings. There are no "substitutes" in it.

Furthermore—year after year—for 34 years—Rieck has been adding a new richness, a new smoothness, a new and more wonderful flavor through increased skill in blending and freezing these same fine ingredients.

You can buy Rieck's Ice Cream in bulk—or in the modern, convenient De Luxe Package.

AWARD GIVEN M'CASKEY

D. L. McCaskey

Donald L. McCaskey of 180 Hutchinson avenue, Edgewood, has been named one of the winners of the 16 scholarships awarded to the most brilliant high school student in the Central West. McCaskey, graduate of the Edgewood High School, has, as the result of the scholarship, entered Cornell University.

The amount of each scholarship is $400. The students were chosen from 16 different cities by prominent people in each city who acted as judges.

McCaskey graduated from Edgewood High School with high honors. He entered Cornell University this fall and will complete the college course there. According to Albert H. Morrill, president of the Kroger Grocery and Baking Company, the awards will be made each year and will be offered as an incentive to students to exert their best efforts in obtaining an education.

Choice of Four Patterns As Sketched—Poppy, Rose, Scroll, Chrysanthemum

There are few events on our calendar that our customers wait for more eagerly than they do this sale of Irish linen tablecloths and napkins at $6.00. It is a value which experience has taught us women are delighted to obtain . . . so much so that this fall we have provided twice as many cloths and napkins as in any past sale.

The purchase was made in Belfast by our representative late last spring. And the price to you is the same as in previous years, despite the new higher tariff. Lustrous, fully bleached double damask, woven of long-line flax, as smooth as satin. Will launder beautifully, time and again. Your choice of either size cloth or a dozen napkins, $6.00.

When ordering by mail or phone, please give first and second choice of patterns.

The Oriental Rug Bazaar

If ever there was a favorable time for purchasing an Oriental rug, that time is now. The values, unequaled in our memory, are due to two factors: (1)—Large-scale, direct buying in the Far East and importation before the new tariff increased the duty. (2)—A market condition which has temporarily depressed prices.

The collection is a magnificent one, embracing rugs of various finer types and wanted dimensions—in the full, exquisite shades characteristic of Persia and Asia Minor. They are rugs you can depend on—at savings too substantial to ignore.

Room-Size Sarouk Rugs

Sarouk, one of the finest types of modern Persian rugs. Carefully selected pieces of the finest grade, at a price that would be utterly impossible under normal conditions. They possess a warm, rich sheen, due to live, hard wool. Their deep pile makes them luxuriously soft and thick. Approximately 9x12 feet.

Other Room-Size Persian Rugs, $145, $195 and $285

3x5 Sarouk Mats

$69.50

They possess a rich, lustrous sheen and the color magic of the Orient, combined with great sturdiness and durability.

Dozar Size Rugs

Approximately 5x7 ft. Sarouks, Kirmans, Lilihans and Kurdistans of the finer type, for small rooms, halls and before the hearth.

Persian Runners

$45 $55

More than 300 runners, approximately 3 ft. wide and 9 to 12 ft. long. Beautiful specimens of Karabaghs, Kurdistans and Hamadans—in two groups.

Lilihan Mats

$13.50

Averaging 2x3 ft. They have a fine, close weave and a glowing sheen. Choose from many fascinating colors.

CHURCH RALLIES TO DRY CAUSE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—(AP)—A call for the observance of Sunday, November 2, as Christian Citizenship Sunday was issued by a group of Protestant leaders through the Christian Herald as an answer to the "challenge" faced by the churches on the prohibition question.

Sponsored by the Women's Temperance Union, the Anti-Saloon League, officials of various Protestant churches and other organizations, the call said the "drive to destroy the Eighteenth Amendment and restore the regulated liquor traffic has assumed unprecedented proportions."

The call said the special observance was to the end "that the membership of our churches may squarely face their obligations as Christian citizens in the elections of November 4." It added:

"We urge that on that day pastors and people consider together their electoral obligations, that insofar as is possible they pledge themselves to vote, and, finally, that they rededicate themselves to a continuance of the church's war against liquor until its menace is finally destroyed."

CAR HITS POLE; THREE HURT

Three men were injured, one of them seriously, when an automobile in which they were riding struck a pole in East street near Quebec street this morning. Police say the driver disappeared after the crash. He is said to be Nicholas Ruber, of 142 Steuben street.

The injured men, John Smith, 30, of 402 Atwood street; Saul Marinoff, 24, of 1324 Fifth avenue, and Albert Kagess, 22, of 204 DeVilliers street, were removed to the Allegheny General Hospital. Marinoff and Kagess were sent home after receiving treatment. Smith, said to be suffering from loss of blood, was detained.

'Mary Roberts Rinehart what would you require in a soap for fine things?'

*We asked Mary Roberts Rinehart her opinion as a member of the Committee of 17

—here is her answer:

SHE is America's favorite author . . . this brilliant novelist. A full and glamourous career hers, that any woman might envy. Wife—mother—then, in the midst of homemaking . . . the first successful novel followed by 36 others that swept her to the pinnacle of fame. Through it all, Mrs. Rinehart has retained that quick sympathy . . . that understanding of home problems . . . which enables her to touch the hearts of millions of readers.

"Tell us," we asked her, "what would you require in a soap for fine things?"

Why Mrs. Rinehart prefers Palmolive Beads

"Traveling in remote places in America, or summering in my little log house on a Wyoming ranch," said Mrs. Rinehart, "I often find it necessary to look after my own delicate articles of wearing apparel. At those times I require something absolutely reliable, which does the work swiftly and well. I am now using and intend to use for this purpose in the future, Palmolive Beads. They dissolve quickly, make an excellent suds in the hardest water and rinse completely without any soap residue."

An utterly new type soap

Mrs. Rinehart is a member of the distinguished Committee of 17 who met recently at the Ritz Hotel to watch Palmolive Beads tested in comparison with flakes and granules. They found that this revolutionary new soap (1) Dissolves instantly, completely. (2) Cleanses in water 20 degrees cooler than flakes require. (3) Rinses away 100% to protect against soap damage. (4) Resupplies the natural oils and so makes silk threads wear-resisting.

So superior did the tests prove Palmolive Beads to be . . . so perfectly does it fulfill every requirement, that the Committee of 17 enthusiastically acclaimed it "the ideal soap for silks."

Order Palmolive Beads from your dealer today. They cost but 10 cents the box.

"... a soap that dissolves quickly—makes excellent suds in the hardest water—rinses away complete without any soapy residue—in short, Palmolive Beads."

ADDING to Milady's beauty has become one of the nation's major industries. Today there are salons and parlors where expert hands tend to the setting of Madame's coiffure, where agile fingers knead Madame's face in an invigorating massage, where scientific preparations renew the beauty of the hungry skin. It is all-important that you seek out the more reliable of these shops. That you entrust your greatest asset—beauty—to experienced hands. Thus, we suggest that you patronize those establishments who advertise in the Sun-Telegraph. Their reputation is solid. They are the masters of their profession. So that you may easily use their messages as a guide, we have grouped them every Sunday in the Society Section of the Sun-Telegraph. In these masseurs, barbers and beauticians you may place the utmost confidence. They are Sun-Telegraph advertisers, and are endorsed by the Sun-Telegraph.

Coats have adopted fitted ways with marvelous ease . . . furs and fabrics are so handled that it's hard to tell where one stops and the other begins! Skirts flare slightly or decidedly, from a slim, high waistline; sleeves have elbow cuffs of fur; collars are stand-offish and frame the face. Beautiful coats, all of them!

Sketched is one very conscious of its Russian ancestry! Red, grey or green, trimmed with black caracul, $59.50.

There are handsome town and informal coats for Misses . . . one a Velour du Nord, lavishly trimmed with butter lapin. And better coats for Women and Misses are priced $65 to $149.50.

DR. WILLEY NEW ALLIANCE HEAD

The Rev. Dr. John H. Willey of Montclair, N. J., former pastor of Christ Methodist Episcopal Church, of Pittsburgh, has been elected president of the Lord's Day Alliance of the United States, according to word received here. He succeeds Dr. David G. Wylie.

Dr. Willey is a graduate of the University of Illinois and a post graduate of Syracuse University and of Christ Church College of Oxford University.

Prior to his tenure as pastor of the Pittsburgh church he served 14 years as pastor of St. Mark's Church, Brooklyn. For more than 20 years he has been chairman of the permanent committee of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church appointed to represent that body in the board of managers of the Alliance.

He is a well known author and lecturer. His book "Between Two Worlds," written at the close of the World War, created a world-wide sensation. He is prelate of the Montclair Commandery, Knights Templar, is a thirty-second degree Mason and a member of Gorgas Lodge of Perfection, Pittsburgh. He is also chaplain of the Montclair Chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution.

SALVATIONISTS' APPEAL OPENS

Hundreds of workers today began a canvass of Allegheny County in the interest of the tenth annual home service and appeal of the Salvation Army, which ends October 11. The fund supports the Army's relief work in the county.

The campaign was launched without the customary opening dinner for workers. These dinners were abolished by the citizens advisory board and Lieut. Charles B. Campbell, divisional commander.

The Army's new gymnasium in the headquarters building was formally opened last night. It will provide free corrective classes for physically defective children, and free physical education for children of the downtown district.

Judge Joseph Buffington is chairman of the citizens advisory board for the drive and H. C. McEldowney is treasurer. Others are Ralph M. Dravo, Samuel K. Cunningham, R. J. Dodds, W. U. Follansbee, H. C. Graham, Edgar J. Kaufmann, C. H. Lehmann, H. R. Miller, F. F. Schauer, Henry Tranter, E. T. Whiter, Charles Yon, J. S. Jenks, James Hammond and Curtis M. Yohe.

Rosenwald Fund Aids New Medical Service

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—(AP)—The Rosenwald Fund pledged to the Mental Hygiene Institute of the Pennsylvania Hospital in Philadelphia half of any deficit up to $17,500 for its first year of operation.

The institute's purpose, the announcement says, is to bring psychiatric service, one of the most expensive forms of medical care, within the reach of people of moderate income.

BILLY JONES, ERNIE HARE AT RADIO SHOW; JOHNSON SPEAKS ON SERIES

Musical Tongue.
Damrosh Technique.
MacDonald Speaks.
Air Cannonading.

By LOUIS REID

Louis Reid

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—No one explains music over the radio with the charm and simplicity of Walter Damrosch. What he gives is essentially musical education but it is adroitly disguised as music appreciation. It becomes entertainment and as a result it has won a weekly audience of 5,000,000 school children. Were it presented as education it would be greeted, if we have any knowledge of psychology, by inattentive ears.

Damrosch keeps alert to the spirit of the times. He has given a helping hand to jazz, particularly the jazz of George Gershwin. He mixes the masters of music with those obscure Americans who are waiting for a friendly nod from Toscanini. He indulges his spare time in symphonic arrangements of popular music. I hope the day is not far off when he will assemble the tangy tunes of the countryside into a musical fabric that symbolizes a happier if more primitive America.

Damrosch's Radio Style Unique

There are those who do not like Damrosch's manner on the microphone, who think he lingers too long upon the name of "Vogner," who detect in it a patronizing note. To me his style is unique. He is the only musical bigwig who attempts to explain his program. He does so with the manner of the story teller rather than that of the professor. Occasionally, of course, there is condescension. It is surprising there is not more considering the classical unfamiliarity of his hearers.

I wonder why some of the more enterprising jazz specialists have not adopted Damrosch's technique, have not sought to explain the feverish strains say, "St. Louis Blues" or the sugary sentiments of the Hollywood tunesmiths. It would be novel to hear the sweet and low down of such a thing as "Happy Days Are Here Again," expressed in the solemn accents of Carnegie Hall.

From programs made up entirely of home-and-mother ballads, from tangoes on the pipe organ, from string trios playing Rubenstein's "Melody in F," from coloraturas warbling the "Bird Song" from "Pagliacci," from baby voice singers, from radio descriptions of parades, from hotsy-totsy jazz bands, from the flubdubbery of the average politician [illegible] e air, from the ballyhoo [illegible] overwhelms all so-called [illegible] m's programs, good Lord [illegible] us.

e newest of radio quartets alled "The Brigadiers." ophone quartets go in for ky names—Cavaliers, Bal[illegible], Grenadiers. Why not, e Racketeers?"

White, still called the Masked Tenor," believes song cycle is now sweeping to the old sticky style of hich glorified the various of the Union. We trust s misinformed.

onald Speaks to America

[illegible]-time Minister MacDonald re[illegible] s today his acquaintance with armchairs of America. Since Rapidan log confab with [illegible]oover, MacDonald has been [illegible]ard often by the ear-cuppers the republic. I never tire of [illegible]stening to him, for there is no [illegible]ublic figure of our time who can express himself with such poetic fervor and facility of phrase.

The politicians are asking and giving no quarter on the air these ballot-wooing days. Which is as it should be. The cannonaders of Capitol Hill are already laying down a barrage of words—a barrage bristling with such expressions as "Grundy Taxes and Hoover Breadlines," "American Prosperity and Democratic Bun," "Nailing a Billion Dollar Lie." It promises to be a diverting fall in the parlors.

It has taken the sharpshooters of the old parties a long time to learn that they can capture the eardrums best by adhering to the old American custom of calling a spade a spade. Up to now on the radio they have persisted in calling it a heart.

B. A. Rolfe is interspersing his fast dance tempo orchestra with a slow South American tango band. The vogue of blending fast fox trots and slow tangoes [illegible] be traced to Parisian cafes [illegible] Carl McCullough is the latest of the comics to join the procession to the microphones. Where is Bobby Clark? Clark, perhaps, is waiting for television which will bring his unique nonsense with a cigar and cane to its fullest glory. . . . Passenger lists of ships from South America are heavier than ever, bringing marimba bands to New York broadcasting studios. . . . Wonder if we'll ever hear a band from the Congo?

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

Billy Jones and Ernie Hare, gay songsters of the air, visit the Pittsburgh Radio Show this afternoon and tonight. Their 9 o'clock program is to be broadcast by KDKA. Baseball fans will be interested to hear what Walter Johnson has to say about the first game in the World Series when Grantland Rice interviews him over WCAE at 10:30. "Meet Me Tonight in Dreamland" is a duet on the Palmolive Hour WCAE at 30. Elizabeth Lennox sings Del Riego's "Homing" and Paul Oliver does the "Desert Song."

Walter Johnson

20 Fingers of Sweetness are to do their regular KDKA act from the stage in Duquesne Garden at 7:15.

A few facts about the Interwoven Pair:

They write their own "gags" and try never to repeat.

Work 12 to 15 hours a day.

Have their own studio where they "clock" each performance before going on the air.

Ernie Hare is married and eats at home twice a week.

Their radio work calls for 18 new jokes and seven songs each week.

Have worked together on the same program for five years.

Met while making phonograph records.

Have the same birthday and love spinach.

Something about Irene Beasley:

Born January 28, 1904, in Whitehaven, Tennessee—a little village.

Graduated from Sweet Briar College and taught school in Mississippi.

Made a test record for Victor and became a phonograph artist, thence to Ward's Tip Top Club in radio. On the air since April, 1929.

Parents were singers and her grandmother an expert pianist.

Irene is publicity shy and succeeded in evading a photographer at the station this morning.

SHOW NOTES

Edinburgh capitalists are interested in I. M. Wilson's new mathematical system enabling five men to get into the show on four passes.

Gene Wall, of the Lyric factory, gave us a fine explanation of the clock-tuning device on this set. No doubt about it, this robot of the air is a good stunt.

Milton Cross had more people rush backstage to meet him than any artist that has yet appeared at a Pittsburgh Radio Show.

Milt's jokes were very good, and his "Slumber Song" was sung dramatically. This man's poise is an art in itself.

"Johnny" Johnstone, NBC press relations, took a flyer to Philadelphia immediately after the last performance. He's to help McNamee in the World Series.

Roxy is to join NBC at a salary of $5,000 a week in 1931, it was rumored last night.

Margaret Purcell, of the Duquesne Electric Booth, is the proud possessor of a record made specially for her by Milton Cross.

Price was the big reason for Floyd Gibbons giving up his 6:45 broadcast. The number of stations was cut, but Floyd would not allow his salary to be cut . . . and most persons will agree he was right.

The Sponsor of Sacred Songs moved freely on the radio show floor last night while her program was broadcast by KDKA . . . and no one identified her. Her name is still a mystery to most people. The program was one of the best we've heard.

LAST NIGHT:

Tampa: "Why is a school yard bigger at recess time than any other time?"

Ford Miller: "I don't know. Why is it bigger at recess?"

Tampa: "Because it has more feet in it."

Pianos To Loan FREE

Frankly, we have too many pianos now in stock. Of course, we would like to sell them. Some new, some used instruments. Every piano in the sale will be sacrificed at a price almost unbelieveable. The slashing reductions on Grands, Players and Uprights should cause many to be sold immediately. All pianos not sold outright will be placed in the homes of families interested in owning a piano in the immediate future, particularly homes where there are children. You must call at the store to file your request.

Positively No Charge Of Any Kind

We, of course, reserve the right to select the homes in which the pianos are to be placed and they may be used indefinitely until we need them.

Simply address your request, specifying the dates or numbers of the sets you require, to the Ripley Title Hunt Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Telegraph Square. Enclose 10c for each copy of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph and 3c for each copy of the daily Sun-Telegraph. Or you may proceed according to Rule 8. Make your start in the Title Hunt today!

230 CASH AWARDS

First Prize . . .	$250.00
Second Prize	100.00
Third Prize	75.00
Fourth Prize	50.00
Fifth Prize	25.00
25 Prizes at $10	250.00
100 Prizes at $5	500.00
100 Prizes at $2	200.00
Total (230 Cash Prizes)	$1,500

FOLLOW THESE RULES:

1—Everyone is eligible to participate in the Title Hunt except employes of the Sun-Telegraph and members of their families.

2—Every day from September 7 to October 6, inclusive, ten Ripley "Believe It or Not" pictures (without description) will be published in addition to the regular Ripley feature. The descriptions for each picture will be published in the Classified Ad columns.

3—The Title Hunt consists in finding the descriptions in the Classified Ads, clipping them out, and placing each under the picture to which it refers. The words making up each description will appear as a single unit in one place.

4—Hold all of the pictures until you have thirty complete sets of 10 each—300 pictures in all. Then send them into Ripley's Title Hunt Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Telegraph Square, Pittsburgh, Pa.

5—All entries must be postmarked not later than midnight, October 31. No entries will be returned to the sender.

6—$1,500.00 in cash prizes, in accordance with the complete prize list published herewith, will be paid to the persons sending in the most nearly correct and neatest complete set of pictures at the close of the Title Hunt.

7—A committee of judges will be appointed by the Sun-Telegraph to determine the successful contestants. All entrants agree to accept the decisions of the judges as final. In case of ties, a duplicate award will be given each tying contestant.

8—It is not necessary to purchase the Sun-Telegraph to compete. This newspaper may be examined at any of its offices or at the public libraries free of charge, and if you wish you may copy or trace the pictures as well as the descriptions from the Sun-Telegraph and then assemble the sets from the copies you have made.

ADDING TO HUMAN LIFE and HAPPINESS

After years of research science has demonstrated that the most effective method of correcting ailments is to administer directly into the Blood Stream the proper constituents necessary to incite the Leucocytes to do their intended work.

BLOOD CELL PROTEIN SERUM

The Quickest, Safest, Surest Road to Health

We are successfully treating Rheumatism, Neuritis, Skin Disorders, Asthma, Bronchitis, Stomach Trouble, Anemia, Kidney Trouble, Nervous Disorders, High Blood Pressure and Impure Blood, Boils, and Pimples.

Examination now may prevent years of suffering. An ailment checked before it becomes chronic is often easily overcome. Visit the laboratory and learn the truth.

Very many ailments go uncured because the underlying cause is never discovered or even looked for. Successful treatment of any disease follows only after careful and scientific examination.

Watch Your Blood Pressure.

When you feel yourself slipping—gradually failing to keep your place in the swift stream of modern life, take warning.

Watch carefully the heart, the lungs, the kidneys and digestion.

Seek first a careful, thorough and scientific examination—to be followed by the specially chosen serum suitable to your case.

Raquel and Pancho Leave Desert Village

CHAPTER LXVII

It was typical of Raquel that she made no reference to the bond that had brought about her last meeting with Johnson—nor to the ruthlessness with which she had broken that bond.

The past was past. It was done for. Only fools and weaklings dealt in it.

"You've got to help me, Bill," she said. "Shut up, Anna. Bill, shut her up, will you?"

He accomplished the miracle with a single wave of his huge hunk of a hand.

"It's Pancho," Raquel said. "We've got to get him out of town and on that train to Phoenix tonight. He won't go unless you do as I say."

Quickly, without waste of words, she told Johnson her plan. He was to find Pancho, to tell him the trap was all set to spring. One false move and Pancho's foot would be in it. He would be caught. And there could be no way of getting him out once the trap was sprung. Johnson was to offer to drive him across the desert that night to get him on a train for Phoenix, provided Pancho paid him the money he owed him.

"I oughtn't to do it," Johnson demurred. "Considerin' everything—"

"No, you shouldn't," Raquel agreed. "But you will."

"I reckon so," said Johnson, his heavy features lumping into a guilty smile. He was putty in Raquel's hands. He always had been. Even about that wedding trip to Frisco he never took, and the stone house he never built.

Pays Father's Debt

Raquel was hurrying Johnson into his boots. He had been sloshing around in an old pair of carpet slippers. He must get to the Rojos shack before she did. Call Pancho out. Give him the warning. She would slip in and finish packing.

"I want to pay you the money Pancho owes you, Bill," she said. "How much is it?"

He was beet-red, hesitant. "Oh, forget about that."

"How much is it?" she cut in as one who must not be denied.

He told her.

"I'll have it ready for you," she said. "Be sure you have good horses. The best you can get. We'll have to ride. My trunks can come later. If we're going to make that train we have to go at top speed every mile of the way."

Johnson was swallowed up by the shadows in the street.

"Anna," Raquel said, waiting for his footsteps to die out before she followed, "you've got to do something about the baby. He ought to have a specialist. You and Bill must bring him to New York. I'll see that Bill [illegible]s it."

[illegible]he fled down the steps. A [illegible] cry replacing Anna's [illegible]mper in her ears.

[illegible]ome hours later when dark[illegible]s had settled down in earn[illegible] three figures might have [illegible]n seen riding fleetly along [illegible] desert trail in the direction [illegible]he squalid huddle of adobe [illegible] and bleached weather[illegible] sheds that was dignified [illegible]etailed maps as a town.

Pancho Angry

[illegible]terprise, on snorting iron [illegible]s on two-railed paths had [illegible] even to this isolated and [illegible]-forsaken spot in an avari[illegible]s determination to effect [illegible] conquest of civilization.

"Some filthy dog squealed," mumbled Pancho, digging the [illegible] savagely into the flanks of his [illegible]. He swore great oaths that sent the stars scurrying to cover under flying clouds that seemed only too glad to hide the hatred and the black rage of the man from the pure light of heaven. "If I ever find out who it was—"

Pancho was spared the stretch of imagination required to mete out punishment for the "squealer."

"We're almost there," Raquel called to him over her shoulder.

Whereupon Pancho took to praying as eloquently that they would be there, and not too late, as in a breath before he had been blaspheming.

There was only time to dismount from the horses, say a hasty farewell to Johnson and climb aboard the rackety coach behind the panting iron horse.

Of that trip to New York Raquel remembered very little. Except that it was a torture of tremulous anticipation. She was so anxious to be back with Jerry. It was a severe test of filial duty. Pancho sullen, snarling, revenge-bitter. There was an agony of fear in which she moved helplessly toward Jerry and the great specialist who spun the thread of Jerry's fate. The giddy feeling in her head was increasing in frequency, also the weakness at the back of her knees.

Reach New York

When she thought endurance must surely give way and leave her with her purpose for Pancho incompleted, a mere smoking ruin of intention, she found the train had pulled into Grand Central Station.

A smile was left in her, it seemed, when she thought of how she had commandeered the boss's car and a stupid chauffeur had taken her for a ride through Central Park.

She hailed a taxi. Pancho, confused and heckled, was in her wake. He walked as one in a trance. Long ago, so long that memory whisked the nebulous vision away from him before he could grasp it, he had known places very like this. Long, long ago. In another life, maybe.

Raquel had not let Jerry know of her coming. He must be burning up the wires wondering why he did not hear from her. She didn't dare think about that. Besides, Lucy would let him know that she had gone from Hermosa. Lucy, moved out of her apathy at last by the swift turn of life's wheel that night she had helped Pancho get away.

How Lucy had clung to her and to Pancho! It was as much as Raquel could do to drag away Lucy's clinging hands. The wonder of it was heavy on Raquel's heart. A woman could cling to her man even after he had become as Pancho now was.

A New Pancho

"I don't want Jerry to meet us," she told herself. "There will be people staring eyes, whispering lips. I want to take Pancho to Jerry as he is. I want him to see the picture clearly. Then he can do as he thinks best."

And so it was Gerald Parker met the man who, he felt, was the one above all others who had infused steel ice into the soul of Raquel. The woman he loved beyond all things priceless on earth or in heaven—and the father who had failed her.

For a long time Jerry held Raquel close, covering her lips, her eyes, her hair with his hungry caress. Then he turned to Pancho.

"You are welcome in my house, Senor Rojos," he said gravely.

The great sinewy man with the bristling mustachios and the fierce black eyes bowed stiffly from the waist.

"Gracias, Senor," he said. "You do me honor."

Raquel stifled a little cry. Had she heard aright? Was this Pancho she looked upon? A voice modulated, silken, a manner gracious, graceful, with just a touch of condescension in it. The voice, the manner of Alphonse. The touch of the Latin.

She buried her face on Jerry's shoulder. There she could stem the torrent of hysteria that threatened to sweep her out to some pathless ocean of unreason.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Purchasing One's Own Corsage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am going to a Prom in the very near future. I would like very much to have a corsage and I'm quite sure the young man I'm going with isn't going to send me one. Is it correct to buy some flowers myself? Should I explain to him how I got them, or should he ask? Don't you think it will embarrass him?

2. When dancing with a young man and you make a mistake, who should apologize?

3. When a young man arrives to take you out and the maid's out, should I go to the door or should my mother?

GLADYS.

1. Don't worry about buying your own flowers for the party. Now, when flowers, especially shoulder corsages, are so much a part of the costume, it is quite correct for a girl to buy them, if she wishes to have this "extra added attraction" to her ensemble. The young man won't necessarily think anything about it, and won't be embarrassed. It is not necessary to explain to him about the flowers.

2. If you make the mistake, you should apologize, although a gallant partner will, of course, at once assure you that the fault is his. And don't make too many apologies, even if you make a good many mistakes, for it is certainly a deterrent to the enjoyment of a dance, and usually the more you apologize, the more mistakes you will make.

3. Either is correct—it depends on the convenience of the household.

The Groom's Attire

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it correct form for a bridegroom to wear a Tuxedo for an evening wedding?

A READER.

If the wedding is informal. If the wedding is formal, he would wear formal evening clothes.

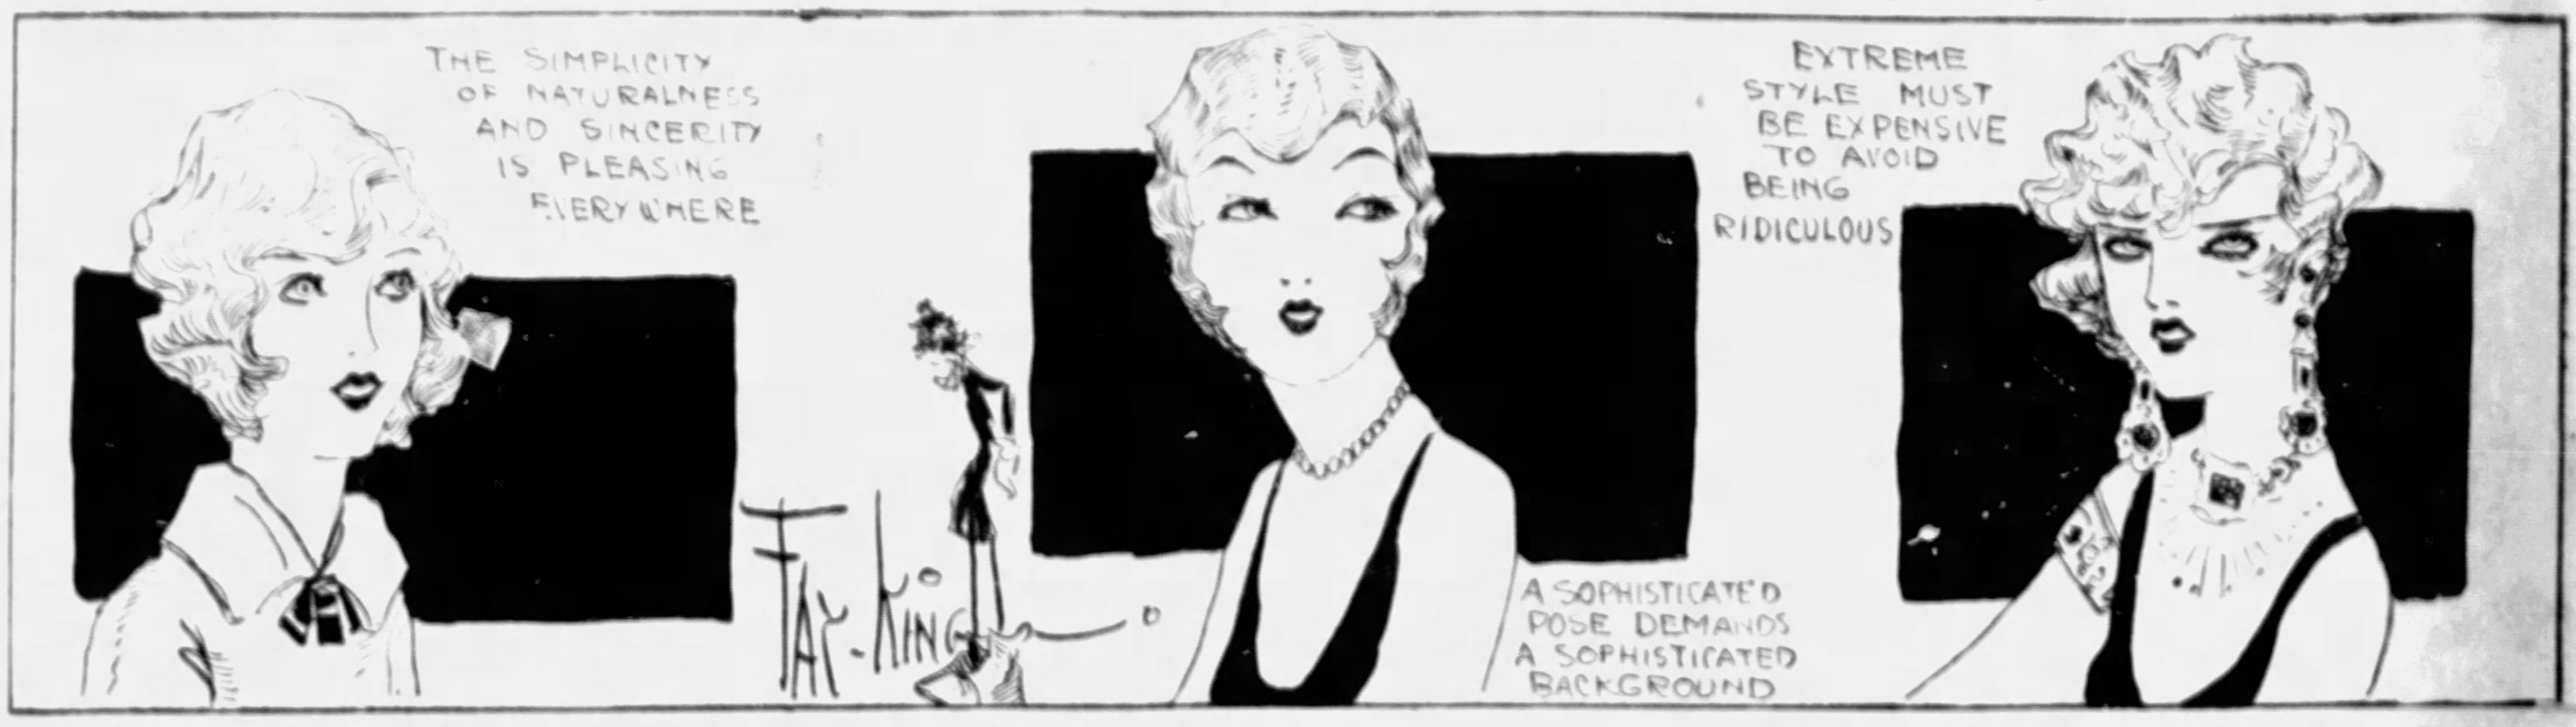
Pose Thrills at First Sight, Thuds at Second Thought, Says Fay King



THE SIMPLICITY OF NATURALNESS AND SINCERITY IS PLEASING EVERYWHERE
FAY-KING
A SOPHISTICATED POSE DEMANDS A SOPHISTICATED BACKGROUND
EXTREME STYLE MUST BE EXPENSIVE TO AVOID BEING RIDICULOUS

By FAY KING

No assumed pose or synthetic personality ever registers as well as the naturalness of just being your own sincere self.

To succeed at that rather bored poise, which is sometimes admired as sophistication, can only be after much travel, luxury and association in sophisticated circles.

A supercilious attitude calls for a superfluous background.

To succeed at being startlingly extreme, everything must be astonishingly expensive, or it will be utterly ridiculous.

For to keep them from laughing at your extreme taste, you must stun them with the price tag. To most persons nothing costly can be comic.

It is always safest to be simple and natural. You're not such a thrill at first sight, but you're not such a thud at second thought, either.

Scheme to Outwit Detective Seems Successful

Mr. Train was so naively pleased with his scheme for warning Mr. Hasbrouck of the danger of the icy road without arousing the detective's suspicions that I hated to suggest the slightest amendment to it.

"I think it's a very good plan," I told him heartily. "But how are we going to know you have succeeded? I am not usually a nervous woman, but my experience of this morning has shaken me unusually. I shall be very anxious—we all shall be—until we are assured of your safety and Mr. Hasbrouck's."

"I gather that your anxiety does not extend to the other man," Mr. Train said with a little laugh.

"No, it doesn't," I returned grimly. "I should be sorry to see anyone hurt, of course, but—I'm not wasting any worry on him."

"You're very wise," he returned, "and you don't need to waste any worry on Hasbrouck or me either. But you'll be able to know about us within the hour now. As soon as you've eaten your breakfast, if you don't take too long, you take turns watching the road from one of these front windows. Keep behind the curtains, but you won't need to take much pains, for the man won't have any idea that you're anywhere in the city. First you'll see Hasbrouck and the man drive past. Then a few minutes later I'll go past. You see, just as soon as they're out of sight after I've staged my fake breakdown, I'll turn around and drive slowly back. If they should happen to be stalled where they might catch sight of me I'll explain that I've been able to get the car going enough to let it limp to a garage. But I'm sure they'll be ahead of me all the way. I won't stop here, though, as an extra precaution, and I'll go three or four blocks before turning to the next street paralleling this and doubling back, so that I'll get into my garage from the side street. Now I must beat it. That's fine, mother."

He beamed as his wife came up to him with a tray whereon rested a cup of coffee and a filled paper bag.

He drank the coffee, then kissed his wife and hurried out. I was reassured by the casualness of the caress and by the undisturbed manner of the little woman. Evidently icy mountain roads were a commonplace in this section, and it was with a mind relieved of one fear that, with Lillian and Mary, I followed her out to the breakfast table.

It was a liberal interpretation of the meal which she gave us—fruit, cereal, crisp little sausages, griddle cakes, doughnuts, coffee and home-made strawberry preserves. Mary, with her young healthy appetite, ate everything appreciatively, despite the fact that we had breakfasted at the Hasbrouck table less than three hours before. But I could eat little, although I made the pretense of doing so because of Lillian, who had barely touched the food at Hasbrouck's, but who now was discussing Mrs. Train's breakfast with apparent relish. It was the first time she had permitted anything to pass her lips except under protest since the arrival of the letter from dying Robert Savarin starting us on this journey which had proved so full of excitement and tension.

I was glad that I had the excuse of Mr. Train's injunction to watch the roads, but when I mentioned it and rose from the breakfast table my little hostess' hospitality proposed to bring a tray with the rest of my breakfast to the window, and it took all of my persuasive powers to limit the contents of the tray to a cup of coffee and a single griddle cake.

My vigil was not a long one. It was less than a quarter of an hour before I saw the black roadster speed past. It went by so swiftly that I was not sure of its occupants, but I was quite sure that it contained two men and that the driver, nearest me, was the detective who had trailed us. Then five minutes later Mr. Train's car passed the house more slowly.

Mr. Train appeared five minutes later, his first words a crisp question:

"Did you see them?"

"Yes, I am sure they passed about five minutes ago. I couldn't see Mr. Hasbrouck, but I was certain of the roadster and reasonably sure of the driver."

"Well, they got down the mountain safely, anyway. That fellow has a peculiar set of tires and their track was plain until they turned into the main street here. Everything worked like a charm, just as I planned it, and I don't think the fellow suspected that my being there wasn't the accident it seemed to be. Now we've got nothing to do but wait for Egbert's telephone."

But it was over an hour before we heard from Mr. Hasbrouck, and then his message was not reassuring.

"Hold everything till I call again," he said. "I'm afraid this fellow is on to something."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, October 2

The lunar transits in strong influence on this day point to unusually important developments, with the augury of generally progressive and prosperous conditions. This applies to employment, labor, industry and those new ventures calling for originality and independent personal initiative. An important change or journey is imminent, attended by advancement, honors or preferment in recognition for unusual service or steadfastness to responsibilities. It is suggested that a measure of precaution be exercised in signing papers.

Those whose birthday it is have before them the prospect of an eventful year, with many splendid opportunities for progress and financial prosperity.

A child born on this day should be original, inventive, industrious and should rise to fine position and popularity.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

The Braver Sex

Aren't men brave?

There may be a few slackers in war-time, and a few who shrink at the thought of a fist-fight. But in LOVE, all men are positively heroic! They will marry ANYTHING—or anybody—once the notion seizes them.

I'M GOIN' TO GET MARRIED

By exactly what mental processes the average man chooses a life-partner will always remain one of the world's greatest mysteries. Or perhaps the mystery is that he doesn't USE any mental processes.

He will pass up a girl with a spotless reputation and a kind heart, but a long nose, for one with a purple past, a hard eye and brightly roughed lips, any day.

A divorcee who has made one or two men miserable has far rosier chances of marrying than a spinster who has never proved that she could make any man miserable. One divorce appears to be just a START on the road to marriage, these days.

A gold-digger with a glittering eye and honey-colored hair appeals to a man's Santa Claus instinct; while a fair-minded girl, who is satisfied with a movie show and a pretty calendar for Christmas apparently loses something of her value in his eyes.

A man with domestic tastes, who loves his food and his quiet home-evenings, will cheerfully marry a highbrow who can't boil an egg, or a butterfly who wants to play around at night clubs until morning—and then wonder why Heaven or Fate put the gypsy's curse on him.

Don't ask me WHY. I'm asking YOU?

Why will a man marry a temperamentalist who broke all the bric-a-brac over her first husband's head—and never stop to provide himself with a steel helmet and a bottle of arnica?

Why does a man with a flivver income take a chance on happiness with a girl who is noted for her limousine tastes?

Why does a woman's spotted "past" always inspire a man with the desire to make her future bright and rosy?

You've got to admire their BRAVERY. But, there are times when "discretion is the better part of valour." And the chief of these is the wedding day!

Furnishing Your Home

Comfortable Chairs

A comfortable chair. Yourself in it. Now. Reading this article. Probably a lamp on a table beside you, placed to give the best possible light.

Stop reading a minute and look around the room you are in. Pleasant, isn't it? Looking as though it were meant to be lived in.

For contrast listen to this description of the salon, or living room, of a typical Paris apartment. It was only one of many recently inspected by Mrs. Louis Bromfield, wife of the novelist, in her search for a place to live. In a recent magazine article, she tells of her experiences.

"It (the furniture) is PUT, not arranged, in sets. In the middle of the room and for no apparent reason, either comfort or beauty, a sedan chair in gilt. . . . Many, many tables; many, many bibelots. . . . Nothing has apparently been selected for a particular place or room, neither color nor effect has been considered, and comfort is a thing unknown."

One of the ways we make our living room attractive and comfortable is the intimate grouping of chairs, and tables and lamps.

Not sets of these things, but separate pieces carefully chosen to harmonize with each other and with the rest of the room . . . and placed to give the maximum of comfort and usefulness.

Pieces in the spirit of American Colonial furniture may be assembled in one group. The chair — the comfortable and fashionable wing chair into which you sink so cozily. By its side, a butterfly drop-leaf table in maple or mahogany (depending on the other woods in your room), with a pewter lamp designed like the oil lamps of early American days.

* * *

The Sheraton type arm chair dates to the third group as late eighteenth century English design. The drop-leaf table, while typically Duncan Phyfe and therefore American, is of the same period and in harmony with the chair. The lamp suggests the formal candlesticks of the period.

When the Ice Is Low

If the ice is low, place the small piece in a pan or bowl which will fit in the ice compartment. Around the ice place bottles of milk or anything requiring special attention. Then when the ice melts the articles are in cold water and the usefulness of the ice is prolonged.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Should the 'Unmarried Mother' Hide Her Face in Shame From the World?

Does life hold anything more for the woman with a nameless child?

Has she a right to laughter and love and joy like other folks? Or must she pay for her sin by shunning the eyes of the world, by hard drudging toil, by walking the rest of her life in sackcloth and ashes?

Sylvie's mother says she hasn't and she must.

Do you think she is right?

Here is the whole, tragic, terrible story.

"Dear Miss Martin: I wonder if you can't shed a little light on my terrible darkness. You help so many people. Won't you please help me? Maybe you'll say I don't deserve help when you read my story. But oh, I do need it so much!

"I'll tell you the worst at once and get it over with. I am the mother of a fatherless baby. Yes, it was all my own fault. I'm not blaming anyone else. I thought I was such a Wise Kid . . . it seems centuries ago, but it wasn't. Only three years. And I thought I was having such a grand time petting and going on joy rides and wild parties. And what a fool I turned out to be!

"Of course, if my mother had ever really talked to me things might have been different. But she didn't. Oh, she had a lot to say, of course, about 'bad girls' and the like. But she never did talk to me from the standpoint of good, ordinary common sense.

"In fact, I got the idea that she was just an old fogey who didn't know what she was talking about. And I wasn't going to listen to any old fogey ideas. I couldn't see anything 'bad' about going out for a good time.

"And then it happened. I discovered that I was going to have a baby. Shortly after, the man who was responsible left town. I was working in town then. My folks live in the country. And I kept on working as long as I could. Then finally, I told my mother. She was furious. Of course, I don't blame her for that. She scolded and reviled me. And when the baby was born she insisted that I let it be adopted by someone. But when I first held it in my arms something awoke. I just could not give it up.

"It is almost a year old now, and oh, I do love it so. It is a little girl. But my mother still says I am a fool to keep it. Not a day passes but that she calls it 'that little brat' and taunts me with having disgraced her. I work as hard as I can, all day long, but still she nags me that she and Dad can't afford to raise another child. Yet if I talk about going away, she wails that they need me to work at home . . . and shouts that I have no right to go out or show myself before folks, since I have brought this disgrace into the world.

"Is she right?

"Is there no chance for me to ever be happy again, or make anything of my life? When I see other people, respected and going about their happy affairs, it almost breaks my heart to be like this.

"Is there no chance for a girl with a baby? What shall I do?

"SYLVIE."

You poor youngster! How I wish I could scoop you up in my arms and comfort the hurt . . . and take some of the sting out of that shame—and then send you out into the world with your head held high and a couple of wallops in both fists.

For you have a right to hold your head high, little girl! You were a reckless young fool once . . . but you've wiped out that score by your courage and love. It takes a very great spirit to face such an ordeal as you faced, and endure such persecution as you're enduring, for the sake of a baby. And there's many a "regular" mother who wouldn't go through half what you've gone through, without yelling her head off.

So stop cringing in corners! Stop loathing yourself. Put the past behind you. Look forward, with shining eyes, to the future, and fight, kid, fight!

Fight for your own sake, and even more, fight for your baby's sake. Don't let her live one day more in an atmosphere poisoned by your mother's hate and fear and intolerance. Yes, I know I'm about to arouse a cackling chorus in defense of Poor Dear Mamma. Save your cackles, ladies, I'm a mamma myself, and I know just how many wreaths we're entitled to . . . and how many we're not!

And I tell you, that any mother who won't stand by her girl better than this mother is doing is a disgrace to the Union.

Walk out on her, kid. Go out and make a life for yourself and the baby, as you would have done if you had married. Get a job. Put the baby in some good day nursery, or in the charge of some kind, motherly woman—and live again! Live happily! Live proudly! Live so that your little daughter will honor and respect you, and bless the day she came to you. And here's one mother, youngster, who'll bet her last nickel on you! You're the Real Stuff, Kid. Up and at 'em! Shoot the works!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Swimming Good Exercise, But Know Bathing Place

In the past decade swimming has made rapid strides as an exercise and as a recreation. It is becoming more and more popular every year and is now recognized as one of the best forms of sport and exercise.

DR COPELAND

In olden days we gave little thought to the hygienic side of bathing. It is a far cry from the old swimming hole to the present day popular bathing beaches where thousands go into seaside and inland waters, or to our finely equipped swimming pools. Years ago no such throngs went into the water together as are now seen everywhere.

With the popular bent for swimming there have come health problems. Public bathing beaches have sprung up everywhere. As they grew public health officials everywhere looked upon them as sources of danger through transmission of certain diseases. Among others, it has been thought typhoid fever, some social disease, diphtheria, ear and sinus troubles and other diseases have had public bathing places as their source.

Up to five or six years ago the construction, equipment and operation of these public bathing places varied much in different states and in different localities within a state. Many pools were poorly constructed and improperly equipped. There were no state control measures controlling such swimming places.

Through the co-operation of the public engineering section of the American Public Health Association and the Conference of State Sanitary Engineers a better state of affairs has been reached.

We cannot be too careful where we bathe. Dirty water is a dangerous thing. It usually contains the germs of disease. Even though it appears clear, it may be contaminated. You must think of this when your boy or girl takes to the water just anywhere.

During the summer months haven't you seen boys diving into the brown, ugly waters surrounding a great city? In New York City you can see them along the shores of the Hudson or the dirty waters of the East River when your train runs along its shores.

During the fall and winter months swimming may now be carried on in well-managed bathing houses and swimming pools. Under the right sanitary conditions they provide splendid exercise and recreation.

It is well to remind ourselves that a thorough physical examination should precede any amount of swimming that is of a violent nature. It is very easy to overdo unless one is in good condition.

Earnings depend upon sturdy health

When your red blood cell count is only 80% you are not yourself ··· 60% is dangerous

EARNINGS depend largely upon effort . . . but you cannot do your best when you are only half well. Neither can you save without earnings—and by the same token sturdy health makes for steady employment.

A lowered red-blood-cell count makes the system an easy prey to infection and disease. Such a condition robs you of vigor and strength . . . and perhaps may affect your earnings.

Avoid going too near the danger line

When you suspect your health is gradually slipping away act wisely by checking this tendency before a crisis comes about.

The red-cells build muscular and mental energy. When you restore them body impurities silently pass away . . . then you possess a wonderful power of new life and vitality.

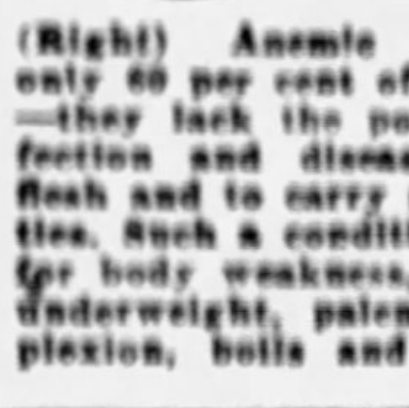
S.S.S. should be your safeguard

Take S.S.S. before meals. Millions of people have found this the easiest and surest way to keep themselves "fit." Your whole body will be strengthened, invigorated! S.S.S. successful record of over 100 years in building red-cells in the blood is a guarantee of satisfaction.

How to recognize a low blood count

Fatigue without any apparent cause, sluggishness, loss of appetite, loss of body weight, paleness, boils and pimples are outstanding symptoms of a LOW RED-BLOOD-CELL COUNT. The red-cells are your body builders. They carry nourishment to every part of the body. Also, they remove impurities from the tissues. When your red-cells drop to 60 per cent of normal strength, you haven't the proper number of workers to keep you "fit." 60 per cent of normal is dangerous.

S.S.S.—the great blood tonic—stimulates the blood-building organs to supply the necessary red-cells. Your appetite picks up, your body is strengthened, invigorated—you feel like yourself again!



(Left) Microscopic view of healthy red-blood-cells. The blood stream should contain about 5,000,000 of these cells to the cubic millimeter. They carry nourishment and oxygen to every part of the body. Also, they remove impurities from the tissues.

(Right) Anemic red-blood-cells—only 60 per cent of normal strength—they lack the power to resist infection and disease or to rebuild flesh and to carry away the impurities. Such a condition is responsible for body weakness, loss of appetite, underweight, paleness, sallow complexion, boils and pimples.

HOLLYWOOD AND GOTHAM HAPPENINGS; LOCAL THEATER NOTES

Studio Weaving Mystery Around German Star, Marlene Dietrich

By HARRISON CARROLL.

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, October 1.

Paramount is frankly trying to make its new German star, Marlene Dietrich, a woman of mystery.

The latest step is to discourage interviews either by newspaper writers or magazine correspondents. It is explained that Miss Dietrich doesn't care much about publicity. Behind this, one suspects, is the deliberate attempt to cast an aura of uncertainty around the star.

Marlene Dietrich

And why not? The same policy has worked very well with Greta Garbo. One doesn't mention the obvious parallel to Paramount. The studio is emphatic that they are not trying to imitate Garbo. In fact they talk of tearing away the shroud if such an idea gets out.

To date, however, Miss Dietrich is a woman of mystery.

Rumor has it that Joseph von Sternberg is responsible for the plan. It was he who discovered the star in Germany, and who was responsible for her getting a contract at Paramount. It was he who directed her first American picture "Morocco."

LUXURY

A special car has been provided for the radio team of Amos 'n' Andy when they leave here Friday for the East. In order that their broadcast may not be interrupted, orders have been sent for a booth to be equipped in Ogden, Utah, where the train stops Saturday night. The two radio phenomena have finished their first picture, "Check and Double Check," at R-K-O.

EXPENSIVE CAST

Inadvertantly this department has slighted John Francis Dillon, the director. It is he and not Joe Brown, who directs "Millie" for Charles Rogers. Incidentally Mr. Rogers aims high for this production. He is negotiating for the services of Robert Armstrong. Inasmuch as Armstrong gets about $100,000 for five pictures under his Pathe contract, it is obvious that he will not be got cheaply if at all.

LANGUAGE PRACTICE

During the lull at First National, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., will make a French version for this studio.

It isn't decided what the film will be but Doug, Jr., is set.

Back in his childhood the actor lived for some time in France. He was an art student in the Montmartre.

By the way, Doug, Jr., doesn't believe that his famous father will make many more pictures. The suspicion is borne out by Doug's own attitude. He has freely discussed the possibility of retirement. Like Charlie Chaplin, he has never liked the talkies. But unlike Charlie, he doesn't think it worth-while to try to buck them.

HIGH COST OF CLEANING

Cleaning Will Rogers' suit cost Fox about $5,000 during the now famous location trip of the "Lightnin'" company.

After a hard day's work the star thoughtlessly sent a jacket d pair of pants to the cleaners. en he arrived on the set the t morning the script girl nptly spotted that he had on rent clothes.

hen, to make matters worse forgot which cleaners he had the garments to. As there none like them available property department had to ute a search among all the lishments in the town.

e clothes were finally located he loss of time is estimated ve cost the company $5,000.

d Engine House Rented for Golf

The old fire engine house at Highland avenue and Broad street is to become a miniature golf course.

Council yesterday approved the lease of the property to J. M. Houston at $100 a month, the latter to pay for light and heat. The lease is on a 30-day basis. The structure formerly was occupied by No. 2 Engine Company.

City Gift to War Memorial Approved

An appropriation of $1,500 as a contribution to the Service Star Legion's erection of a war memorial in Schenley Park has been approved by the finance committee of Council. The memorial, after months of delay, has been approved by the Art Commission. The organization plans to dedicate it Armistice Day.

MOTHER, DAUGHTER TO APPEAR HERE IN SAME PLAY

When Ethel Barrymore makes her first appearance here as the Gullah Negress in "Scarlet Sister Mary" in the Shubert-Alvin Theater next week her daughter, Ethel Barrymore Colt, will be seen for the first time in Pittsburgh acting the role of Seraphine, daughter of Si Mary, the part her mother plays. Miss Colt represents the fifth generation of the Barrymore-Drew family in the theater.

Mme. Alla Nazimova, for many years absent from Pittsburgh, returned to the legitimate stage two years ago after having paid her tribute to the screen in a number of successful pictures. Her return was marked by her first appearance in plays of her own countryman, Chekov, at Eva Le Gallienne's theater. Last season she joined the Theater Guild to play the leading role in Turgenev's comedy "A Month in the Country" which will be presented at the Nixon next week.

NEW MOVIE HOUSE

A crew of workmen and architects are busy putting the finishing touches on the new Fulton Theater, Sixth street, for the opening Saturday morning. The first booking is Claudette Colbert and Frederic March in Paramount's oral film version of Alice Duer Miller's "Manslaughter." Ernest Lubitsch's "Monte Carlo" and Gary Cooper in Rex Beach's Northern classic "The Spoilers" are early bookings for the new house.

The George Sharp Players next week will present a farce comedy, "Elizabeth Sleeps Out." It is said to be a fast moving play.

Captain Menke's Players, now on their eleventh week on the Golden Rod Showboat at Montrose, are presenting the old melodrama, "Ten Nights in a Barroom," for a second week.

Purchasing Agents Will Hold Meeting

Members of the Sixth District of the National Association of Purchasing Agents will hold their annual convention here October 16 and 17 with E. R. Norris, general works manager of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, one of the speakers. The meetings will be held in the William Penn Hotel. Purchasing agents of Ohio, Illinois and Pennsylvania cities will attend.

Pitt Faculty Plans Reception to Head

Members of the faculty of the University of Pittsburgh will give their annual reception to Dr. John G. Bowman, chancellor, Friday evening, October 17. The event will be held in the Faculty Club, from 8 until 11 o'clock.

Resignation

I am a dreamer, living in the past
Of silver nights that came and swiftly went;
Your lovely ghost still owns the power to cast
A cloak of romance over nights we spent;
I am a vagrant, fallen by the way,
Stripped of the kingly cloak that once was mine,
Yet as I dream old dreams of yesterday,
Glamour steals back—a rare and heady wine.

There was a time my kisses did not pall,
There was a time you trembled at my touch;
Now as all beauty dies before the Fall,
I know that nothing matters overmuch;

And since the heart must have its seasons, too—
I am so glad that Spring was spent with you!
—Don Wahn

Two-Gun Ethel

Ethel Barrymore's great ambition in life, to hear her talk, is to shoot newspapermen—preferably critics, one presumes. There was the time, some of you probably recall, that she said one of us ought to be shot at dawn and now, according to a Columbus, Ohio, rag's reporter, Ethel is gunning again.

The reporter suggested to Miss Barrymore via the telephone after her premiere in "Scarlet Sister Mary" that she might be dissatisfied with her new starring vehicle.

"Why, I think it is the greatest play I ever had," she said, "and if you dare say anything else I'll shoot your heart out!"

Now looka here, Miss Capone!

In Fewer Words

Take it from George Jean Nathan there is no such thing as a dirty theme. There are only dirty playwrights.

Forms of Criticism

Added to our Crisp Cracks from Caustic Critics Department, The Exhibitor's-Herald-World:

"Even the pretty effects of the all-technicolor could not make you forget that the star would fit in well between two slices of rye bread."

And: "Most critics said of the leading man that he played the role of a half-caste, and we can only sigh at the opportunity they had for using a more appropriate word—miscast."

Nifty

Leave it La Guinan to furnish a laugh when you want one most. At the opening of her new boobyhatch on 54th St., the other yawning, Texas introduced Judge Shephard, of Florida.

"Can you introduce Judge Crater?" interrupted a clown.

"I can do everything," snapped Guinan, "except magic."

Squelch

And when a certain actress (who puts her hat on with a shoe horn) snubbed her when Tex tried to be affable, Tex turned on her high voltage sarcasm.

"See here," yelled the reckless Texas, "don't put on the Ritz with me. I heard you were thrown out of there last week!"

Izzatso?

Al Dubin, who has the distinction of writing more hit songs for the chin-emas than you or you, was discussing Heywood (Columnist) Broun's candidacy for Congress.

"The reason more columnists do not run for something," Dubin hissed, "is that they are too busy running FROM something."

Is my space read?

O, Mr. Wilstach!

Recommended for Frank Wilstach's "Dictionary of Similes": Arthur (Bugs) Baer: The public like a pig in a sausage which doesn't know the shape it's in, and Comfortable as a horse-collar on a mule, and Coming around slowly like a "yes" man with a stiff neck, and Foolish as saving an old love letter from a sailor, and Everything was on the up-and-up like an asparagus patch . . . Newspaperman Stuff

Lord Castlerosse, the visiting London journalist, recalls the time when he was a cub reporter and how he was rebuffed by a prominent Britisher he went to interview.

"Your wife," said Castlerosse, "has run away with your best friend!"

"Really," was the indifferent reply, "why did she run?"

Fickle Broadway

Some one may have already shown you the gesture that accompanies the remark: "Good old Broadway and its loyal pals" (then you run your index finger across the throat as though the digit were a razor). But what we started out to say was that at a recent movie premiere 20 cops were assigned to check the expected crowds which didn't congest the pavement.

"How is he doing?" a rival asked another. "Well," was the devastating but mercilessly truthful retort, "they should have sent the cops into the theater to help fill up the orchestra."

The Alibi Swelegant

Helen Plunker encountered one of those boasting but incessantly idle movie hams on Broadway the other afternoon.

"You're getting to be the champion lay-off in the world, aren't you?" said Helen, who hasn't worked so steady herself.

"What do you mean?" answered the lad, who is an actor between promises, "didn't you see me in 'The Big House'—that prison movie?"

"I saw Chester Morris in that picture," said Helen, "and I saw Leila Hyams and Robert Montgomery in it. But I didn't see you! What part did you play?"

"Solitary confinement," was the reply.

Permit for School Pupils' Buses Asked

Mathew Cesario, of Punxsutawney, has asked the Public Service Commission to grant him two certificates of operation. He wants to transport high school pupils from Ringgold and Baller to Punxsutawney.

The Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh Railroad Company, which operates one train in each direction, offered no objection to a certificate.

GOLF, BOWLING TAX HEARING

A hearing on the proposal to tax bowling alleys $2.50 per alley per month will be held by Council next Wednesday. Bowling alleys do not pay a city tax at present, although pool rooms do. The same ordinance, delayed for the hearing, taxes miniature golf courses.

Late this afternoon hearings will be held on the ordinance prohibiting left turns on the Boulevard of the Allies, protested by the United States postoffice, and on a change in the zoning of property at Ridge and Galveston avenues.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Beller, ringmaster of the Beller & Swarney Circus, is killed under mysterious circumstances. Emily, an ill-tempered elephant, tramples him to death. Queen Anne, the star aerialist, is attacked in her wagon-home by an unknown person. Dale, called in by Swarney to investigate, learns that Beller's death was probably not accidental, but deliberate murder. Swarney admits bitter arguments with Beller over ownership of the circus.

Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER III.

The mess tent was set up on the other side of the grounds. It was a huge, flat canvas top open at the sides. The performers used one long table. The roustabouts and helpers had separate tables in the rear near the galley.

For some reason which Dale never learned the freaks kept apart, having a table of their own. The bearded lady, the tattooed man, a family of midgets and the wild man were at lunch when Dale came under the top with Roy Swarney. Dale could not help noticing the group of pathetic, ridiculous humanity. As long as he remained at that circus he never saw one of them smile.

They were a race apart, it seemed, buffoons for a heartless world to laugh at. But they never laughed. The wild man had a bone and was gnawing on it, bent over, head close to his platter.

Tito, the blonde girl, was there, in a tight-fitting white uniform with silver buttons. She sat at the far end, with a clown, quite apart from the rest. The clown looked incongruous, with a huge, padded costume, a tiny hat, and, as yet, no make-up on his face. The face was cold and stern and the finger of time had lined it with deep furrows. Plenty of grease-paint to fill them up.

Father and daughter, Dale learned. He was Beebo Meister, Beebo, the great clown, who made little boys and girls laugh when he fell down and bumped his head or something more delicate. But those deep lines on the old man's face . . . Dale kept coming back to them. Later that day he was to learn that time had not traced them all.

"There's a scar across his face," Swarney explained when Dale spoke about the old man that afternoon. "Beller did it to get a laugh. Beller, was ringmaster, you know. Beebo was leadin' his clowns in some crazy antics, passin' Beller's ring. Beller snapped out with his whip, the end of it cutting into Beebo's cheek. The blood ran and the clown groveled around in the sawdust, writhing in pain. The audience howled in glee, it was the best performance Beebo has ever given. That was two years ago. Beebo's hated Beller ever since—not only that, either . . . Beller had his eye on Tito an' that's the old man's one treasure in life."

"Then . . . then he might have . . ."

"No, Dale, I can't imagine old Beebo killin'."

That was later, but it filled in something that had started in the mess tent.

Others had come into the table, but Dale was watching Tito and Beebo. She was a bareback rider, born in a tent, bred to the sawdust ring. The girl rarely glanced up. Occasionally the father would speak in low tones. Once she turned abruptly at his words and answered, rather sharply. Then Beebo's voice rose that it could be heard the full length of the table. It was vibrant, sharp, almost with a sob in it.

"I find him! I find him! He go like that dog Beller! You tell me truth yet—you see!"

Tito rose from the table and ran from the tent. Dale did not see her again until she rode into the ring during the afternoon performance, standing atop a beautiful white horse.

"He goes on like that often," Swarney whispered to Dale. "I guess everything isn't all right with Tito an' the old man's nearly crazy."

"Who?"

Swarney merely shrugged his shoulders.

"Beller?" Dale questioned again.

The way Swarney shrugged then he might as well have said yes.

The picturesque figure in the light blue riding breeches came in with a lady, all done up in spangles. Dale was introduced. Cap Wiegle, who trained and had charge of the animals . . . the lady, Adele, the ringmaster, the widow of Jeff Beller.

They walked away and sat by themselves on one side of the table. She had long, bronze hair which hung loosely over her shoulders. She was quite young, about 30, Dale guessed, well-developed, fascinating to men and undoubtedly so to Cap Wiegle. He rarely took his eyes from her during the entire meal. Although Beller, her husband, was only dead a week, she smiled occasionally at words Wiegle spoke for her ears alone.

Dale met Dan McLaughlin, master of the crew, on the way out of the tent.

"Mac, this is Mr. Dale, from one of the New York papers. He's writing a story for us, so give him the run of the place."

"He's got it. If you want me, Dale, you'll usually find me under the big tent. Got to hurry an' chow—we open up in an hour."

Crossing the grounds, Dale brought up the subject of Adele.

"Beautiful woman. That Cap Wiegle seems pretty smitten with her. Goin' on before Beller's death?" asked Dale.

"She ought to stay away from him!" There was a peculiar note in Swarney's voice—jealousy. Just that and Dale realized Adele's charms had also wrought havoc with Swarney. He sensed the slip and covered up quickly. "Oh, it's nothin' serious. I couldn't think of her havin' anything to do with Beller's death—nor him either. It'd be too obvious, wouldn't it? Anyway, he's married."

"Where's his wife?"

"You'll see her—bill her as Queen Anne, does an aerial act, one of the best. Anne does a double somersault in the air, one of our biggest features."

Dale saw the act during the afternoon performance. It was a thriller. Anne was a small thing, as lithe and supple as a panther. She sailed back and forth from trapeze to trapeze, high above the crowd, performing her death-defying acts without the aid of a net.

But for the grim business which had brought Robin Dale there he would have enjoyed the circus as much as the kids did.

But through it all his pleasure shadowed by a specter which spread a pall over the entire proceedings.

Queene Anne, was it menacing her as she swung dizzily through the air? Adele, standing in the center of the ring, commanding, snapping the long whip, did she feel it? Tito springing lightly from the ground to the back of a galloping steed, then to the ground again, through the hoops, through a wall of fire—Dale felt that she realized the ominous danger encompassed within the canvas walls.

Beebo, the delight of the youngsters, shouted and laughed and played the fool. Dale marveled at the effort of the old man.

Cap Wiegle held the stage for his allotted time. One side of the circus seats gave way to a huge iron cage. This was directly opposite the midway. This cage was permanent. A gate, at the rear, when opened, gave to the lion's wagons. Three huge beasts were let into Cap Wiegle's large cage and there, standing dauntlessly in their midst, he made them perform. It took courage. Dale told Swarney, who sat beside him during the performance, that he felt a lot better on the right side of that iron cage.

Bravery, courage, teasing with death. . . . Dale saw them all through the performance. The unseen thing, death striking in the back, in the dark, was more ominous than all of them. Soon it would deal its blow, how soon not even Robin Dale suspected.

For Troubles due to Acid
INDIGESTION ACID STOMACH HEARTBURN HEADACHE GASES NAUSEA

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should learn all about Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book "Useful Information." It will be sent you. FREE. Write The Phillips Co., 170 Varick St., New York, N. Y.

In buying, be sure to get only genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

Modern Method Lift Them Out

CORNS

Callouses Go, Too

The safest and real modern way to remove corns, root and all—out to stay is soak them every night for 3 or 4 nights in an invigorating, stimulating Radox Footbath.

Then put on modish shoes again, walk and dance with greatest comfort because there's nothing left to ache. No pain, no trouble.

Radox liberates oxygen which softens hard outer layer of corn, each night penetrating further and further thru the pores, carrying the salts to actual root of corn, so loosening it that it comes right out. Nothing like healthy, free from corn feet to assure happy days! Get a package of Radox at Mayflower Drug Stores or any drug store.

Get Better Performance at Regular Gas Price

If the only thing necessary to produce a better regular gasoline was to carry an advertisement in the newspaper saying so, all of the oil companies would sell the best.

But we thought motorists wanted more than just words--we thought they were seeking better performance.

So we sought a new crude--and found it. We built a new refinery, one of the world's largest. We discovered a new process.

And today Orange American Gas gives better all-around performance than anything else at its price--not better performance in the newspapers but better performance in modern automotive engines, including yours. Try it today.

19 FACE TRIAL IN 'GAS' PLOT

CHICAGO, Oct. 1—(AP.)—Seven true bills, naming 19 men and one woman, were voted by the county grand jury in connection with what state investigators describe as a gasoline bootlegging fraud that has cost the state some $2,000,000 in the Chicago territory alone by failure to pay the state tax.

Hugh Norris, head of the Department of Oil Inspection in this district, and William F Gorman, his chief deputy, were among those named in the one bill, which charged conspiracy to omit and neglect to perform their duties. Specifically it is charged that they allowed 500 carloads of gasoline to come in uninspected and unreported.

Other indictments returned charge violations of the state gasoline tax law by failure to make a report on various amounts of gasoline.

Balm Defendant Told to Name Man

NEW YORK, Oct. 1—(AP.)—Joseph B. Whitehead, Coca-Cola millionaire, was ordered to disclose the full names of seven prominent men with whom he says Mrs. Annette S. Bracy, a young widow, was friendly.

The order, from Supreme Court Justice Hammer, won for Mrs. Bracey the first skirmish in her $500,000 breach of promise suit against Whitehead. In his answear Whitehead declared he broke with Mrs. Bracy because of her friendship with other men. Attorneys asked a bill of particulars.

Ridgway Council Backs Bond Issue

RIDGWAY, Pa., Oct. 1—Unanimous approval for a $60,000 bond issue for the improvement and reconstruction of the water works and distribution system was given at a special meeting of the town council. The proposition will be submitted at the election November 4.

"THINK KONJOLA WONDERFUL" SAYS PITTSBURGH MAN

Stomach Ailment and Run Down Condition Soon Banished By New Medicine.

Medicines, like men, are known by what they have actually done, not by the claims and promises that are made for them. The record of Konjola has made this master-compound America's most talked-of medicine. The Konjola Man at the Dow drug store, Penn avenue and Sixth street, Pittsburgh, is prepared to tell you all about this master-medicine. Now read the interesting statement of Mr. Charles M. Martz, 101 East Montgomery Avenue, Pittsburgh:

MR. CHARLES M. MARTZ

"For six months I was in a badly run down condition and suffered from stomach trouble. I had tried different kinds of medicine and did not seem to get any better. Through friends I heard of the results people were getting from Konjola. Up to this time I have taken four bottles of this medicine. Before I finished the third bottle I could see that I was getting results. I sleep and eat better and I seem to have a great deal more "pep." The reason I am endorsing this medicine is because it has done exactly what the Konjola Man said it would. I really think it is a wonderful medicine."

Konjola is free from alcohol, nerve-deadening drugs or heart depressing chemicals. It is all pure medicine and every drop works. Even infants can take Konjola.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow drug store, Penn avenue and Sixth street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily. Konjola is sold also at all Dow drug stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

Whether we can or can't prove it, most of us are satisfied that the town's joints pay substantial protection money. But, if we are to believe testimony brought out in Criminal Court, a constable set a new high, or low, for such racketeering when he tried to "shake down" the owner of a minature golf course. The betting is now eight to five that before Christmas comes a far-sighted racketeer will be collecting protection money on baby's tassel caps.

Newspaper photographers generally are not opposed to debutantes, but it is the truth nevertheless that the photographers like to see the fashionable young ladies falling off horses. The good photographer's true explanation is simply that he wants a good picture. And a picture of a pretty girl falling off a horse in a society atmosphere is a good picture.

It was only justice, then, when the tables were pleasantly turned on Ray Baird, camera man, at Rolling Rock a few days ago. Mr. Baird was standing by, his lips moving in prayer that something would happen. Something did. Baird's camera was resting idly in an arm. The sun beat through the camera lens, converged on the focal plane shutter and set the whole thing afire. Mr. Baird escaped injury, but it would have been a great joke on Mr. Baird if a debutante had arranged, while he was inconvenienced, to fall off her horse right before his very eyes. Imagine the laugh all of Pittsburgh's debutantes would have had on Ray Baird.

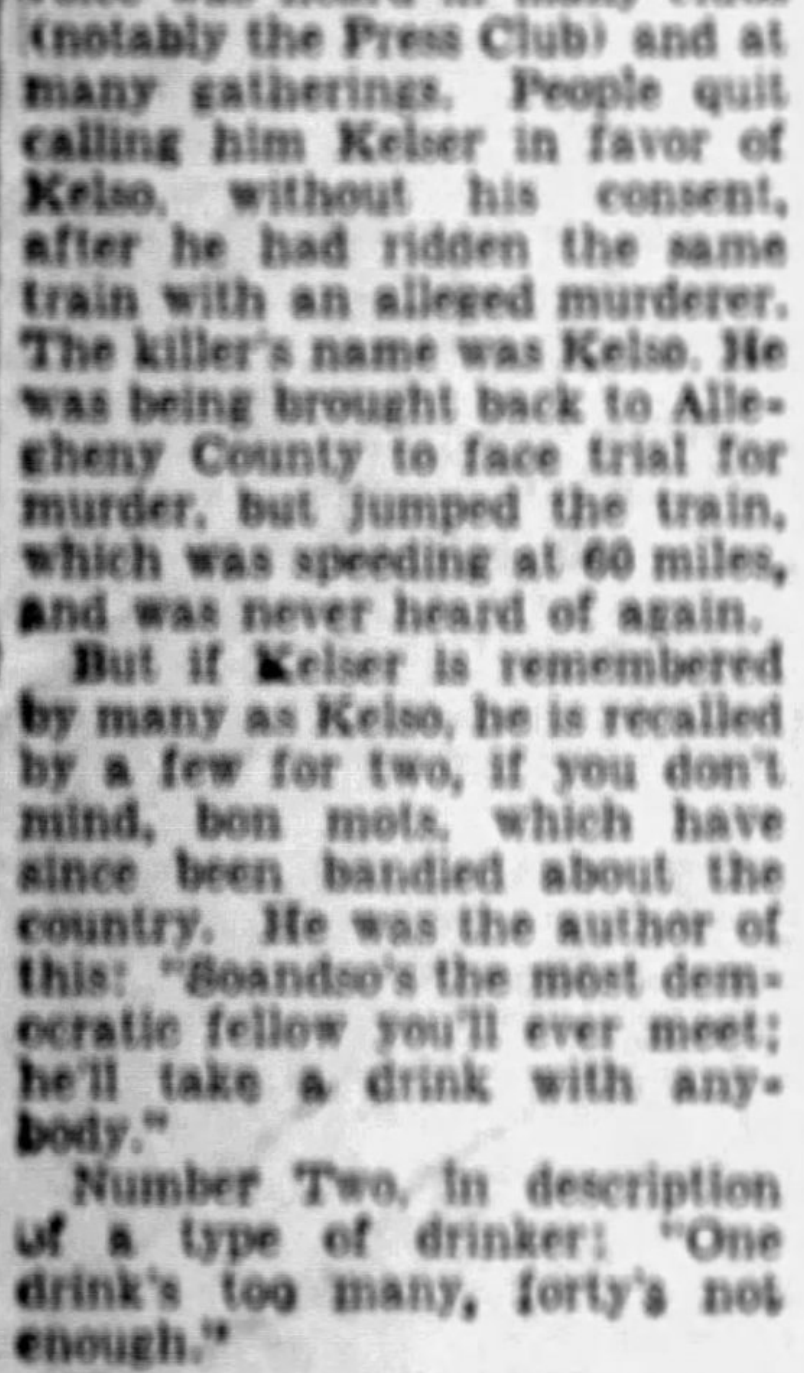
Most Pittsburghers remember the gospel wagon which years ago was one of the downtown sights. The gospel wagon was an unpretentious affair, flat and painted white. On each unsturdy floor was an unsturdy organ whose unmelodic noises encouraged the half-dozen workers who would save you from the road to ruin. Each Sunday night the wagon was stationed in Ross street and loafers would congregate to hear the sermons and the singing. They say that prisoners in the nearby county jail used to complain.

Old-timers remember Bill Keiser, one-time boss telegrapher in Pittsburgh. His bass voice was heard in many clubs (notably the Press Club) and at many gatherings. People quit calling him Keiser in favor of Kelso, without his consent, after he had ridden the same train with an alleged murderer. The killer's name was Kelso. He was being brought back to Allegheny County to face trial for murder, but jumped the train, which was speeding at 60 miles, and was never heard of again.

But if Keiser is remembered by many as Kelso, he is recalled by a few for two, if you don't mind, bon mots, which have since been bandied about the country. He was the author of this: "Soandso's the most democratic fellow you'll ever meet; he'll take a drink with anybody."

Number Two, in description of a type of drinker: "One drink's too many, forty's not enough."



BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 1.

To the Editor of the Sun Telegraph:

Say, Heywood Broun, an old, tried and trusted friend of mine, is running for Congress in New York. I'll admit he is an ex-dramatic critic, but that shouldn't entirely bar him, but in all justice and all seriousness, Heywood would make a mighty useful member. He has plenty of plain sense, he is smart and he is fair. He is a socialist, but not enough of one to demand that we divide anything more with our "comrades" than our advice. And Heywood looks like a congressman.

Yours,
WILL.

Start Hospital Units Thursday

CEREMONIES AT GROUND BREAKING

Begin Work on Eye and Ear, Presbyterian Sections Of Medical Center Group

Ground for the Presbyterian and the Eye and Ear Hospitals, first units in Pittsburgh's medical Center, will be broken at 10 a. m. tomorrow near the Children's Hospital in Oakland.

Announcement of the beginning of the Center, under discussion five years, was made late yesterday by John E. Crawford, chairman of the Eye and Ear Hospital committee, and J. McA. Duncan, of the Presbyterian Hospital building committee. Decision of the Eye and Ear to begin work on its new building was reached last week, while Presbyterian officials made their decision late yesterday.

LEADERS ATTEND

Many prominent persons will be among those attending the ceremonies. They will include George H. Clapp, trustee of the University of Pittsburgh; Chancellor John G. Bowman, of the university; W. L. Clause, A. E. Braun, Dr. S. B. Linhart, Dr. Ogden M. Edwards, members of the boards of trustees of both hospitals, members of their medical staffs, and E. P. Mellon, architect for the Center, with his associate, W. L. Smith.

The Eye and Ear Hospital comprising one of four wings of the center, will be 10 stories high and cost $500,000. The main structure of the Presbyterian will cost about $2,000,000.

$14,500,000 PROJECT

By the time the Medical Center group is finished at least $14,500,000 will have been invested, according to Dean R. R. Huggins, of the University of Pittsburgh medical school, which will work with hospitals of the group to eliminate disease in the Pittsburgh district. The Children's Hospital, costing $2,000,000, was the first erected on the site. The Tuberculosis and Magee Hospitals, nearby, are affiliated as special hospitals, although not on the site. Construction is under way on the front of the site on the Falk clinic, for which Maurice Falk and his late brother, Leon Falk, have subscribed $950,000.

NURSES' HOME SOON

The laboratory axis, connecting the new medical school with the hospital group, is assured through the $500,000 gift of Mr. and Mrs. Ogden M. Edwards, and Dean Huggins believes that within a reasonable time work can be started on the $2,000,000 medical school itself.

Another unit of the plan, to be built as soon as finances permit, is to be a central nurses' home.

JOINT COMMITTEE

The joint building committee for both hospitals includes John E. Crawford, Mrs. H. H. McClintic and Mrs. W. M. McKelvy for the Eye and Ear Hospital, and J. McA. Duncan, F. B. Bell, A. E. Braun, S. L. Tone, for the Presbyterian Hospital. Mrs. McKelvy is president of the Eye and Ear, while Ralph W. Harbison is head of the Presbyterian.

PLAN MUNHALL SCHOOL BONDS

The Munhall Borough School Board last night authorized its solicitor to prepare papers for a $650,000 bond issue for expansion of the board's educational program.

L. J. Holman, president of the board, said it already has bought 12 acres at Woodlawn avenue and Charles street, at a cost of $81,100, as a site for an elementary and junior high school. A 12-room addition will be put to the Munhall High School on Twelfth avenue.

The board plans to purchase a one and one-half acre tract at Martha street and Twelfth avenue for a grade school and recreation grounds.

Already the board has paid Mifflin Township, schools of which were merged with the Munhall system, $90,000. A balance of $107,000 remains to be paid.

Irish Revolt Leader to Wed Wilkinsburg Girl

Miss Cecelia Martin, 1445 Mill street, Wilkinsburg, and Terence O'Conlon, former Irish revolutionary leader, will be married Saturday in St. James Church, Wilkinsburg, climaxing a romance that began in the period of Irish civil war, 11 years ago. O'Conlon lives in Cheviot, O. Until last June the couple had not seen each other, although they had corresponded for the preceding 10 years.

Eleven years ago Miss Martin lived at South Bank, England. A friend, Annie O'Conlon, came to visit her and told Miss Martin of the dangerous activities of her 17-year-old brother in Ireland. Miss Martin wrote a letter to the young revolutionary leader and he answered.

O'Conlon, a battalion adjutant attached to the staff of Gen. Frank Aiken, was captured by the British and confined in prison camps. While a prisoner, he often heard from Miss Martin, many times receiving books and magazines. Later unsettled conditions caused the pair to lose track of one another.

In 1926 O'Conlon came to the United States to visit his sister who had married and settled in Cincinnati. He learned his sister was still communicating with Miss Martin, who lived in Wilkinsburg. Last June he visited her and the two became fast friends.

107TH ANNUAL M. E. MEETING OPENS HERE

Buffalo Bishop Presides At Mt. Lebanon Session; Delegates Given Welcome

By THE REV. C. T. MURDOCK,
Special Correspondent.

The one hundred and seventh annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church began its regular sessions this morning in the Mt. Lebanon M. E. Church with Bishop Adna W. Leonard, of Buffalo, in the chair.

Dr. James E. Wagner, the host of the conference, presided over the public reception last evening.

The prayer was offered by the Rev. Dr. Thomas G. Hicks, who concludes this year his six-year term as district superintendent of the McKeesport district.

DELEGATES WELCOMED

Dr. James S. Payton spoke words of welcome in behalf of Pittsburgh Methodism, and William S. Diggs replied in behalf of the local church.

Bishop Leonard made his first public appearance in Pittsburgh in a felicitious response which gave us a hint of good things to come.

Dr. N. H. Sanner, superintendent of the Blairsville district, pronounced the benediction.

This morning the conference was opened with holy communion administered by the bishop and district superintendents.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

The following ministers or their wives have died during the year:

Albert H. Davies, of Glassport, the only one in active service at the time of his death; Levi S. Peterson, James A. Younkins, Dwight L. Myers, Mrs. David Flannigan, Mrs. John W. King, Mrs. Charles M. Miller and Mrs. Jesse Core.

Dr. Jacob S. Payton represented the cabinet and read its combined report.

I understand that an effort is to be made to reduce the number of the conference districts from five to four.

Cathie Finds Her Husband Shot to Death

CHAPTER XXXIII

It was very dark in Alfred Farnsworth's room, after the mellow light of the hall. Cathie hesitated a moment, feeling a little silly. Now that she was here there was nothing to do. She didn't dare wake him to tell him she was frightened . . . Poor Mr. Farnsworth . . . She could spare him her imaginary worries at least . . .

He must be sleeping soundly. She picked her way carefully toward his bed.

The light of a great moon lay in slanting white rays on his pillow. It would be in his eyes soon. That curtain flapping was annoying, too. She moved to the window to adjust the curtain. As she got there, just before she shut out that streak of bright, silvery light, something impelled her to turn.

On the floor, in the path of the moonlight, lay the small bluish pistol that he was accustomed to keep on the little table near his bed.

Cathie stepped back involuntarily. The thing had always frightened her. She wondered if she ought to pick it up. She glanced toward the bed. Something about his hand . . . hanging out of the bed . . . limp. . . .

"Alfred!" she whispered, "Alfred, it's Cathie!"

Horrified
Bullet Wound in Husband's Head

That noise . . . it WAS a shot . . . the pistol . . . oh, my God no! It couldn't be. Things like that. . . . "Alfred!" she shook him. "Alfred, my dear, look at me! Alfred! It's Cathie!"

She couldn't rouse him. Her hand came away, all blood. She looked at it, sickened, not quite understanding . . . Blood. Then there had been shooting. . . . Mr. Farnsworth. . . . Her horrified eyes took it in gradually. The dark pool on the pillow . . . and the back of his head . . . the back of his head. . . .

She backed away, fell over a chair. She ran out of the room, up and down the hall, half mad with horror. She could feel the sticky blood on her right hand, and she didn't know what to do. Mr. Farnsworth could tell her, but he was dead. . . . Dead, with a hole in his head. . . .

What do you do when somebody is dead? You call people . . . but when you're too frightened? Cathie stood still, wringing her hands, listening to her own teeth chattering, and a little moaning, way down in her throat. . . . She began to cry, helplessly . . . Gordon! Oh, why didn't he stay longer? Then this wouldn't have happened, he'd have stopped it . . . he wouldn't have let anything like this happen to her, all alone in the dark in the horrible house. . . .

Rouses Maid
Marguerite Also Becomes Terror-Stricken

"Marguerite!" she cried "Marguerite, I'm afraid!" But her voice was just a squeak in her throat. She began to run up the stairs to the third floor . . . into Marguerite's room, calling all the time.

Marguerite's room was directly over Farnsworth's. The same great, white moon lit Marguerite's pillow.

The room was very close. The windows were never opened, and the air was heavy with the stale, heavy odor of the perfume that Marguerite and Chester's wife both used.

Marguerite's heavy, dark red hair lay over her pillow, trailing to the floor. Her features looked almost beautiful in sleep. . . . Sleep? Or was it. . . .

"Marguerite!" Cathie gasped. "Marguerite!" Her voice ended in a shuddering, broken cry.

The woman did not stir. But the sheet over her chest was rising and falling . . . oh, thank God for that . . . thank God!

"Marguerite, wake up! Help me!" Cathie heard herself whimpering in a voice that was not her own.

As the last wail died away Marguerite sat bolt upright, and the horror in her eyes was like that in Cathie's. It was as if Cathie were looking into a mirror, seeing her own face reflected in Marguerite's . . . greenish pallor, eyes wild and wide, mouth working. . . .

"Mrs. Farnsworth! Mrs.

CLAIM UNION MEN BEING LET OUT

Leaders Plan Conference, Demand Agent Be Given Recognition by Company

Threat of another taxicab strike loomed today as Peter V. Day, president of the union taxicab chauffeurs of Pittsburgh, and a committee prepared to demand that the company stop discharging union drivers "on the slightest provocation."

More than 100 drivers of the night shift assembled at Old St. Patrick's Church, Liberty avenue and Seventeenth street, this morning and heard the Rev. James R. Cox declare "the only way to get what you are after is to strike."

TO VISIT COMPANY

Leaders of the union, formed after the four months' strike at winter and spring, attended by widespread violence, planned to visit the offices of the Parmelee company today.

Day said:

"The agreement entered into between the drivers and the company at the close of the strike last spring, has not been lived up to. The company has been firing union men right and left on the slightest pretext and sometimes without any reason at all, and replacing them with nonunion men."

FATHER COX SPEAKS

Father Cox assured the men of his support. He declared:

"You men know that you are right in asking for decent treatment from the company. You know the unfair way they have treated you, and you know the only way to get what you are after is to strike."

Another meeting of the day shift drivers is scheduled for 7 p. m. at the church.

Walter S. Laird, president of the Pittsburgh division of the Parmelee company, said he knew of no discontent among the drivers or that a meeting had been called. No complaints had been submitted to the company, he asserted.

At a meeting of 500 drivers held today in bricklayers' hall, 1301 Fifth avenue, it was suggested a demand be made that the company recognize Fred A. Schaeffer as business agent of the union. Schaeffer was discharged by the company soon after being elected, they assert.

SHIFT BOROUGH WATER SOURCE

After buying its water from Homestead for 30 years, the borough of West Homestead today began getting service from the South Pittsburgh Water Company. The new rate will be 31 cents per thousand gallons, compared to 42 cents formerly paid to Homestead. The South Pittsburgh Water Company will pay a rental of $5,750 a year for the use of the mains, owned by West Homestead. In the past the borough received no payment for this service.

Recently the South Pittsburgh company purchased the meters from Homestead.

Youth Killed, Father Sues Auto Driver

A suit seeking to recover $50,000 damages for the death of Samuel Levine, when an automobile overturned was filed by his father, Meyer Levine, and the administrator of his estate, Nathan Franzos, against Sam Zlotnick, of Chicago, in Common Pleas Court.

The youth received fatal injuries as a passenger in the automobile driven by Zlotnick July 11, when it overturned near Youngwood, Pa., according to the suit.

JEWS OBSERVE YOM KIPPUR

Jews in the Pittsburgh distr at sunset tonight will begin Y Kippur, the Day of Atoneme most solemn in the Hebr calendar.

After its conclusion at sun tomorrow, all Jewish activities the year will have their beg ning.

During the 24 hours of obser ance, the more orthodox will main in the synogogues, fastin and praying through the nig and day. In the conservative an reformed synogogues, services will be held at appointed times, with the buildings open throughout the period.

The services will be held in nearly 40 temples and synogogues throughout the district, beginning tonight at sunset in the orthod institutions, and after it in the other branches. The chant of Kol Nidre will open the day of penitence.

The service, symbolic of the old Hebrew ritual, includes the kneeling of the rabbi—the only time during the year he bends the knee in prayer. It is commemorative of the old visitation of the high priest into the Holy of Holies.

Aerial Erector Killed, Widow Sues Power Co.

The question whether an electric power company should foresee and anticipate the development of the radio and the stringing of aerials which might come into contact with its power lines from which insulation had been worn, was argued before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania yesterday.

The appeal was filed by Mrs. Mildred J. Parker from an adverse decision in Mercer County, in connection with her claim against the Pennsylvania Power Company for liability in the death of her husband, Ted R. Parker. He was electrocuted July 23, 1928, when an aerial he was erecting in Greenville came in contact with the power lines.

Other appeals argued were:

Appeal of H. Bert Null in re estate of Christena Null, deceased, Westmoreland County.

Enoch W. Filer against F. P. Filer, appellant; Jamestown Iron and Metal Company against Roy Knofsky, appellant; Lydia M. Curry, administratrix, against J. M. Willson and Sons, appellants, Mercer County.

KERR OBTAINS NEW BILLING SYSTEM

Believes Modern Method Will Effect Economies; Council Approves Cost

Dr. James P. Kerr, city controller, has begun his campaign to modernize obsolete city business methods.

His first step was the approval by Council of the expenditure of $33,250 for a new billing system, under which all bills receivable will be sent out by the controller's office and paid at the office of the treasurer.

At present the bills are made out and accounts kept, frequently in long hand, in a number of departments. Much confusion has resulted, most of it due to the present old and inefficient system.

Council yesterday, sitting as a committee, unanimously pledged itself to place the cost of the new system in the 1931 budget. Dr. Kerr has made arrangement to have the necessary machines installed on credit in the meantime.

ECONOMIES EXPECTED

He told the members of Council that a compilation of costs in various scattered bureaus showed that the city is spending $12,203 a year for work that can be done much more economically and efficiently in one office.

When the new system is in effect, he explained, the bills can be sent to all taxpayers, made out on modern machines by experienced operators, as soon as his office knows the valuation, the tax rate and the water rate.

He plans to send out quarterly statements of the flat rate water bills, each statement to include delinquent bills and to contain a warning that the water will be shut off if the bill is not paid. In the past such bills did not contain the delinquent amounts and were sent yearly, not quarterly as the meter rate bills are now sent.

SEPARATE TAXES

Discussing his plans he also told of a proposal of City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley. The latter suggested that the city and school taxes be separated, two statements sent in the same envelope and the taxpayer requested to return two separate checks. This, it was explained, would not only facilitate the work in the treasurer's office but enable the school board to get its money more promptly. For a number of years the board received its funds only when the treasurer was inclined to forward them. Since Schooley took office the funds have been sent to the board as rapidly as they could be segregated, a difficult task when all taxes were paid with one check.

Councilman John S. Herron expressed the opinion that the plan of two checks should be studied before approval.

"As long as the city holds the school money the city gets the interest," he said. "The city does the work of collecting it. Perhaps the school board will be able to help us pay for installing this new system which will help it as much as it does us."

Controller Kerr explained that the method of sending statements was a detail to be solved later after any proper investigation was made. The important thing, he said, was a pledge that the money would be forthcoming in the next budget.

PHYSICAL EXAMINATIONS AT CITY-COUNTY BUILDING FOR MEN ASKING LABORING WORK ON SPEEDED-UP SEWER PROJECTS

POOL APPROVED TO SUPPLY JOBS

Approval by the Councilmanic Finance Committee of a $150,000 bond issue for the construction of a swimming pool at Lake Carnegie, Highland Park, was Council's first legislative action to relieve the unemployment situation.

That action, taken yesterday, was the initial legislative move taken as a result of the resolution of Robert J. Alderdice asking that the city hire men to do work by hand labor instead of letting available jobs to contractors.

Although a conference held by Mayor Charles H. Kline, members of Council, Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang, and other officials, found work for only 700 laborers, thousands have applied.

Several hundred yesterday added their applications, to the 2,200 already in the hands of the Civil Service Commission.

So great was the crush of applicants on the fifth floor of the City-County Building that T. F. Hansberry, secretary of the commission, was forced to borrow the Council chamber for the required medical examinations.

BOROUGH PLEA OPPOSED BY RAILWAYS

Bracken Blames Lack of Cars For Town's Slow Growth; Asks 15-Cent Fare Rate

Failure of the Pittsburgh Railways Company to extend its lines into Brentwood has retarded the growth of the eastern section of that borough. Proper transportation facilities will develop it. Borough Solicitor C. H. Bracken so testified before S. C. Miller, examiner for the Public Service Commission. He appeared for Brentwood Council which wants the state body to grant the Brentwood Motor Coach Company a certificate to operate through buses to downtown Pittsburgh for a 15-cent fare, when five tokens are bought for 75 cents. The straight fare would be 20 cents.

REFUSED SERVICE

Bracken averred that some years ago the railways company refused to extend its lines into Brentwood beyond the present terminal, unless Brentwood borough would pay the cost. Now the railways company is opposing the application of the motor company to provide through transportation on the ground it would be in competition and is not necessary. Bracken testified that all Brentwood needs to further its development is proper transportation facilities, and many others called backed up the statement.

Bracken also testified, as did others, that if the Brentwood concern is permitted to operate, he will not use his own automobile to drive downtown, but use the bus, and scores will do likewise, since the motor coach would help solve the downtown parking question and help relieve traffic.

It was testified the railways company lines only extend into the borough for a distance of three blocks. The eastern line of the borough is more than a mile distant.

SAVING IN TIME

Attorney Bracken offered a resolution passed by Council, favoring the application of the Brentwood concern which seeks a certificate of operation. This company already operates several lines out of Brentwood to neighboring territories and connects with the car line.

The company would operate four buses by way of Maytag avenue, Sawmill Run boulevard and the Liberty tubes, with a terminus at Diamond and Smithfield street. The schedule would be 15 minutes during peak hours, cutting the railways company time more than half.

Assistant City Solicitor C. P. Lang said during the hearing but offered no objection, his presence being to ascertain if additional buses would congest the streets.

Runaway Auto Hits 2 Aliquippa Men

Struck by a runaway automobile, James Dudash, 26, of 307 Fifth avenue, Aliquippa, was in a serious condition today, police said, while John Jones, a Negro, of 112 Wykes street, Aliquippa, was recovering from bruises. The car was owned by William K. Meade, of 225 Fifth avenue, Aliquippa, according to a police report, and had been parked near his home. It rolled down the steep hill when the brakes loosened, police were told.

The Camera Question Box

Today's Question: Faced with the necessity of economizing, should an employer reduce wages or should he reduce his number of employes?

MISS MAURINE MUSGRAVE, Clarksburg, Telephone operator: If the employer is really forced to economize, I should think the best method, especially with conditions as they are, would be to reduce the wages of those already in his employ. To me, this seems the fairer procedure, both to himself and to those in his employ. To reduce the number of his employes would leave a great many of them without work entirely. A person who has served him well does not deserve such treatment and the employer might soon regret it.

Miss Musgrave

MRS. BEULAH WATKINS, Housewife, North Side: If an employer thought it necessary that he do one of these two things, I should say in parallelism with the saying, "Of two evils, choose the lesser," to reduce the wages of those in his employ. Another plan which might work out even more satisfactorily would be, not to reduce the number of employes, but to cut down on the number of working hours. This would not put any of them out of work entirely, but would decrease the expense of the employer.

Mrs. Watkins

MISS THELMA HOOPER, Clarksburg, Telephone Operator: In my opinion, the best way an employer could handle such a situation would be to do it in the way that would be of least harm to all concerned. I believe he would be doing this, if he reduced the wages of all, rather than putting a few out of work. It seems to me that even his employes would agree that such a plan would be best.

Miss Hooper

ALBERT GARLICK, North Side, unemployed: For a person in my position my answer will no doubt sound queer, nevertheless, it seems to me that he would be better off if he would decrease the number of his employes. Since the advent of machinery, a man does not need the number of men that he did formerly. It would be better to keep a few at a decent living wage than many working for a mere pittance.

Mr. Garlick

MELVIN BECK, North Side, unemployed: Faced with the necessity of economizing, I believe that the employer should reduce the number of his employes. He would be much better off if he had a few interested employes, on full pay, than many poorly paid and, as a consequence, disinterested. You can plainly see that he would have more efficient help for a lesser expense.

Mr. Beck

MISS HELEN SCHMIDT, North Side, unemployed: In a case like this, I believe he should reduce the wages of the employes he already has. This would keep more people employed instead of increasing the already large population of unemployed. In this way, the employer would not only be helping himself, but would be aiding the public, in general, to handle the present situation of unemployment.

COURT AIRS OLD LAND DISPUTE

A dispute, dating back more than a century, over the title to land along the Kiskiminetas River between Leechburg and Apollo was heard yesterday by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, in session here.

The bed of the old Pennsylvania canal along that stretch formed the subject of the controversy. Ellis G. Parks, John W. Parks and Elizabeth Parks, descendants of Robert Parks, granted a patent by the state in 1818 for the tract known as "Farmers Delight," appealed from a judgment in their ejectment suit in Armstrong County which decreed the title in favor of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

Robert Parks granted a right of way to the state for the Pennsylvania Canal in 1928 and the state in 1857 granted the canal right of way to the railroad. The state in constructing the canal built a dam at Leechburg, the backwater inundating a large area of "Farmers Delight." Years later when the dam broke and water receded, the heirs of the Parks estate alleged they re-occupied the area and regained title by adverse possession of all but the railroad right of way and state highway.

RAID 2 STILLS, 2 ARRESTED

For the second time within two days prohibition agents invaded the Hill district and raided another alleged whisky cutting plant, seized a quantity of whisky and arrested one man yesterday.

The plant, according to the agents, was found in a dwelling at 2213 Center avenue, where Benjamin Simon, 35, was arrested. More than 300 gallons of whisky were confiscated. Simon was released on a $1,000 bond.

A 250-gallon still found in a building at 507-9 Tripoli street, led to the arrest of C. D. Gunther, agents said. Besides the still, the raiders confiscated 70 gallons of moonshine and 700 pounds of corn sugar. Gunther was released on his own recognizance.

In the home of Charley Prodetta, 55, of Santiago, a still of a 35-gallon capacity was seized, the raiders said.

OFFICIALS SEEK BLAST CAUSE

Officials of the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company today were endeavoring to determine the cause of an explosion in the company's warehouse in Forty-third street which resulted in injury to 13 persons yesterday.

The most seriously injured, Michael Kowalski, 47, of 108 Forty-third and a Half street, was reported in fair condition at St. Francis Hospital. The other victims were able to leave hospitals after receiving treatment.

Partitions of six of the 10 rooms used to ripen bananas were blown away. Debris from the walls and the roof of the two-story brick and concrete structure fell into the street and damaged several adjoining buildings.

GAS FIRES AUTO AFTER WRECK

Two women and a man were being sought by police today as occupants of an automobile that struck and overturned the machine of Jacob J. Reis, of 811 Fisher avenue, at Sixth avenue and Grant street this morning. They fled, abandoning the machine, which police believe was stolen. Reis was uninjured. The gasoline tank on Reis' car was broken and the fuel flowed into the street.

Ten minutes after the accident a passing motorist tossed a lighted cigaret into the street and the gasoline burst into flames. The flames damaged Reis' car $150, he told police. Lee Bronca, 42, of 822 Locust street, was slightly burned by the flames.

Nathan Lugarau, 40, of 829 Munsford street, was cut and bruised when knocked down by an automobile as he stepped from a street car in Penn avenue at Water street this morning. George A. West, 27, Negro, of Arch street, Carnegie, driver of the machine, removed Lugarau to the Allegheny General Hospital. West was arrested.

INTEREST GAINS IN FREE TRIPS

The interest in the Gloria Swanson "What a Widow!" free de luxe tour to Paris, which this famous movie star is offering to girls of Pittsburgh and vicinity through the Sun-Telegraph, and the five free trips to tropical Bermuda to be given away by the Sun-Telegraph, is growing like wildfire.

During the last week scores of girls have signified their intentions to try and win one of these attractive awards, although it isn't expected that the peak of the enthusiasm will arrive before the end of the week—after all the girls who have sent in nomination blanks will have received full information about the trips.

UNEQUALED OFFER

Never before has a newspaper been permitted to offer a trip that covers so much in glorious travel and entertainment that the girl will get who wins the Paris award.

For Paris a week of sightseeing has been arranged that will include everything worth-while that can be crowded into seven days. All accommodations will be first-class, all expenses will be paid and the lucky girl will have a lot of extra money to spend. That's that!

A trip to Bermuda is also an event of a lifetime. There will be ocean bathing on the coral beaches, angling for tropical fish, golf if you like it and accommodations at the best hotels. The five girls who get these awards will sail on one of the big Munson lines, two days on the ocean each way, a day in New York, a full week at Bermuda and extra money to spend.

ENTER RACE NOW

Miss Swanson's new picture, "What a Widow!" is now showing at Loew's Penn Theater. The French liner Paris and the City of Paris were background for much of the making of this picture. That's why Miss Swanson is offering her trip.

Girls interested in the Paris tour or one of the Bermuda tours should file a nomination blank today. You'll find the blank on page 33.

Woman Swallows Poison, Seeks Help

Declaring she had swallowed poison in her home a short time before, Miss Ethel Merritt, 32, of 3401 Forbes street, appealed for medical attention early today at the Montefiore Hospital.

After she had been treated police placed a disorderly conduct charge against her. Physicians said her condition was not serious. She refused to tell police why she had taken the poison.

Leaves Old Auto, Steals 'Trial' Car

McKees Rocks police and county detectives today were seeking a man who disappeared yesterday with an automobile which he took "for a trial" from the Yunker Motor Company, 421 Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks, after leaving his old car in its place.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Dinner Dance to Be Given For 'Little Season' Bud December 27

The advancing days of fall hold more and more exciting news for members of the social set and particularly for the debutantes, for whom more and more events are being planned.

Attractive Elizabeth McKay, whose father and mother, the Thomas J. McKays of Morewood avenue, presented her at a tea in the magic month of June when girls wed and debutantes and roses blossom forth, will be honored, as we all expected, with several more events this winter.

Her father and mother will give a dinner dance for her at the Allegheny Country Club the evening of December 27. And on Thanksgiving Day, which comes this year on the twenty-seventh of November, the James McKays will give a luncheon for her in the Twentieth Century Club.

Bridal Party

Dorothea Cate, daughter of the Edgar R. Cates of Stanton avenue, has named the members of her bridal party for her marriage to Andrew Meserve Rankin, son of the Walter Polland Rankins, of Boston, Mass., which will take place at 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening, October 11, in the First Unitarian Church, with the Rev. Frank Edwin Smith as officiant. A reception in the home of the Cates will follow.

Pendleton Scully, daughter of the Charles D. Scullys of Howe street, will be maid of honor and Dorothy Duncan, of Chicago; Hope Slade, of Fall River, Mass.; Molly Harlow of Concord, Mass., a cousin of the bride-elect, and Edith Darrach of Greenwich, Conn., all classmates of the bride-elect at Vassar, will be bridesmaids.

Walter Rankin of Boston, will be his brother's best man and Kenneth Rankin, another brother; Gilbert Heublein, of Hartford, Conn.; Paul Cotter and George Mastaglio, of Boston; George Morecroft, of Pittsburgh, and Arthur Gow, of New Haven, will be ushers.

Evening Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. George R. Ingham of Crafton announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Florence Isabelle Ingham, to Durban Howard Beckett, son of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Beckett of South Lang avenue, Homewood, which took place in the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. George Kastellan, of Summit street, Crafton, at 6:45 o'clock Saturday evening. Officiating was the Rev. Herman Foster of the Crafton Heights United Presbyterian Church, assisted by the Rev. George Lang of the Homewood United Presbyterian Church.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Herbert Ingham of Wheeling, W. Va., wore a gown of white satin in princess mode with a lace yoke and carried white roses and lilies of the valley. Her sister, Miss Gertrude Ingham, as the maid of honor, wore pink georgette and carried pink roses. Charles Beckett was his brother's best man. The bride's small niece, Dorothy Kastellan, as flower girl, wore green georgette and carried a basket of red roses.

After the wedding there was a dinner and reception for 28 guests. Owing to the illness of the bride's father, the wedding was a small affair. Mr. and Mrs. Beckett will make their home temporarily in Homewood avenue.

The Town Club honored its new president, Mrs. Wilson Scott, with a beautifully appointed reception yesterday afternoon in Mrs. Samuel E. Diescher's home, South Negley avenue. A splendid musical program was given at intervals during the afternoon by Lucille Miller Werner, soprano, and Mable King, contralto, with Adele Hall accompanying.

The tea table was particularly attractive with a center bouquet of mixed flowers and tapers tied with broad tulle bows and tiny Colonial nosegays of the same flowers. Mrs. W. M. Trigg, Mrs. B. F. Stout, Mrs. Edward R. Williams and Miss Isabel Bell poured. The reception was arranged by Mrs. F. B. Heyser and Mrs. F. M. Garwood.

Plans for a rummage sale to be held October 24 and 25 will be announced Friday at the opening meeting of the Crafton Woman's Club in Wood Hall. Mrs. E. N. Zern will present the program for the year and the work of the departments will be sketched by their chairmen.

Programs for Federation Convention at Scranton Oct. 13-17 Announced

Clubwomen all over the state, whether stay-at-homes or delegates, are interested in plans for the annual convention of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, which will be held in Scranton October 13-17. An executive board session will be the most important event of Monday, although the credential, departmental and standing committees will also meet.

Club institutes for presidents will begin at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning and at 9 o'clock the regular sessions will begin in Elm Park Church House. Four important addresses will occupy the afternoon—Miss Mary S. Larabee, telling of the White House conference on child welfare; Mrs. Henry Jump, speaking on "Correction and Restoration in Penal Institutions;" Ray Huff, of the state department of welfare, telling of his work, and Miss Lucy M. Glass explaining what the state is doing for its foregin-born mothers.

The county federation and extension, international relations and press and publicity supper conferences will be held Tuesday evening and later in the auditorium of the city's Central High School Miss Frances McCollum, pianist, will be heard in recital, and Mrs. W. A. Lawton, the federation's "bill board lady," and John Keeler of the state department of highways, will speak.

Wednesday will start off with art and club institute breakfasts in the Hotel Casey. At the regular session, Mrs. Frick will give her account of the General Federation biennial and Mrs. Ambrose N. Diehl will speak on "Banking Our Pennies." The memorial service also comes that morning. Two departments, those of the home and education, both of which are headed by Pittsburgh women, Mrs. John M. Phillips and Mrs. J. G. Chalfant, will be in charge Wednesday afternoon, when the Rev. Dr. Henry H. Crane, pastor of Elm Park Church, will speak. The division of literature will present Joseph Auslander, poet, teacher and co-author of "The Winged Horse," as the closing attraction of the afternoon.

Talk on Banking

Charles Milton Newcomb, internationally known humorist, will speak Wednesday evening at the Federation dinner in Scranton's magnificent new Masonic Temple. His subject is "The Psychology of Laughter." Reports and an address on aviation by Mrs. Louise Thaden, of Pittsburgh, and an address on birth control by Margaret Sanger are down for Thursday morning and in the afternoon Miss Agnes McPhail, only woman member of the English House of Parliament, will address the convention on "Thinking Internationally." Mrs. John D. Sherman, former president of the General Federation, will speak Thursday night. Friday is, according to custom, "play day," for which sight seeing drives and luncheons have been planned.

Opening Season

Mrs. W. D. McCartney, Mrs. W. E. Woods and Mrs. J. Rush Snyder will be hostesses for the opening meeting of the Upper St. Clair Woman's Club tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. J. E. White, the new president, and her predecessor, Mrs. J. D. Pennington, will preside at the tea table, following a program which will include presentation of the year book by Miss Eleanor Gilfillan and music by Mrs. Henry F. Weber, vocalist, and Mrs. C. E. Haggert and Miss Bertha Geib, who will give piano duets.

For the remainder of the year the club's programs include an address on banking, a Christmas party, a musicale, a social meeting, a patriotic program, election, a stunt party, a garden party and a corn roast, with optional summer gatherings.

The president and board of governors of the Woman's City Club will be at home to the club members and their friends on Saturday from 3 to 5 o'clock. Mrs. Edward Vose Babcock, chairman of the day, will be assisted by Mrs. Daniel M. Clemson, Mrs. James Hays Hammond, Mrs. William Watson Smith, Miss Suzanne S. Beatty and Mrs. Charles G. Noble. Mrs. Delmont J. Kennedy, chairman of the hospitality committee, will have assisting her Mrs. Biddle Arthurs, Mrs. Homer D. Williams, Mrs. H. C. McEldowney, Mrs. W. Henry R. Hilliard, Mrs. Norwood Johnston, Mrs. Verner S. Gaggin, Mrs. Pitt O. Heasley, Mrs. Benjamin Jarrett, Mrs. George E. Alter, Mrs. Robert E. Withers, Mrs. E. W. Mudge and Mrs. C. L. Pierre, Jr. An orchestra will furnish music throughout the afternoon.

APRONS INTRODUCE NEW TOUCH TO SEMI-TAILORED GARMENTS

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Oct. 1—We may not all be home-loving bodies, but just the same lots of us are going to wear aprons this season. For a great many dressmakers have introduced aprons on their semi-tailored frocks. These aprons are mostly of the pleated variety and lend a pleasing touch to what would sometimes be an otherwise quite plain model. Many a severe looking frock smiles at the world when it is dressed up with a bolero, an apron skirt and a few frills placed where they will do the most good. With the advent of the tailored and semi-tailored frock there is an awakened interest in dark blue serge, and already this material made up into neat and good-looking frocks has made its appearance under the most fashionable auspices. And so if you have nourished a yearning for a serge frock, you can bring your desire to the surface.

THE HOUSE of Drecoll-Beer is one of the establishments making a feature of smart semi-tailored clothes. Boleros, apron effects and pleatings of every variety lend interest to their newest creations. The model sketched, is a comprehensive example of the type of semi-tailored frock sponsored by this house. It is of dark blue serge made on princess lines, with a bolero of the material. The long sleeves are lightened by the introduction of a frill of pleated serge at the elbow. The pleated apron panel at the front of the skirt is set below a vertical band of buttoned tabs which extends up across the bodice to the neckline. A shallow slashed effect is found at each side of the bolero and the skirt edge.

BRUYERE IS THE HOUSE responsible for the smart sports ensemble most suitable for autumn and early winter. It consists of a dark blue wool jersey dress and a bright blue leather coat. The coat is lined and faced with the same jersey as the frock thereby establishing the necessary contact to create an ensemble. On one sleeve of the coat is an original motif consisting of a white leather applique with dark fur. A small beret of blue leather with a fur headband completes a costume that is enchanting enough to make any woman a devotee of athletic pastimes.

BLACK

and the Town Frock of Black Crepe or Light-weight Wool is in First Place

IN TOWN, or about town, at the bridge or tea, the Black Dress dominates. Smart in itself, yet infinitely smarter when worn with the scarf of Silver Fox or flat Black Caracul.

IT IS quite surprising to see how youthful black can be. Perhaps it's because of their sleeves, which take the gauntlet for their model, or puff at the elbow. It may be the touches of color at the neckline or cuff. Often it is the placing of tiny godets, or the devious ways of using quaint imported buttons.

Following close upon black are autumn Browns, especially when combined with yellows, and the newer tones of deep Red.

Rooms Display

The women's clubs of Wilkinsburg are taking part this week in a co-operative piece of work that is attracting considerable attention in the borough. Upon invitation of Faller Brothers Company, each club in the community has furnished a room and the results are on view all this week in the Penn avenue store. The Woman's Club of Wilkinsburg, through its home department, has assembled a charming colonial bedroom in curly maple and the juniors have a striking living room of English feudal oak, complete in home-like detail even to the half-smoked cigarets and the unfinished after-dinner coffees on the occasional tables.

The Thursday Afternoon Club has indulged the taste of its members in a Jacobean chestnut dining room; and the Business and Professional Women have a stunning green and white kitchen, homey with plates of cookies and an iced cake on the porcelain table. The contribution of the Faller's Girls' Club is a fluffy green bedroom with painted colonial furniture; the Triangle Club has a living room of walnut and mohair in golden browns; the Civic Club, a modern bedroom and the Bryn Mawr Woman's Clum a modern living room. The "rooms" are on display all day and during the evening also and prizes will be awarded by popular vote.

Miss Anna Belle Craig, prominent member of the Women's Press Club, will have an exhibition of her recent paintings at her studio home, "Thump and Daub House," Walnut street, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, from 3 until 5 in the afternoons and 8 until 10 in the evenings. In the exhibit are included some studies of Pittsburgh gardens which Miss Craig did this summer.

Safety Lunch

Covers were laid for 167 at the luncheon given yesterday at the Congress of Clubs for the wives of delegates attending the National Safety Congress. Mrs. Ralph W. Johnston, who is acting chairman of hospitality for the convention, presided. As a program feature there were soprano solos sung with especial beauty by Elsie Breese Mitchell, Congress chairman of music. The luncheon was given by the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council, with Mrs Johnston and the Congress board as hostesses.

Penn. Mother Knew Best

WISE mothers find the things that keep children contented, happy, well. Most of them have learned they can depend on one thing to restore a youngster's good nature when he's cross, fretful, upset.

The experience of Mrs. M. Smith, 2042 S. Salford St., Philadelphia, is a typical one. She says: "I have used California Fig Syrup with both my girls ever since they were just tiny babies. Whenever they're the least bit constipated or restless I give them a little. It has them comfortable, happy, well in a jiffy. Their splendid condition proves I knew best when I decided to use this wonderful preparation with them."

Physicians endorse the use of pure vegetable California Fig Syrup when bad breath, coated tongue, dullness, feverishness, listlessness, etc., show a child's bowels are in need of help. Weak stomach and bowels are toned by its gentle aid; appetite increased; digestion and assimilation are so assisted that weak, undernourished children quickly improve in weight, strength and energy.

The genuine always bears the word California. So look for that when buying. All drugstores have it.

Sale—New Fall Dresses

Hundreds—In Women's, Misses' and 28 Different Half Sizes

Makes a Woman Look "Interesting"
$10

She may take size 23, or be sensitive about her "age," or not as sylph-like as she once was. But the bicorne gives her both the assurance of a brim, and the youthfulness of that pretty exposed forehead.

The bicorne is the most important silhouette out of Paris today, judging from the latest inventions of Agnes, Lewis, Mado, Alphonsine and Descat. Our very literal translations come as low as $10.

Felt and soleil in Black and colors.

Svelte Black Coats
With Persian Lamb
$110

When you see this model, you will know you cannot have too much of a good thing—especially if it is Persian Lamb. And when you can take your eye off the original way this fashionable fur creeps up the sleeve and down the back to form a yoke—do notice the slim-fitted lines, and the dull brilliance of the Oriola cloth, lined in black satin.

They are some very important reasons why women who know value, as well as women who know their fashions are shopping at Boggs & Buhl.

This coat, in women's sizes, trimmed in Fox, Russian Caracul or Skunk, also $110. Other fine dress coats range from $125 to $295.

Ruth Picks A's to Win Series in Five or Six Games

By BABE RUTH

Baseball's Highest Salaried Player

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—I figure the A's will win the world series, probably in six games. They may turn the trick in five games, as they did last year against the Cubs.

In the first place the schedule is in the Athletics' favor. They play the first two games at Shibe Park and they are particularly powerful on their home lot. They should get the jump on the Cardinals in these games and I can't figure any club coming from behind to beat Mack's team after it has got away to a good start.

Gabby Street must have a good ball club but I figure the A's as an extra good team. They went more than two months this season without losing a series and they have won the pennant with something to spare. All year long they stood out in their own league in a manner which left no doubt as to their being the class. I am inclined to think that Mack's team would have stood out just as strongly over all rivals if the A's had been in the National League.

From the season's batting averages one would figure that the Cardinals are a much better hitting team than the Mackmen are. I have felt all year and have mentioned in articles during the season that there has been a difference in pitching. In some years the National League pitching excels the American and in some years the condition is reversed. I believe that it is inferior pitching rather than superior hitting that accounts for six National League clubs hitting above the .300 mark this year and for the fact that the hitting generally has been quite a bit heavier in the National League.

BOTH TEAMS SHOW FIGHT

They tell me that those Cardinals have been playing hustling, heads-up ball, and their great rush during the closing weeks of the season indicates as much. But I cannot believe that they hustle harder than the A's, or that they are so hard to beat. It's an old story for the Mackmen to be apparently defeated in the latter part of the game only to put on a rally. They did this twice against the Cubs last fall and they have been doing it all year in the American League.

I like the A's pitching. Some say there is more class in the St. Louis staff as a group, and perhaps there is. But Grove and Earnshaw strike me as pitchers considerably above the average and as pitchers who are of extra value because they are ready to do relief work any day they do not start a game. With travel days after the second and fifth games Mack can jockey his pitching to get the most out of those two stars.

I always have maintained that any team good enough to win a pennant is good enough to win a series. The Cardinals can, and may, win. But I don't figure that any team in baseball is quite good enough to be rated a favorite over another team that has done what the A's have done this season.

Certainly the Cardinals have not reached that high mark in team hitting this year against pitching which is on a par with what they will see in this series. I am sure they have not gone against any such pitching in a single series as Connie Mack has at his command. I will grant you, too, that the Cardinals' pitching staff is above the grade to which the Mackmen have been accustomed. In other words, I expect the A's to hit a lot nearer their season's form in this series than the Cardinals will.

WISHES GABBY SUCCESS

It is taking nothing from Gabby Street to figure that the A's should have the edge in strategy. My hat is off to Street for coming through with a winner on his first opportunity, and I hope he enjoys many more triumphs before he is through as a manager. But Connie Mack is an old hand at this world series business and he is a past master at jockeying pitchers and pulling surprises which upset the other fellow's plans.

The A's have had the winning habit for a long time. We managed to nose them out in 1928, but they outplayed us for a long time that season, and they have been outplaying everybody they have met for two years. It will take a lot of baseball to beat them in a series of any length and I don't figure the Cards, good as they are, can do it.

CARDS HOLD EDGE OVER A'S

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—The success of H. J. Weaver, Cardinal trainer, in rubbing out enough of Frankie Frisch's attack of lumbago to make it possible for the St. Louis second sacker to be at his post in the opening game of the World Series kept National League stock from falling as flat as a punctured tire. Without Frisch, the Cards would not have a chance in the big fight, in the opinion of baseball men, but with the Fordham flash in his usual place there appeared to be plenty of ground for the confidence that the Missourians would make a strong bid for baseball's highest honors, even with Catcher Jimmy Wilson lost for at least the first part of the struggle.

Frankie Frisch

For the presence of Frisch in the lineup completes a combination that is one of the main factors giving promise of Cardinal success in the series. It is the combination of Frisch and Shortstop Charley Gelbert around the widway, one item of defensive play in which the Heydler champions unquestionably have a bulge on their American League rivals.

THERE IS NO doubt that the proper guarding of the territory around shortstop and second base is the most important defensive feature in the winning of ball games, apart from the pitching. More plays are made there than at any other point and success or failure in swinging a double play at a critical juncture often is the determining factor in the winning or losing of a diamond battle.

With Frisch and Gelbert on the job, the Cards are as strongly fortified in the midway terrain as any club in the land. For smooth and speedy action, ground-covering ability and throwing power, they look to be easily superior to Max Bishop and Joe Boley, and it will be surprising if their fielding work is not one of the outstanding features of the series.

AND THAT'S NOT mentioning the advantage that Frisch and Gelbert hold over Bishop and Boley in the batting department. Frisch batted .333 during the season to .254 for Bishop, and Gelbert made a mark of .304 to Boley's .274.

Charley Gelbert

The Cardinal shortstop's father, by the way, was well-known to Pittsburgh sport followers three decades ago.

He was Charley Gelbert, all-America ball star from Penn, who played end on D.C. and A.C. professional eleven, holding forth at old Exposition Park.

NATIONAL LEAGUE ROOTERS ask for Frisch to be a shining light against the A's in all departments. A money player par excellence is the St. Louis second sacker. He always does his best work when there is most at stake, and a World Series generally finds him outdoing himself at bat, in the field and on the bases. This will be the sixth big series in which Frankie has taken part. Against the Yankees in 1922 he made the sensational batting average of .471, and against the same club in 1923 he hit .400 even.

FRISCH'S STICK MARK against the Senators in 1924 was .333, and against the Yankees in 1921 it was .300. The only time he fell below the .300 mark was in 1928 against the Yankees, when he dropped to .231, while the Cards were being knocked off for four in a row.

In the latter series it was charged that the base paths at the Yankee Stadium had been soaked with water for the purpose of slowing up the Cardinals' speed merchants, Frisch in particular.

THIS IS NOT the first World Series for Burleigh Grimes. The former Pirate spit-baller had one previous experience in the big stakes when he pitched for Brooklyn against Cleveland in the post-season debate of 1920. The Robins won only two games against Cleveland's five in that series and Grimes bagged one of them. Sherrod Smith, also a one-time Buccaneer, copped the other.

Grimes pitched the first of Brooklyn's two victories, beating the Indians, 3-to-0 in the second game of the string, with Jim Bagby and George Uhle hurling for Cleveland. He lost to Bagby in the fifth game, 8 to 1, and to Stanley Coveleskie in the seventh, 3 to 0. Burleigh has done a lot of traveling to get into his second series. He went from the Robins to the Giants, from the Giants to the Pirates, from the Pirates to the Braves, and from the Braves to the Cards.

Al Simmons

The Cards make no secret of the fact that Al Simmons, Connie Mack's great left-fielder and hitting ace, is the man whom they fear most of the Philadelphia attack. Simmons is the best hitter on either side in the series, as judged by the season's averages, his mark of .377 being higher than that credited to any other player attached to the Redbirds or Athletics. All of the National Leaguers' plans are centered around the stopping of the star slugger, and Gabby Street's warriors are confident that if they can spike Mack's main gun, they will be on the long end of the count at the finish.

THAT STREET WAS not overlooking any detail that might help his club's chances in the derby was shown even in the final workout of the Cardinals on the day before the opener. Gabby started the drill at exactly 1:30 o'clock, the time fixed for the beginning of the games.

The object of the St. Louis pilot was to get his men accustomed to the identical conditions they would be called upon to face later. The lights and shadows in a ball park change with the clock and the

SCALPERS AT SERIES HIT

MACK STANDS PAT ON HIS LINEUP

By CONNIE MACK

Manager Philadelphia Athletics

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—For several days you have been reading comparisons of the Athletics and Cardinals' players and the mammoth columns of advance gossip about these big games and today at Shibe Park the teams will get into action and from now to the finish you will have actual results as a daily tidbit until the series is finished.

Everybody wants to know the identity of the pitcher who will shoot the first pitch to the St. Louis lead-off man this afternoon.

I am going to let you into a little secret.

I don't know at the moment this is written.

Moreover I don't know the names of the starting pitcher in any other of the games and if I ever decide on my man the night before I am going to keep his name locked in my breast, for possibly the next day I might change my mind while the pitchers are warming up and then folks would doubt my veracity.

The best way out of it is to keep a tight lip on the most delicate question you can ask a manager.

"Whom are you going to pitch?"

LINEUP INTACT

I can give you some straight facts about the rest of the lineup. It will consist of the eight regulars, which includes Catcher Cochrane, that finished the final world series game last fall.

I certainly would not think of sidetracking any of those boys who pulled two games out of the fire for me in Philadelphia last fall.

Yet there is just one chance of a shift. Cochrane will be behind the bat, Foxx at first, Bishop at second, Boley at short, Dykes at third, Simmons in left and Miller in right, but if Gabby Street elects to start with a left-handed pitcher, then Jimmy Moore, my hard-hitting right-handed rookie, will be in center and not George Haas. In this series I want to utilize as many right-handed hitters as possible when a southpaw opposes us.

Of course, we will make every effort to get the jump on the Missourians by winning that first game. In a world series it means a lot.

PLAYERS ARE TENSE

I have been through a lot of world series fire and try to profit from my experience. My players have had one year of it and I believe they will start the opening game serene in mind and amid all the clamor and cries of the fans and the demand for pictures from photographers they will treat this afternoon's affair just as another ball game.

It is only natural that the players realize that they are facing some exceptional stage in their careers, where their every move will be under the tensest scrutiny and they will feel they must be on their mettle more than ever.

No doubt last night the members of both Athletics and Cardinals could not help dreaming about this game today. It is only human that they will be a little nervous in practice.

But, once the first ball is pitched, the strain will wear off and then it will be a case of every player giving everything in him.

GAME'S BIGGEST MOMENT

It's the soaring ambition of every player to shine in a world series. A feat that he performs in the playing season bears only passing attention and soon is forgotten, but if he does something big in the classic then the whole nation knows it and it will lodge in their minds long.

Players of just average worth in a playing season often rise to great heights in the world series, and their valiant deeds continue to buzz in their ears wherever they go for years to come.

KDKA IN SERIES HOOKUP

KDKA will be on the air with the world series description by Graham McNamee and Ford Frick over the National Broadcasting Company chain beginning a half hour before game time daily. This means that the broadcast today began at 1 p. m., eastern standard time, and the St. Louis games will be on at 2 o'clock, eastern standard time.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: CONNIE MACK'S REMARKABLE MANAGERIAL RECORD—Connie Mack, one of the most illustrious figures in baseball, has been manager of the Philadelphia club of the American League since 1900. His club won pennants in 1902, 1905, 1910, 1911, 1913, 1914, 1929 and 1930, and they have taken the world series in 1910, 1911, 1913 and 1929 and are favored to win again in the series opening today. THE RADIUM CLOCK—This clock, constructed by Dr. Frank E. Simpson, head of the Radium Clinic of Chicago, is the nearest approach to perpetual motion yet discovered. Radium is contained in a glass tube, from the end of which are suspended two gold leaves. An aluminum sheath is mounted on opposite sides of the leaves, and the whole apparatus is enclosed in a glass case pumped out to as low a vacuum as possible. In operation, the rays from the radium charge the leaves with positive electricity, which causes them to diverge until they touch the metal sheath. The leaves then drop back to their original position, and the movement is repeated. The clock has been running constantly for four years, and it is declared that, theoretically, it will never stop. JIMMY BIGELOW—A BANJO KING—To establish a banjo playing endurance record Bigelow played his banjo continuously from 8 p. m. August 15, to 8 p. m. August 16, 1930, at the Rhodes-Futch-Collins Company, in Jacksonville, Fla. The contest was broadcast over station WJAX, and reported in the Jacksonville papers of that date. they were eagerly snapped up. Shibe Park officials long ago made ineffectual efforts to stop this "bootlegging" of birds-eye view seats for game here, but the city government upheld the owners of the tenements.

HOOVER APPLAUDED

The fans rose to their feet when President Hoover and his party entered the field through a gate back of third base, and applauded loudly while the head of the nation and those accompanying him walked through two long linees of police to the draped box near the dugout of the A's.

Earl Smith, former Pirate catcher, recalled by St. Louis from Toledo too late to be eligible for the series under the rules, but allowed to take part by permission of Mack and Commissioner Landis, on account of incapacitation of Jimmy Wilson, was behind the plate for the National Leaguers in their batting session.

MISCUE COSTLY

It was 1:35 when Grove sent in the first pitch to start the game. The first inning gave promise of a pitchers' battle, as both Grove and Grimes appeared to have all their usual stuff and fine control. Grimes showed a short spell of wildness when he walked Cochrane, but the pass did no damage, as Mickey was an easy out when he tried to steal second.

An outfield miscue gave the A's the first advantage in the second inning after Grove had bowled over the Redbirds in order and Simmons had been retired on the Philadelphia side. Foxx got a three-bagger, due to Blades' poor handling of his hit to right field. The batter should have been held at second, but Blades handled the ball poorly and permitted him to stretch it into a triple. The result was that Foxx was able to score a moment later on Miller's sacrifice fly to Blades, whereas clean fielding would have held the A's scoreless.

SIMMONS HITS HOMER

The advantage did not last long, however, for the Cards came back fighting in their half of the third and forced their way to the front by reaching Grove for two runs on three singles by Mancuso, Gelbert and Grimes and a pair of sacrifice flies by Douthit and Adams.

The clubs were put on even terms again in the last half of the fourth inning, when Simmons tied the score with a smash over the right field fence after two men had been retired. It was two-all going into the fifth.

A two-bagger and a fine exhibition of base running by Frisch were wasted in the fifth as Bottomley grounded to Foxx for the third out. A strong wind was blowing, making trouble for the outfielders in judging high drives.

21 PLAYERS ARE DRAFTED

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—Selection of Stewart Bolen, crack left-handed pitcher of the Baltimore Orioles, by the Philadelphia Nationals, and Wiley Moore, right-handed veteran pitcher of the St. Paul club, by the Boston Red Sox last night, featured the annual draft meeting of the major leagues, presided over by Baseball Commissioner Landis.

Bolen, who won 19 and lost 9 games with Baltimore this year was the first choice of the Phillies who had the pick of the field be-

Pro Golf Helps Amateur Game, Jones Says

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 1.—(AP.)—Professional golf purifies the amateur game, says Bobby Jones in an interview published in the Daily Princetonian, campus daily of Princeton University.

"Without professionalism," Jones said in the interview, "men would not have the opportunity to make an honest living at golf and in their stead there would be a great many 'crooks' falsely pretending to be amateurs."

CHICAGO CITY SERIES OPENS

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—A season's debate over the merits of the downtrodden White Sox and the somewhat haughty Cubs drew to a climax as the teams finished preparations for their interesting series for the baseball championship of Chicago.

The series opens today at Comiskey Park, home of the White Sox, and continues until one team wins four games. Rogers Hornsby and his Cubs were heavy favorites but a hard-fought series was anticipated because of the admitted superiority of White Sox pitchers and their top-heavy record of victories over the 1929 National League champions in the past.

More than 32,000 were expected to attend the first game of the series.

Manager Hornsby indicated he would send either Pat Malone, his fire ball ace, or Bud Teachout, his young southpaw, to the mound in the opening battle, while Manager Donie Bush, of the White Sox, expected to employ his knuckle ball ace, Teddy Lyons.

WIGGINS KNOCKED OUT

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 1.—(AP.)—Johnny Schwake, St. Louis heavyweight, stopped Chuck Wiggins, Indianapolis, last night in the sixth round of a scheduled 10-round fight. Wiggins absorbed terrific punishment during the fifth round and his seconds tossed in the towel at the start of the next round.

Uncle Sam to Get Big Cut in Series

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—(INS.)—The federal government is a much interested "party of the second part" in the World Series that starts today in Philadelphia.

Like the teams and the players, Uncle Sam does not know just how much money will be collected and sent to the treasury as 10 per cent of all paid admissions exceeding $3.

Last year the government was given $81,596; in 1928, $63,921 and in 1927, $78,322. This was the year the tax was reduced from 10 per cent on all $1 admissions.

Nineteen twenty-six and 1925 were banner years for the treasury; $120,789 was turned over in 1926 and $119,068 in 1925—the years when the tax was high.

GABBY EXPECTS CARDS TO END SERIES JINX

By CHARLES (GABBY) STREET, Manager, St. Louis Cardinals

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—Somebody had to break down that American League world series jinx and it might as well be the Cardinals. The boys have the batting power, the pitching and they have shown their ability to fight, and I believe there won't be so much conversation about American League supremacy after we get through with the Athletics. I don't mean to show any disrespect for Connie Mack and his ball club. Mack must have a good club, for it to repeat and win its second straight pennant, but I believe I have a better ball club.

Gabby Street

Burleigh Grimes will be my pitcher in the first game. There is no secret about it. I'm going to send Grimes to the hill, not because he is the only good pitcher we have, but because his style is different from anything the Athletics have seen and I am confident that Grimes will give the American Leaguers plenty of trouble. Grimes, you know, is more than a spitball pitcher. He is one of the hardest workers in the business, an excellent fielder and one of the smart men of baseball. And he has supreme confidence in himself and his team.

WANTS TO MEET GROVE

Grimes told me the other day that he hoped he'd draw Bob Grove in the opening game. He said he knew he could whip Grove and that he felt that if we could knock Grove off in the first contest, we'd have the Athletics on the run.

But we're not worrying about Mack's pitching selection. The writers have been discussing the possibility of another surprise, like the sending of Ehmke against the Cubs last year, but we won't be startled or worried by any selection Mack may make. We've faced some pretty good pitchers in the National League, curve ball stars and others who have depended on speed, and we've beaten down all opposition in one of the greatest drives in the history of pennant competition, so bring on Grove, Earnshaw, Walberg or any "surprise" pitcher. The Cardinals have won 39 out of their last 49 games and that's almost .800 per cent, and no team could hang up a record like that if it was weak against any one kind of pitching.

Returning to our pitching selection for the opening game. It may be interesting to point out that Urban Faber beat the Athletics four times this year. He's a spitball pitcher and a good one, but I don't believe any one would say he's as good as Grimes, and certainly he didn't have behind him, in the White Sox, any team to compare with the Cardinals.

WINGS BEAT COLONELS

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 1.—(AP.)—A third strike caught on the first bounce and apparently noticed by nobody except the batter proved the turning point in yesterday's little World Series game. It gave the Rochester Internationals a 4 to 2 advantage over the Louisville American Association representatives. Rochester won, 8 to 6, and now needs but one more victory to win the series.

In the eighth inning Louisville leading 5 to 4, Worthington tripled with one out. Penner who had relieved Marcum for Louisville struck out Collins and Wilson, but Catcher Barnes caught the last strike on the bounce. He failed to throw to first. The Louisville players moved in as though the inning was over, then saw the alert Wilson racing for first and clustered themselves around home and third. Wilson dashed to second.

Florence came up and singled to right to put the Red Wings a run ahead. Pitcher Berly banged a triple to right and Florence scored. Berly was out trying to stretch his hit into a home run.

The stands were far from full, wide vacancies showing among the right field stands and estimates were about 6,000 persons attended. The weather was bright with a slight tang of autumn in the air. The score:

Jockey Fator Gets Suspension

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—Laverne Fator, generally recognized as America's premier jockey, once again has aroused the ire of a Metropolitan racing official.

Few and far between have been the times that Fator has been set down for infraction of rules, but yesterday the popular little contract rider for Harry F. Fator was suspended for the remainder of the meeting, ending this Saturday.

Highberger May Escape Knife For Present

DEL VECCHIO VICTOR AT RIVERSIDE

CAMBRIDGE SPRINGS, Oct. 1.—There is a saying that a good little fighter can often beat a good big fighter, but it remained for Perry Del Vecchio, of Greensburg, the Pittsburgh district's David of the golf links, to prove to a field of Goliaths that a good little golfer can trim a field of good big golfers.

Del Vecchio maintained a lead which he established in the first round of play to carry off first money in the fifth annual Northwestern Pennsylvania title pro tournament at the Riverside Golf Club here yesterday. He finished with a card of 287, three strokes ahead of Johnny Capebianco, of the Meadville Country Club, and Albert Alcroft, of the Youngstown Country Club, who deadlocked for second place with scores of 290.

PLAYS STEADY GAME

The Greensburg pro won because he was the steadiest golfer in the tournament. He started out with a 70 on his first round, and then shot two 72's and a 73 to complete his winning card.

Alcroft and Capebianco shot brilliant and spotty golf on their final rounds. The Youngstown pro was out in 34 on his morning round, but used up 39 shots coming back. In the afternoon he hit the turn at 40, and streaked back in 34. Capebianco shot a sparkling 33 on his outward nine yesterday morning, but came back in 38, and in the afternoon he was out in 39 and bagged a 34 on the home nine.

The money winners and their scores follow:

Perry Del Vecchio, Greensburg Country Club, 287, $150; Johnny Capebianco, Meadville Country Club, 290, $85; Albert Alcroft, Youngstown Country Club, 290, $85; Ted Luther, Corry Country Club, 297, $45; Jack Gordon, Transit Valley Country Club, Buffalo, 297, $45; Vincent Eldred, Highland Country Club, 297, $45; Fred Baroni, Stanton Heights Golf Club, 298, $25; Frank Presby, Youngstown Country Club, 299, $20.

Hoover Heads Notables at Game; Cold Breezes Chill Fans

SHIBE PARK, PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—(INS.)—Thunderous applause rose from the stands as President Hoover and his party arrived on the scene at 1:12 p. m. today for the opening game of the World Series.

The President doffed his hat. There were about 50 in his party. He wore a dark brown suit and a dark brown felt hat. He had the appearance of being a hardy individual, for, unlike the majority of spectators, he wore no topcoat.

President Hoover and party, including five cabinet members, were escorted to their boxes in back of the A's dugout.

The army of photographers, who had been scampering about snapping pictures of the players, deserted the A's and Cards and concentrated on the President. They took his picture from all angles.

MANY NOTABLES THERE

Topped by President Hoover, the most celebrated of all celebrities, the list of luminaries today included such nomes as Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker, Walter Johnson, Babe Ruth, Judge Landis, Don Howley, Lena Blackburne, John McGraw, Barney Dreyfuss, E. S. Barnard, John Heydler, Col. Jacob Ruppert, Lou Gehrig, Joe McCarthy and public officials, actors and business men too numerous to mention.

For blocks around the park, the streets were black with thousands of disappointed fans who had been unable to obtain tickets for the classic, but nevertheless were ridiculously hopeful of somehow getting a glimpse of their favorites in action. Whether they got inside the park or not, these fans at least had the satisfaction of knowing that they were part and parcel of that intangible but highly important thing known as World Series color.

TRAFFIC SNARLED

Needless to say, the Philadelphia Police Department had its hands full in controlling the crowds not only in the vicinity of the park, but in the business section of the city as well. Traffic fumed and snarel and did everything but bite the hand of Father Penn.

Enterprising property owners in the vicinity of the ball park made a neat profit for themselves by erecting miniature bleacher seats on the roofs of their buildings.

Fans who had difficulty finding their seats thought twice before they bawled out the ushers. Those clever Messrs. Shibe were thoughtful enough to hire an army of pretty girls with cute red tam-o-shanters to show the customers where to park.

The press box for the series was built up under the roof of the grandstand, much to the discomfort of the pigeons and other feathered creatures who frequent that part of the stadium. Wonder what a pigeon thinks of a baseball writer, anyhow?

The first sign of activity on the ball field came when Nick Altrock and Al Schacht, the American League baseball clowns, pranced out on to the arena, doffing their caps with profound bows to the multitude, which greeted them with mingled cheers and boos. Altrock and Schacht put on the Ruth St. Denis death dance. Donning skirts, they flitted and chirped about airily, as if tossing garlands of roses in some strange wild ecstasy.

The comedians then put up a tennis net and gave a terrible imitation of Big Bill Tilden versus Vinny Richards, or something. This act was received with a deadening silence. Undaunted, Altrock and Schacht then erected a ring, donned boxing gloves and staged a realistic imitation of the famous Tunney-Dempsey "Battle of the Long Count," and the crowd gave them a good hand for this one.

PALUSO BEATS SIEGEL

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Lou Paluso, clever Salt Lake City veteran, handed Willie Siegel, New York, the first defeat of his career before 3,000 persons in St. Nicholas Arena here last night.

Ripley CREATOR OF BELIEVE IT or NOT—PROVES IT

OLD GOLD WINS

in Battle for Navy's Favor

By ROBERT RIPLEY, Creator of Believe It or Not

"This week I put OLD GOLD up against the stiffest Believe It or Not test it ever had to face.

"I put it in competition with the Navy's favorite cigarette . . . in the biggest stronghold of that cigarette, aboard the Battleship Colorado . . . where it outsells all other brands 20 to 1.

"Yet, believe it or not, when the Gobs smoked OLD GOLD, in comparison with the Navy's favorite and 2 other leading brands, O.G.'s won in a walk-away, 28 to 22.

"And, mind you, the brand names were concealed . . . only taste decided.

"Believe It or Not fans know I prove my facts . . . every time. Just read the clipping in box at right, reprinted from the Colorado Look-Out, the big battleship's own newspaper. And I'll send you the Certified Public Accountant's report if you want it!"

"RIP" AND SCORER! Above is Bob Ripley with one of the marines who helped to audit the score.

The P. Lorillard and Co., makers of Old Gold cigarettes, visited the Colorado yesterday in an effort to discover the man-o'-war's-man's preference in cigarettes. They brought along a number of cameramen, auditors, examiners, and the like, and also brought that famous personage who sketches the "Believe It or Not" articles in the daily papers—Mr. Ripley. It was a good old fashioned smoker that took place on the forecastle, with sailors and marines crowded around, holding black-banded cigarettes in either hand, and intense concentration written on each face. After each puff the person taking it would look off in the distance, wrinkle his brow for a second, blow out the smoke and take another puff.

"Believe it or not," Old Gold cigarettes, took precedence over the two navy standbys, beating the "Navy's skagg" by a fair margin. The test is a fair one, and although some of the men could hardly believe that they had not picked their pet skagg out of the set,

Here's a clipping from the U. S. S. Colorado "Look-Out," battleship newspaper, that tells the story.

LEAGUE GAME SLATED AT PARNASSUS

By TOM BIRKS

The opening [illegible] of the Western Pennsylvania independent gridiron [illegible] Parnassus [illegible] when the Burns A. A. meets the Majestic Radio [illegible] lights will get under way at [illegible] o'clock tonight.

Memories [illegible] featuring Pitt and West Virginia will cross [illegible] when Tom Parkinson [illegible] Uansa, [illegible] the famous Blue and White of Burns clash with Sleepy Glenn, former Mountaineer and now backfield star [illegible] Green and White Majestic aggregation.

GREAT BACKFIELDS

New Kensington [illegible] looking [illegible] the history [illegible] ball. Many [illegible] will be members of [illegible].

Two great backfields [illegible] Coach Dick [illegible] Smith have gathered [illegible] classed as the greatest team ever to represent Dan Burns on the gridiron. When Referee [illegible] Rebele blows the initial whistle Toby Uansa, the galloping ghost of Pitt, will be calling signals from the halfback position. Tom Parkinson will be playing quarterback, Sharkey will be at fullback and Halpate will be at the other half.

Opposing this combination will be Jimmy Rooney, former Pitt star, calling the signals for the Majestics, who is one of the greatest kickers ever to wear the Blue and Gold. Levy, sensational halfback from the Quantico Marines and Sleepy Glenn, open field runners, and Mose Kelsh, veteran line battering ram, are the others in the backfield. McKean, formerly of Lafayette and Chill of East Pittsburgh, will be the ends for Burns, while Pat Scanlon and Honey Guarino, Pitt stars, will be in Art Rooney's lineup.

Doc Benedict of Midland, another Pitt star of other years will be at center for the Majestics, opposing Pendro.

LIGHTS WORK O. K.

Manager Jimmy Smith had the lights working last evening and everything seemed to be set to handle a capacity crowd. The probable starting lineups follow:

Burns A. A.		Majestic Radio
McKean	L. E.	[illegible]

Sharkey	F.	Kelsh

Officials—Carl Rebele, referee; Lou Mackey, umpire; [illegible], linesman.

SERIES GROUND RULES SET

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—World Series ground rules made public today for the first time by Baseball Commissioner Landis, limit the prospect of freak home runs playing any part in the battle between the Athletics and Cardinals.

Balls striking fair and bounding into the stands on foul ground will be held to two-base hits, but if they hop into the stands on fair ground they will be home runs.

Balls hitting the cluster of amplifying horns atop the right-centerfield fence at Shibe Park must stick in one of the horns to be a homer. If they merely strike the loud-speaking apparatus and bounce back, the ball will still be in play.

At Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, balls dropping between the screen and wall will be ruled two base hits. They must go through or strike in the screen above the wall to be home runs.

Quick pitches are barred under the series regulations, which also specify the following:

All balls to be dirtied before put in play.

Rosin bag to be provided for each game.

One base on passed ball or wild pitch.

Ball striking wall of upper tier at Shibe Park, and bounding back in field, home run.

JEBY BEATS McGORGARY

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—Ben Jeby, New York middleweight, [illegible] Babe McGorgary, of Oklahoma, in a six-round bout at the Broadway Arena last night. Jeby weighed 160, McGorgary 161½.

MY 50 YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK
MANAGER OF WORLD CHAMPION PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS

INSTALLMENT NO. 21

Connie Mack.

Time sped fast during the winter of 1900-01 and I soon was cognizant of the stern realities before me. I held a major league baseball franchise and had leased a plot of ground, but had no stands to house the prospective fans and no players to attract them.

I had just about five weeks to overcome these deficiencies. James Foster, who had built many baseball and football stands, was formally awarded a contract.

Mr. Foster was a man of much energy and initiative, who personally supervised the work through long hours every day and actually had them constructed in time for the opening game.

It was a marvelous thing to do in such a short space of time and I always gave Mr. Foster full credit for getting Columbia Park started on the right foot.

My associates and I decided to forego the luxury of a training trip to the South and we did our preliminary training at Columbia Park in Philadelphia while the stands were in course of erection.

With work beginning on the stands I now was able to concentrate all my attention on the most important problem of all—getting a team of players that would be a credit to the city and the new league.

CORRALS PLAYERS

We couldn't hope to intrigue the Philadelphia baseball public with a mediocre team. We were newcomers and it was up to us to give followers something as good or better than the Phillies could offer if we hoped to get a foothold.

The American League owners previously had decided that while they would not attempt to get any National League players actually under contract they would not recognize the reserve clause and any player not signed for 1901 was considered fair game.

Then I set out to sign players. Negotiations were prolonged and sometimes lasted far into the night. I often had to do with five or six hours' sleep because I always had some early morning appointment.

I made a drive on the best players on the Phillies' roster and from that team I was successful in signing Napoleon Lajoie, one of the mightiest hitters in baseball history, and Pitchers Bernhard, Platt and Fraser, of the same team.

SIGNS EDDIE PLANK

Up in Gettysburg, there has been a left-handed pitcher who beat everybody in sight while pitching for Gettysburg College. His name was Eddie Plank and I rushed up there suddenly and signed him, a move I was never to regret.

From Indianapolis I obtained Doc Powers, a catcher, and from the Pirates I grabbed another maskman, Harry Smith. Charley Carr was my original first baseman, but after the season started he gave way to Harry Davis, owned by the Providence club, who had announced his retirement. He was a clerk in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad when I induced him to return to the game. Davis was a topnotch hitter and played for me for a long term of years.

After major league trials with Pittsburgh and New York, he reached the peak of his usefulness when he put on an Athletics uniform.

I also signed Dave Fultz, who had been with me in Milwaukee, and then obtained Socks Seybold from Indianapolis. Then I next added Doc Hayden, a college boy from the University of Pennsylvania, and Ketcham, an outfielder, from the New York State League. Phil Geier, who once played with the Phillies, also was obtained.

FIRST YEAR LINEUP

Then I made a stroke in signing Lave Cross, who for many seasons had been a National League star. My list of players to open the 1901 season consisted of Geier, Hayden, Fultz, Seybold and Ketcham, outfielders; Carr, first baseman; Lajoie, second baseman; Lockhead, shortstop; L. Cross, third baseman; Powers, Smith and Steelman, catchers, and Barnhard, Fraser, Duggleby, Platt and Plank, pitchers.

During our first season, the lineup was changed from time to time.

At first there were grave doubts in the mind of the public as to whether the league would survive. The Brotherhood debacle of 1890 always was used as an example that there was no room for two big leagues.

These critics never took into consideration that America had grown considerably since 1890 and that the American League was operated by keen business men and not by inexperienced and bewildered players.

As the season progressed both public and players began to realize that the new circuit was here to stay. So far as the players were concerned it no longer was necessary for us to hold out fabulous salaries as a bait.

Of course there were a few exceptions but a lot of National League stars that season agreed to come to us the next year almost without urging.

While none of the clubs in this first year could make a great deal of money because of initial expenses, very little was lost.

LEAGUE PROVES SUCCESS

Altogether the first season of the expanded American League must be considered a success. The position of the league was stronger at the end of the season than at the start.

In Philadelphia, Boston and Chicago, where there were opposition National League teams, the American League interloping team received a most cordial reception.

There was no doubt that the junior league had struck at the psychological time. For some years the National League had been unprogressive and many of the owners had reached an age where they had lost their enthusiasm for the sport and were content to stand still and let well enough alone.

They had cut their circuit from 12 to 8 clubs, which was bad policy, for it served notice on the public that the league had more or less lost confidence in the future of baseball.

The American League owners were of different caliber. They were all eager and enthusiastic and carried a note of optimism in their actions that did not fail to capture the fans.

It was not long before it began to sink in among baseball followers that the American League was proving the salvation of baseball. The baseball fans of America rose to support the new venture.

sun and Gabby wanted to have his players prepared for what they would encounter at game time each day on the enemy's field.

ONE PLAYER IN particular to express satisfaction with this arrangement at the conclusion of the last preparatory drill was Centerfielder Taylor Douthit. After an extended workout in the middle garden, he said he felt sure that the sun would not bother him.

It will be recalled that this same sun field was largely the cause of the Cub's woes a year ago. The loss of two flies by Hack Wilson in the sun figured heavily in winning rallies of the Mackmen. The pasture, in all probability, will be guarded much more effectively on the National League side this time, as Douthit is one of the greatest centerfielders in the business.

Beans Reardon

IN THE SELECTION of umpires for the 1930 series, Beans Reardon gets an appointment that would have fallen to him last year but for an illness with which he was stricken in Pittsburgh. Beans was in line for one of the National League posts in 1929, but early in August an attack of appendicitis forced him to undergo an operation at West Penn Hospital. That put him out of commission for the remainder of the year. But this fall he was given the belated appointment by President John A. Heydler, and Beans will take home with him to California an extra $2,500, the pay fixed by World Series regulations for each of the four arbiters officiating in the post-season stakes. It is the first time Reardon has worked in the blue ribbon.

Fight Results

At New York—Ben Jeby defeated Babe McGorgary, six rounds. Harry Smith knocked out Herman [illegible], five rounds. Leo [illegible] defeated William Siegel, 10 rounds. Jimmy McNamara and Sammy [illegible] drew, 10 rounds.

At Los Angeles—Young Corbett, III, defeated Sammy Jackson, 10 rounds.

At Syracuse—Jackie Brady and Bucky Lawless drew, 10 rounds. Jimmy Slattery—Lee Darcy bout stopped for stalling, eight rounds.

At Portland, Me.—Con O'Kelly defeated King Solomon, 12 rounds.

At Reading—Gaston LaCadre defeated Pal [illegible], 10 rounds. Joe Rubio and Red Delp boxed no contest, three rounds. Frankie Paul defeated Young Chappie, six rounds. Danny Dearie and Mexican Cato drew, six rounds. Mickey Casey knocked out Johnny Carr, two rounds.

At [illegible], Pa.—Baby Joe Gans defeated Vincent Hambright, 10 rounds. Frankie [illegible] defeated Billy Washington, six rounds. Hughey Civalle defeated Jackie Harman, 8 rounds.

At Springfield, Ill.—Johnny Schwake knocked out (technical) Chuck Wiggins, six rounds.

At Indianapolis—Walter Pickard defeated George Cook, 10 rounds. Roxy (Kid) Baker defeated Norman Brown, eight rounds.

At Rochester, N. Y.—Jackie Fields defeated Jackie Horner, 10 rounds.

At Atlantic City—Tony Falco defeated Sammy [illegible], 8 rounds. Red Grange defeated Ritchie [illegible], 6 rounds.

At Vineland, N. J.—Tommy Wilson knocked out Jack Wilkerson, 3 rounds.

Two Klinzings To Play for Olympics

Manager Fred Iverson, of the McKeesport Olympics, announced last evening that Boots and Moon Klinzing had signed for the Tubers. Bill Loehr, former Pitt end, and McManus also have been signed. They will be eligible for the Burns game Sunday. Eisenberg, Pottersnack, Ford and Dunlay have been dropped.

Joe Wambaugh, of the East Pittsburgh club, has signed Painter and Albright, last year's members of the McChesneytown team. Bunyan, Anthony, O'Malley and Truxell were dropped.

GARDEN, MOOSE FIGHT CARDS COMPLETE

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor

It's an ill wind that blows no one good. So believe Jim McGirr, McKeesport fistic impresario, and Apples Meyers, ditto at the Moose Temple, and neither is peeved over the fact that the management of Hickey Park, Millvale, has decided to forego its final outdoor boxing show, carded for tomorrow night, because of the chilly weather.

The calendar was badly congested with both McKeesport and Hickey Park slated for tomorrow night and the Moose Temple following the next night. Canceling of one of the shows gives the other two a break in the matter of patronage.

Meyers today completed his program for Friday by signing Eddie Hebner, of Clairton, to box Eddie Polo, southpaw of the North Side, in the second bout, and Tom Anderson, North Side Negro, to meet Joe Gaudy, of McKeesport, in the opener. He has Marty Gold, of Philadelphia, who defeated Tommy McBeigh at Toronto, Canada, Monday night, in with Frankie (Kid) Anslem, of New York, for his 10-round main bout and Billy Holt and Jimmy Kelly in the six-round semi-final.

GARDEN FILLS BILL

The Motor Square Garden program for its reopening show next Monday night also is complete, Marty Gornick, of McKeesport, having been signed to box Bobby Barnes, Homewood Negro, in the opening bout. Barnes was a finalist in the recent Golden Gloves amateur tournament in the Meyers Bowl. Chuck Taggert and Harry Harris box the eight-round semi-final at the Garden, with Tom McCaffrey and Al Becker in the second bout.

A double windup of two 10-round bouts featuring Jimmy Belmont against Johnny Poplig and Young Rudy against Paul Oger tops off the McKeesport bill tomorrow night.

In the two six-round preliminaries, Lloyd Clemons, of Swissvale, will battle Mike Kelly, formerly Pete Kuzma, of the South Side, and Sharkey Lesko, of McKeesport, will engage Leonard Payne, local Negro welterweight.

Between Rounds

Season patrons of the Garden are requested to enter their orders for their usual seats before the end of this week. Newcomers will be given any of the usual reservations not filled.

Freddie Boylstein and Hans Roberts are down for a postponed eight-round main bout at Kittanning tonight. Young Firpo boxes Frankie Rapp at Philadelphia.

LOTT, ALLISON WIN ON COAST

BERKELEY, Cal., Oct. 1.—(AP.)—George Lott, Chicago, defeated George Green, San Francisco, 6-4, 6-4 here yesterday in a second round men's singles match of the Pacific Coast tennis championship.

Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., disposed of Vern Neville, Berkeley, 7-5, 6-2, in another second round match.

The Davis Cup doubles team of Allison and John Van Ryn, East Orange, N. J., met unexpected opposition in the first round encounter against Ed Levy and Wallace Bates, both of San Francisco, but came through with a 7-5, 6-4 triumph.

The second seeded doubles team of Lott and J. Gilbert Hall, Orange, N. J., defeated Dr. A. G. Rawlins and Martin Liebes, San Francisco, 6-0, 6-4.

N. B. A. to Drop Fight For Boxing Control

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—(INS.)—The resolution adopted by the National Boxing Association's convention September 16, aiming for complete control of boxing, will be submitted to a vote of the 29 member states, it was announced today.

Gen. John V. Clinnin, newly elected president of the N. B. A., predicted that the resolution will be rescinded in announcing the mail vote to be held among member states.

The resolution in question, offered by Stanley M. Isaacs, retiring president, was aimed at four states, New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and California. It stipulated:

"After January 1, 1931, any boxer who performs in one of the non-member states will not be used in any of the N. B. A. member states."

JACKIE FIELDS WINS

Mack, Street Confident of Victory

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—Pre-battle statements of the rival managers to the Associated Press:

CONNIE MACK, ATHLETICS—"It looks like a very good and, I hope, very interesting series. We all like a good contest. My boys are all in good condition. We expect to win, but if we don't, there will be no alibis."

CHARLES STREET, CARDINALS—"This is just another series for us, no tougher, if as tough as those we went through to win the pennant. Our pitchers are all in great shape, starting with Grimes, and the whole team is confident. So am I."

Two Grid Games In Westmoreland Co.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 1.—Two outstanding scholastic football games are carded for Westmoreland County gridirons Saturday.

The most important is the game between Schenley High, of Pittsburgh, and Norwin, which is to be played on the Norwin field, while the Jeannette-Hurst game at Jeannette is arousing much interest. Schenley defeated Norwin last season and Hurst beat Jeannette in 1929.

Greensburg is scheduled to clash with Youngwood on the local field.

SEEDED TENNIS STARS WIN

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

Two seeded favorites and as many dark horses fought into the semi-finals of the eighth annual Harvard Cup interscholastic net tourney on the Arnold School courts here yesterday afternoon. Bud Leyda, Bellevue ace and third on the selected list, ding-donged through a protracted struggle with Paul Elliott, Wilkinsburg youngster and captor of the 1928 Pittsburgh Center Boys' crown. The North Boroughs lad by his 7-5, 2-6, 6-3 verdict aligned himself today against Harry Ackerman, Mt. Lebanon contender, who has emerged from the pack as a serious title threat and who accounted for Grier, a second Wilkinsburger, 6-4, 4-6, 6-2, in the bracket of eight.

In the opposite half of the penultimate round, Maurice Saperstein, Fifth Avenue luminary and fourth seeded aspirant, will encounter Alvin Servick, Duquesne, Pa., slicer. Saperstein, mixing speed with steadiness, romped through Jim Sharpe, rather erratic Homesteader, 6-2, 6-1, while Servick, employing backspin and barrier play to excellent advantage, registered quite an upset at the expense of Jim Moorhead, Schenley conqueror of Milton King, Duke Prepper and first seeded star.

Today's card calls for action on the Arnold lot at 3 p. m. The finale will be run off at the University Club tomorrow. Summary:

Third round—Grier, Wilkinsburg, defeated Charles [illegible], Sewickley, 6-2, 4-6, 6-1; Sharpe, Homestead, defeated [illegible], Coraopolis, 1-6, 6-4, 6-1.

Fourth round—Saperstein, Fifth Avenue, defeated Sharpe, Homestead, 6-2, 6-1; Servick, Duquesne, defeated Moorhead, Schenley, 6-2, 5-7, 7-5; Ackerman, Mt. Lebanon, defeated Grier, Wilkinsburg, 6-4, 4-6, 6-2; Leyda, Bellevue, defeated Elliott, Wilkinsburg, 7-5, 2-6, 6-3.

cause of their position at the bottom of the National League. He formerly twirled for the St. Louis Browns and the Athletics.

In addition to Moore, the Red Sox also obtained a southpaw pitcher, J. B. Brillheart, from the Minneapolis club of the American Association.

The Phillies, besides Bolen, drafted Fred Koster, Little Rock outfielder and considered one of the fastest men in the minors.

Altogether, 21 minor leaguers were acquired under baseball's selective system, which has been the source of frequent clashes between the majors and minors. The prices paid for the drafted players scale down from $7,500, the price for men taken from the three "AA" circuits, International, American Association and Pacific Coast League.

The complete list of selected players:

COACHES MEET AGAIN

SUTHERLAND TO BATTLE RODGERS

By JESS CARVER.

It was away back when the war was on in full blast (correct me if I'm wrong) the last time a Pitt football team paid a visit to West Virginia's home encampment in Morgantown. Tubby McIntyre was coaching the Mountaineers and the Panthers were directed by Pop Warner. Memory still clicking o. k., it must be recorded that the Panthers had the dickens of a time chopping out a 14-to-9 decision.

Jock Sutherland

On that Pitt team was lanky Jock Sutherland, playing a guard, and on the Mountaineer eleven was burly Ira Rodgers, then in his heyday as a line wrecker.

Saturday, this same pair will meet in Morgantown again, but this time, as coaches. They've tangled before, you know, with Ira getting one decision out of five starts against teams coached by Sutherland. The chances appear to be exceedingly bright for Ira making it two out of six this week.

NO EDGE

I don't see any reason for giving either team an edge, despite the advantage the Mountaineers will have in playing on their own field and before a crowd of rabid home rooters. Pitt has a good ball club, possibly not as tough as last year's eleven, but not a great deal weaker. West Virginia undoubtedly is stronger than it has been for 10 years, and for the first time in almost that space of time, has stepped off in real style in its early games.

Yesterday, Pitt was given a long and hard workout. The boys will get another today and another tomorrow. Friday, they'll indulge in a light drill before boarding one of Jack Doyle's B. and O. choo-choos for Uniontown, there to spend the night.

Coach Sutherland is giving particular attention to his backfield. He isn't sure that Jimmy Clark will have recovered from his recent sick spell by Saturday. Hood and Bill Walinchus were used a bit roughly in the Waynesburg game and they've been taking it in no uncertain manner in recent scrimmages.

There is no cause for real worry however, for you can bet that Pitt will be in shape for Saturday's game. Eddie Baker, Josh Williams, Heller and either Hood or Clark will be all hopped up and ready to go.

Reports from Morgantown have it that the game is certain to be a sellout. Mountaineer Field filled to overflowing will cause tears of joy to stream from the smilin' eyes of Harry Adam Stansbury, and the chances are that he'll come strolling into the press box after checking the gate, about the middle of the first period, with a brand new stogie clamped between his store teeth.

EYTH TO START

Dutch Eyth is going to start against Thiel when the Tartans and Lutherans clash here in the Stadium Sat'day afternoon. This message tumbled from the bashful lips of Der Maxie Hannum, purveyor of publicity at Tech last evening.

Eyth sprang into real prominence last Saturday against Buffalo, when he ran for a touchdown almost every time he got his hands on the ball. He was used sparingly in the game, and the opposition was not first-class, but any player who can score four touchdowns in about 15 minutes against any kind of a club must have something beside pretty hair.

The Carnegie star has had a most peculiar career. He entered Tech from Mars High school, heralded as the greatest young halfback produced in this section in years. He had a remarkable season as a Plebe, Saturday after Saturday doing just the things he did against Buffalo last week. They called him a certain future all-American.

Then he came up to the varsity, ran into an injury in the first game of his sophomore year, and failed to live up to expectations. He was hurt early last year and was a mediocre back until he faced New York University and Southern California. He showed definite signs of a comeback in those games.

This year, under the competition provided by Johnny Graveno and several other sophomores, Eyth has made his comeback secure. He is down to 160 pounds, hard as nails, faster than ever, and has regained all his old ability to weave through broken fields and trick enemy tacklers.

HERD HERE TOMORROW

Down from the North the Thundering Herd from Detroit Tech will sweep this Friday night when the gridders from Henry Ford's bailiwick aim their attack at Elmer Layden's Dukes. The Detroit team will arrive in Pittsburgh tomorrow afternoon and will probably practice at Forbes Field tomorrow night so the Duquesne University squad has work aplenty laid out for it.

A hard running attack will probably be unleashed against the Dukes under the Forbes Field illuminators day after tomorrow and the spectators will doubtless see a defense on passes which was perfected especially for the Dukes. The aerial threat which the Dukes hold over the opponents' heads is sure to result in drills of this sort as their foes prep. The Michigan men are no exceptions to the rule.

Coolidge Only Expert Lacking at Series

By NICK ALTROCK.
Famous Baseball Humorist.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—Well, folks, they are already greasing the pulleys to yank up the curtain on the world series, Judge Landis is in town with talcum powder in his hair and all the experts have gathered in Philly with their portable typewriters and collapsible dope.

I know that 50,000,000 Frenchmen can't be wrong, but just a couple of hundred experts can counter-balance that many frogs. A baseball expert can't be wrong if you take his pencil and typewriter away and put a gag in his mouth. But that's all.

Nick Altrock

President Hoover will hurl out the first ball. He did that at our opening game of the season in Washington and almost brained a bat boy. His aim was not so hot. But for the last six months the President has been training for today's occasion.

You remember that medicine ball cabinet of his? Well, after he made a wild chuck at our opening game, Mr. Hoover got a lot of Cabinet athletes in one night and said:

"Boys, I've got a date next October 1 to throw out the first ball at the world series. And on account of Philadelphia being such a strong Republican town, I want to make a good showing."

MR. HOOVER READY

So they got their heads together and figured if Babe Ruth swings three or four bats before he goes up to the plate, so as to make a single bat seem easier, why Mr. Hoover should chuck a medicine ball around to improve his aim. So that was the reason for all that morning exercise he's been taking and when he chucks out that baseball it will seem as light as a pea.

Probably the Democratic National Committee will have seats in the grandstand right in back of Mr. Hoover and yell, "Ball!" when he throws it out, but Uncle Nick goes on record as predicting the President will show a lot of snap in his whip.

A lot of experts are on the ground and grooming themselves for the big ordeal. Graham McNamee will broadcast the series and he is up in his suite now, spraying his throat with a gold atomizer and sucking on slippery elm drops.

RADIO EXPERTS ON JOB

Graham is pretty neat at putting a world series game through the microphone. It is only after a long grind when he is tired that he is liable to say that Al Simmons just laid down a punt and it's Yale's ball on the 40-yard line.

That other sporting warbler, Ted Husing, is here, too. He will broadcast on the opposition chain and try to beat Graham by a couple syllables on close plays. Husing is up in his palatial suite, too, having his tonsils massaged and his larnx inspected.

That is one thing about your Uncle Nick. When I start out to expert a world series I do not have to be careful about my throat. As long as I have my private pencil sharpener with me I am all set. If I feel that I need a gargle, I can get it in a Camden (N. J.) speakeasy and it makes my world series dope all the more fluent.

About the only newspaper expert that isn't here is Calvin Coolidge. He is covering disarmament and farm relief up in Northampton, and, at that, he knows as much about the series as if he was down here on the job.

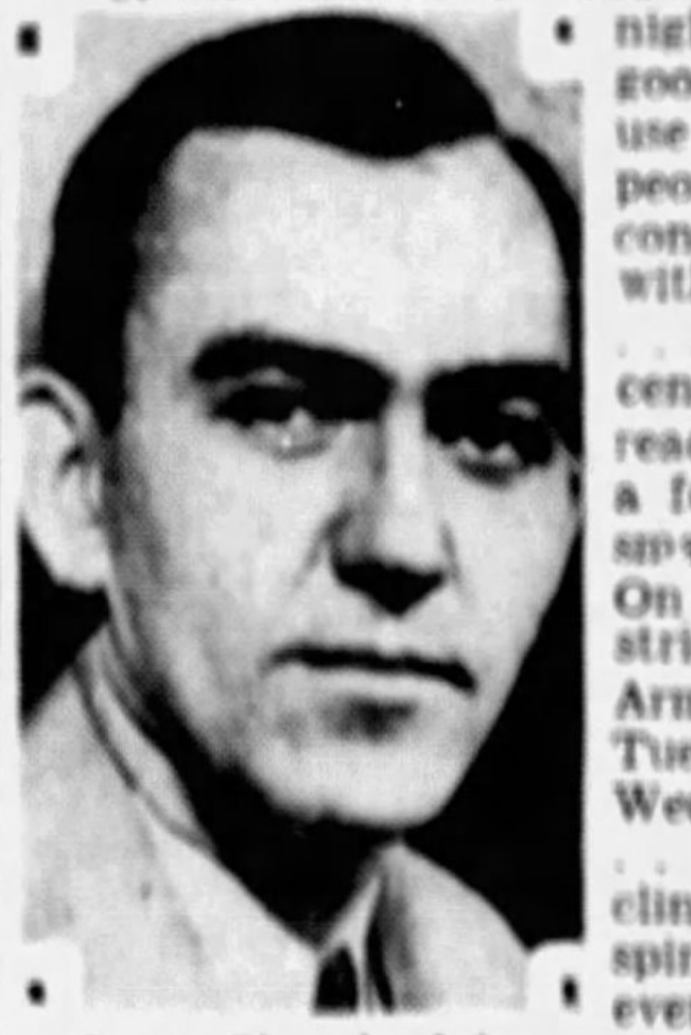
Former Tech End Proud Dad of Boy

The Carnegie Tech football squad of about 1948 is slated to have an end who will answer to the name of Shaughency. This was announced today by Harvey (Shag) Shaughency, who played end at Carnegie during the 1928, '26 and '25 campaigns, the proud father of a nine-pound son born yesterday.

Mother and son are both doing very nicely.

Sport Vignettes

Step up today and meet Capt. William E. Chamberlain, the new physical director of the Salvation Army in Pittsburgh, which dedicated the gymnasium in the addition to its building in Third avenue last night with appropriate ceremonies . . . The good captain has ambitious plans for the use of the gymnasium and wants to let the people of the city in on them . . . The gym consists of the usual quarters and facilities, with a basketball court, swimming pool, etc. . . . The cost for the use of the gym is 10 cents a month, which places it within the reach of any boy or girl struggling to obtain a foothold in the world . . . An additional small fee is asked for the use of the pool . . . On Thursdays only will the facilities be restricted to use by members of the Salvation Army . . . Monday will be women's day, Tuesday and Friday young men's days and Wednesdays and Saturdays are open so far . . . A special feature will be a corrective clinic in physical culture for children with spinal and other deformities, to be held every Saturday from 9 a. m. until 1 p. m.



Capt. Chamberlain

Capt. Chamberlain is a graduate of the Salvation Army College in New York and was stationed in Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Brooklyn and Columbus, O., before coming here . . . He says the gymnasium and physical education departments are comparatively new departures for the Salvation Army and is enthusiastic about the prospects here . . . He is a young and energetic officer with imagination and you'll be hearing more about him soon.

Who'll be the goat of the world series that gets under way today? . . . Every series must have one as surely as it must have a hero or a set of heroes . . . Last year, Hack Wilson was sunfielded into the unwelcome role . . . The dogs will quit running at New Kensington Saturday night, when a successful fall season will have been brought to a close . . . By the way, this promises to be an unduly busy boxing winter in the Pittsburgh district . . . Motor Square Garden will run Monday nights, beginning next week, the Etna Elks (nee Hickey Park) will stage their shows on Wednesdays, Jim McGirr will operate in McKeesport on Thursdays and Apples Meyers will hold forth every Friday night at the Moose Temple . . . And that isn't all . . . Reports are that a large garage in Braddock is to be converted into an arena to seat some 5,000 paying customers and that Bill Dwyer, the New York hockey magnate, who has a piece of the local club, will toss a show or two into Duquesne Garden, with Jess McMahon, former matchmaker of Madison Square Garden in New York, pulling the strings to bring big-time performers into the place.

If it's a laugh you want, giggle at the latest from Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, who was fouled into the heavyweight title and then rushed back to Berlin to be forgotten by the world . . . Joe says the list of heavyweight challengers now has narrowed down to Young Stribling and Primo Carnera, with Jack Sharkey and Victorio Campolo being erased when their bout scheduled for last week was canceled because of a lack of interest . . . Or Schmeling will fight Jack Dempsey if the old Mauler can drag himself into a ring unassisted for one of these often-talked-about "comebacks."—HARRY KECK.

American Can Declares Extra of $1

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

DECLARATION OF AN EXTRA dividend of $1 a share by the American Can Company yesterday was the one bright spot in a gloomy day for the financial world. Can is sponsored by the First National Bank of New York. In many quarters it is believed that the action of directors represented a desire on the part of the bank to exert a stabilizing influence on the market.

The extra dividend reflected the maintenance of American Can's earnings at a high rate during the past year. While the pack of fruits and vegetables has been slightly smaller than last year due to drought conditions, the major portion of the crops was unharmed. The company's operations have clearly indicated that it is in a depression proof class. It depends for its principal markets on the canners of food products. Demand is controlled by the size of crops rather than by the conditions affecting other industries.

Wide diversification of operations acts as insurance against a crop failure in any one district seriously affecting the organization's business. Can has over 50 factories which cover all the major fruit and vegetable producing districts in the United States as well as the Hawaiian Islands.

On $4 Basis

THE COMMON STOCK is on a regular annual dividend basis of $4 so that the extra will bring total payments for this year to $5.

A study of the record of American Can shows year-by-year expansion financed from surplus earnings. This has been reflected in increasing profits and the establishment of higher dividend rates. Payments have been uninterrupted since the beginning of 1923. The old stock of $100 par value was on a $5 annual basis from 1923 to 1925. Extras were paid of $1 in 1924, $2 in 1925 and $3 early in 1926. The old stock was then split four-to-one. The new stock was on a $2 basis from 1926 to 1928. It was on a $3 basis during 1929 and the present rate was established in February of this year. Extras of $1 each were paid January 2 and December 2, last year.

In each of these years a comfortable addition was made to surplus and this was directly reflected in expansion of the plant account. Physical properties increased from $99,178,628 in 1924 to $127,274,907 at the close of 1929. During the same period surplus increased from $43,140,050 to $62,111,851. A flat charge of $2,000,000 was made for depreciation each year.

Earnings Show Gain

JUDGING FROM CONDITIONS in the canning industry, net profit for 1930 will be slightly below last year when $22,724,803 was earned. After deducting dividends on $41,233,300 of 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock this was equivalent to $8.02 a share on 2,473,998 common shares.

Last year's earnings were exceptionally large. They compared with $19,863,326 or $6.86 in 1928 and with $13,055,199 or $4.11 a share in 1927.

The company has no funded debt. Current assets at the close of 1929 amounted to $58,209,009 compared with current liabilities of $14,576,621. Cash of $16,973,215 exceeded all current liabilities.

STOCK PRICES REBOUND WITH VIOLENCE

Bears Engulfed in Swift Uprush—Market Inclined To Turn Dull on Rise

NEW YORK, Oct. 1—(AP.)—The expected rebound in share prices occurred in today's stock market with a violence that compensated for its tardiness.

With the nervous whisperings which preceded the Sisto suspension partly quieted by the actual development, a great weight seemed to have been lifted from the market and the bear faction was completely engulfed by the swift uprush of prices. The market was inclined to turn dull on the advance, however, for business and trade reports were not cheerful.

The advance, nevertheless, was one of the sharpest of the year. Gains of 3 points or so were general among more active issues. Shorts were sharply squeezed in a few specialties, several prominent shares surged up 4 to 6 points, including United States Steel, Du Pont, Sears Roebuck, Union Carbide, Westinghouse Electric, International Business Machines, Eastman, American Can, Air Reduction, American Telephone and American Water Works. Case and Canadian Pacific gained more than 10.

RUMORS NOT STILLED

The announcement of the Sisto failure could not be said entirely to have stilled the bearish rumor-mongering that has been in progress for nearly a month, for there was still a feeling in some circles that further paring down of the Wall street machinery that was built up during the great bull market may cause some further hardships, but after six successive days of decline, a record for recent years, Wall street was almost unanimous in the opinion that a technical rebound in share prices could not longer be deferred.

Among the less pleasing of the day's disclosures were those made by the weekly steel trade reviews appearing in the early afternoon. Iron Age, Steel and American Metal Market agreed that the recent up turn in steel mill activity had lost its vitality. Iron Age estimated operations at 61 per cent of capacity, unchanged from the previous week. Steel said there was no diminution of confidence that the low point of the year had been passed, save possibly for the holiday shutdowns at the end of the year, but explained that unfavorable developments outside of the industry, particularly unexpected weakness in the automobile situation, had proved a dampener.

FREIGHT DECLINES

The loadings of revenue freight for the week ended September 20 was announced as only 952,512 cars, a drop of 13,201 cars from the previous week, although the seasonal trend would indicate a gain. The total was the lowest for that week since 1921 and showed the largest percentage drop from 1929 and 1928 yet reported this year. The National City Bank's monthly review found the business improvement in September too uneven to be impressive. The New York Federal Reserve Bank's monthly survey said that demand for currency and bank credit were substantially below normal. The day's money market showed little change with call loans still commanding 2 per cent.

Somewhat more cheerful were reports from Chicago. George M. Reynolds, chairman of the executive committee of the Continental Illinois Trust Company, said he felt that business might be materially improved by the middle of December. S. W. Straus & Co. reported that building activities in Chicago reached a new high for the year in September.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—Unofficial monthly crop estimates issued today indicated a decidedly larger yield of corn than of late has been looked for. The prospective yield of spring wheat was slightly enlarged as compared with a month ago, and was in line with general expectations. Nevertheless, all grain prices averaged higher early today, in opposition also to sharp downturns of wheat quotations at Liverpool.

Big estimates of the use of wheat as feed, together with assertions that 7 per cent more ear corn than normal is necessary to shell to obtain a 56-pound bushel, were factors tending to lift prices. Opening at ⅛ off to 1c higher, Chicago wheat sagged somewhat, but then scored gains all around. Corn started at ⅛ decline to 1¼ advance, and then showed general gains.

OKLAHOMA OIL PLAN UPHELD

TULSA, Oct. 1.—The Federal Court upheld the constitutionality of state regulation of oil production in Oklahoma and denied an interlocutory injunction against the Oklahoma Corporation Commission to the Champlin Refining Company.

The court advised that before relief from the order of the commission is sought in Federal Court, the Champlin company should go to the commission or appeal to the State Supreme Court.

An oil conservation program calling for the present 550,000-barrel limit on the state's daily production through the rest of the month, a 545,000-barrel maximum in November and a 535,000-barrel maximum in December, was ready today for approval by Oklahoma producers.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 1.—The Oklahoma Corporation Commission has extended for 10 days the curtailment program limiting the state's output to 550,000 barrels daily as previously.

COPPER DEMAND HEAVY AT 10c

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Copper buying has been unusually active during the last 24 hours, and it is probable between 15,000,000 and 20,000,000 pounds have been bought at 10 cents a pound, delivered.

In the domestic market some custom smelters are no longer willing to sell at 10 cents, delivered, and some producers will not.

Foreign sales yesterday came to 4,450,000 pounds and this morning were 2,250,000 pounds.

There is an indication that the decline in copper price will be stopped at 10 cents. This is dependent upon whether different producers realize the importance of curtailing output drastically, so as to begin cutting surplus of refined copper.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Cotton opened steady today at a decline of 3 points to an advance of 2 points. Near months were relatively easy owing to further liquidation. After selling about 2 to 5 points net lower during the first few minutes prices turned steadier. New October after selling off to 10.09, rallied to 10.20, while March sold up from 10.43 to 10.5[illegible]. The October notices issued this morning were estimated at 3,700 bales, all against the old style contract, but after the early selling and liquidation of near months offerings became very light and the market was steady later in the morning. The market at midday was quiet and steady at reactions of 3 or 4 points from the best.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 1.—Cotton spot quiet, prices steady. American strict good middling 6.10d; good middling 6.15d; strict middling 5.90d; middling 5.70d; strict low middling 5.50d; low middling 5.15d; strict good ordinary 4.90d; good ordinary 4.50d. Sales 5,000 bales, including 1,700 American. Receipts 4,000; American 3,500. Futures closed steady: October 5.55d; December 5.65d; January 5.70d; March 5.81d; May 5.91d; July 5.99d; October 6.11d.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—No sales were reported in the raw sugar market early today and prices were unchanged at 3.03 for spots duty paid. Offerings, however, were light and holders were asking higher prices.

Refined sugar was unchanged at 4.75 for fine granulated, with demand light and limited to nearby requirements only.

Money Market.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—Bar silver, 16⅛d per ounce. Money, 1¾ per cent. Discount rates: Short bills, 2 1-16 per cent; three months, 2⅛ per cent.

Stock Exchange Topics

American Machine May Authorize Increase In Dividend.

There is a strong possibility that American Machine and Foundry Company directors at a meeting to be held shortly, will authorize a moderate increase in common dividend. While the earnings rate would justify dividends of possibly $2 a share on the 1,000,000 common shares, present indications are that because of general business conditions, directors will be more cautious and make the new rate $1.60 annually, payable 40 cents quarterly. This would be equal to $8 on the old common, which was receiving $7 annually. Earnings in the first half of 1930 were in excess of any full year in history, except 1929. Net profit amounted to $1,635,641, or $1.57 a common share after allowing for dividends on the preferred stock, which was retired August 1.

St. Louis and San Francisco Railway is expected to earn between $7 and [illegible] a share on its common stock for 1930, as compared with $11.88 for 1929. Despite the drop in earnings no change in the current $8 annual rate is expected to be made at the next dividend meeting to be held in November. Declarations following that date will be dictated by earnings.

Despite the general business depression Foster-Wheeler has been able to make a highly successful showing in earnings and profits this year. For the first six months ended June 30 last, earnings were 29.4 per cent in excess of those of the corresponding period of 1929, and amounted to $4.25 a share on 236,449 no-par shares of common stock, compared with $3.57 a share on 200,000 shares in 1929. At the end of the first half of this year unfilled orders were reported at $10,700,000, so that it is probable that earnings since July have been holding up satisfactorily. An advantage for the company has been its diversification of products.

United Carbon has been showing signs of resistance in recent selling waves. Moderate support is believed to have come from those who have been contending that the company is in a position to increase its earnings rapidly when general business improves. The treasury position of the United is strong and the reserves are considered more than ample. The management has been slowly buying the preferred stock in the open market at prices under the redemption figure. The natural gas reserves of the company are large and strategically located.

A large number of observers are looking for a climax to the selling such as has been witnessed on a number of occasions in the past after the market has suffered severe sinking spells. It is by no means actually certain that such a climax actually will develop. On several occasions in the past, however, a wave of heavy liquidation in a session or two marked the bottom, from which there was a good technical recovery.

A few favorable factors are seen in the current situation. Among those enumerated are the existing strength of bonds and preferred stocks, the increase in the demand for borrowing common stocks, indicating a larger short interest; the continued deflation of issues which were overpriced on the basis of earnings and prospects, and the ease in credit. However, credit ease is not looked upon by many as encouraging, chiefly because it reflects the slack demand for money for commercial purposes.

CAR LOADINGS TAKE DROP

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Revenue freight car-loading for the week ending September 20 were reported by the American Railway Association to have aggregated 952,512 cars, a decrease of 13,201 cars below the preceding week and 214,883 below the same week last year.

Miscellaneous freight loadings for the week totaled 382,087 cars, a decrease of 93,703 cars under the previous week; merchandise in less than car lots, 244,799, decrease 26,608; coal 153,881, decrease 38,900; forest products 41,496, decrease 21,080; ore 48,785, decrease 20,171; coke 8,176, decrease 3,799; grain and grain products 46,127, decrease 5,648; livestock 27,161, decrease 4,974.

LONE STAR GAS LEADS LOCAL RECOVERY

Western Public Service Joins in Sharp Rally; Trading Volume Expands

Prices rallied vigorously on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange, reflecting the substantial recovery in the New York market. The movement here was carried out under the leadership of Lone Star Gas, which staged a sharp comeback following a lowering opening and a dip to a new low for the current decline. Western Public Service accompanied Lone Star on the rise.

Industrial issues were also stronger, but there was no concentration of demand in that section such as was noted in the fuels. It was apparent at the start that traders were buying Lone Star for "the turn," and it was also said that interests informed as to the company's operations had large buying orders in the market around the levels reached on the break. Numerous small-lot orders were also in the market for Lone Star, indicating that the reaction had attracted investors of moderate means.

While the industrials developed a steady tone as the session progressed, there was considerable irregularity early in the day, and some of them established new lows for the current decline. The volume of business was the largest in many weeks.

BUSINESS GAINS AT PHILA.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—Industrial and mercantile conditions during August showed some seasonal recovery from the exceptionally low levels in July, the monthly report on business and financial conditions in the Philadelphia Federal Reserve district, issued by the Philadelphia Federal Reserve Bank, states.

The fall improvement in manufactures and trade, however gradual, continued in September. Sharp curtailment of production in earlier months of the year, light inventories in retail channels, an apparent halt in the precipitous decline of prices and a favorable credit situation have been some of the factors in the improvement of business sentiment. The market for manufactured products, while still below last year's volume, has strengthened rather noticeably since the middle of last month.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

THIRD QUARTER EARNINGS

More discussions regarding the third quarter earnings prospects are now heard than ever before, and these are having their influence on the market. Because of the many bearish predictions of individual companies, there has been a moderate amount of outside liquidation in various stocks recently. The general tendency is to revise previous third quarter predictions downward. This is logical because many based their predictions on a better showing in September than in July and August, which if borne out would hold up the average for the third quarter. With the improvement coming more slowly than was anticipated, the results for the period will be disappointing.

MANATI SUGAR BONDS

Holders of Manati Sugar Company first mortgage 7½ per cent bonds have been asked by the directors to waive the sinking fund provisions of the mortgage and to subordinate their bonds to banking credits up to $2,000,000. A letter sent by order of the directors to the bondholders states that these steps are necessary to prevent receivership and reorganization.

FAYETTE COUNTY PIPE LINE

Victor Gas Company, a subsidiary of Duquesne Gas Corporation, is constructing a pipe line in Fayette County, Pennsylvania, which will enable the producing corporation to increase its sales of natural gas to the Monongahela West Penn Gas Company, with which Duquesne has a long term gas sales contract.

CUT PGH. STEEL DIVIDEND

Pittsburgh Steel Company paid a dividend of 50 cents a share today to stockholders of record September 29. This action of directors was taken Saturday but no announcement was made until today.

The last quarterly declaration was $1 a share. The reduction in the dividend rate from $4 to $2 reflects the sharp decline in the company's earnings during the present year.

Regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 was declared on the preferred, payable December 1, to record of November 8.

Postmaster Awards Air Mail Contracts

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Postmaster General Brown today awarded a contract to Western Air Express Corporation, of Los Angeles, and Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc., of Delaware, for carrying air mail on the new transcontinental route from New York to Los Angeles. The rate of pay will be 97½ per cent of the maximum rates per mile set out in the advertisement.

Buick Production Slips in September

DETROIT, Oct. 1.—Buick Motor Company in September produced and shipped 13,303 cars, against 20,004 in August and 26,500 in September, 1929. October schedule calls for output of 10,995 cars.

NAMES SISTO RECEIVER

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—(AP.)—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in Federal Court today against J. A. Sisto & Co., member of the New York Stock Exchange, suspended yesterday for inability to meet its obligations.

No estimate of liabilities and assets was included in the petition. The Irving Trust Company was appointed receiver.

Pipe Line Bonds Sold Privately

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—National City Company has sold privately the entire issue of $20,000,000 Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Company bonds, which it underwrote in connection with the contract recently entered into between Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Company, the National City Company and Columbia Oil and Gasoline Corporation.

It is understood the bonds will not be offered to the public.

Jay Firm's Cotton Estimate Higher

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—J. W. Jay & Co. estimates condition of the cotton crop on September 24 at 51.5 per cent and indicated yield at 14,115,000 bales. This compares with the estimate as of August 23 of condition of 56 per cent and crop of 13,940,000 bales.

Most Powerful Bank Leaders Buying Stocks

By B. C. FORBES

Mr. Forbes

I talked this week with the man who is regarded as the most influential international banker in America and with our most powerful national banker. Said the first:

"I have been adding to my stock holdings during the last three weeks. I regard recent quotations as extremely low. In fact, I cannot understand why there should be so much selling of stocks at such levels."

"Do you know of any big man or institutions that are selling?" I asked.

"No," he replied emphatically. "Not a share. It would be ridiculous."

The gist of the national banker's conversation was:

"I made up my mind about two weeks ago that stocks were scraping bottom. But they have continued to go down since then. The selling cannot all be ascribed to bears going short. As you know, I was not in sympathy with the stock market's recklessness a year ago. Well, in my judgment it is acting just as ridiculously now."

"Can anything be said or done that might help to restore sanity?" I asked.

"Not that I can see," he replied. "Just as the bull market had to run its course, so the present decline must run its course. So long as an orderly market is maintained things should work out without serious trouble—except, of course, for those who have to sacrifice holdings at these unreasonable prices. Brokers are in excellent shape, our dealings with them indicate. And brokers tell me that their customers respond extraordinarily well when additional margin is called for.

"When the turn comes, it may astonish the bears just as the collapse last year astonished the bulls."

In another national bank whose veteran head is looked upon as a master at judging security values I learned that the view now held is that the best stocks are on the bargain counter. Until quite recently this institution's attitude was very cautious. Today, however, it is felt that well-selected stocks can now be purchased with every confidence that generous profits will accrue by and by.

These three sources represent absolutely the most influential financial groups in America. Since they all agree that sound stocks are now selling away below their actual worth, what is here recorded surely is worthy of respectful consideration.

AMBASSADOR DAWES hit the nail brilliantly on the head, thus:

"The business fool in 1929 was he who had not fear. The fool now is he who has not hope."

INSTEAD OF LAYING off workers, Chairman Myron C. Taylor of the United States Steel Corporation finance committee states that its policy "is equitably to distribute the work, as nearly as may be possible, among the workers." An excellent system.

SEARS, ROEBUCK AND COMPANY, of Chicago, is making available $60,000,000 to be loaned on new homes, up to 75 per cent of the valuation. If enough other wealthy companies would show equal public spirit, we would soon say good-bye to depression.

THE FAMOUS seven Fisher brothers of Detroit are doing their bit by building 10-story offices and shops now instead of, as originally planned, next year, "believing," they observe, "this may serve as an incentive to others to proceed with normal expansion and thus assist in the solving of the unemployment problem."

Next, please?

W. H. ROBERTSON, Dayton, O., writes:

"Low prices for wheat, cotton and other necessary commodities mean that people will have more money left to spend for other things. Why worry if Russia helps feed Europe at low cost? Europe will be better able to buy things from us and from others."

THE MAN or concern that simply sits idle waiting for depression to blow over may be blown over. Work! Fight!

STEEL DEMAND HOLDING UP

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The Iron Age, in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade, tomorrow will say:

Business in iron and steel is holding its recent gains, but has shown little further expansion. Reports from different market centers are not of one tenor and while the balance is still on the side of betterment in demand there is no clear indication of progressive improvement ahead.

The moderate increase in steel buying during the past month may prove to have been occasioned mainly by exhaustion of inventories rather than by any appreciable change in actual consumption. Much of the recent activity in both pig iron and finished steel has been centered in forward contracting, although willingness to make future commitments has been by no means general either as to products or districts. The contract tonnage that has been placed will prove effective in raising iron and steel output only to the extent that it is released for shipment.

In the case of sheets unfilled tonnage was expanded sufficiently in September to warrant a rise of 15 or 20 points above the present 50 per cent rate of mill operations if material is specified fully and regularly during the coming quarter.

INGOT OUTPUT AT 61%

With growth of steel demand arrested, ingot production remains unchanged at 61 per cent of capacity.

The loss of momentum in steel buying, possibly influenced by stock market pessimism, has been concomitant with a further divergence in price tendencies. Scrap markets are uniformly weak in tone. On the other hand, bars are now being held at 1.65c a pound, Pittsburgh, an advance of $1 a ton.

In the pig iron market, price recessions reported a week ago have been followed by further breaks.

The steel trade has not given up hope of a further gain in business during the coming month, although unwilling to estimate its extent. Recent releases against old rail contracts have been in encouraging volume. Fresh rail contracts from four major lines that bought a total of 300,000 tons last fall are soon to be placed.

CHEVROLET SPEEDING UP

Motor car production is apparently sensitive to every shift in retail prices. The Ford Motor Company reduced its operations to a three-day basis last week and may continue on that schedule during the current week. On the other hand, Chevrolet is speeding up in an effort to put new models on the market by November 1. It is largely because of this organization's increased activity that total automobile output for the coming month is expected to prove a little larger than that of September.

The Iron Age composite price for finished steel has advanced from 2.149c to 2.156c a pound. Pig iron has declined from $16.46 to $16.38 a gross ton. The scrap composite has receded from $13.75 to $13.58 a gross ton.

A. P. I. Oil Figures Show Drop in West

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The daily average gross crude oil production in the United States decreased 32,000 barrels for the week ended September 27, totaling 2,389,750 barrels, says the weekly summary of the American Petroleum Institute. The daily average production east of California was 1,795,450 barrels, a decrease of 12,750.

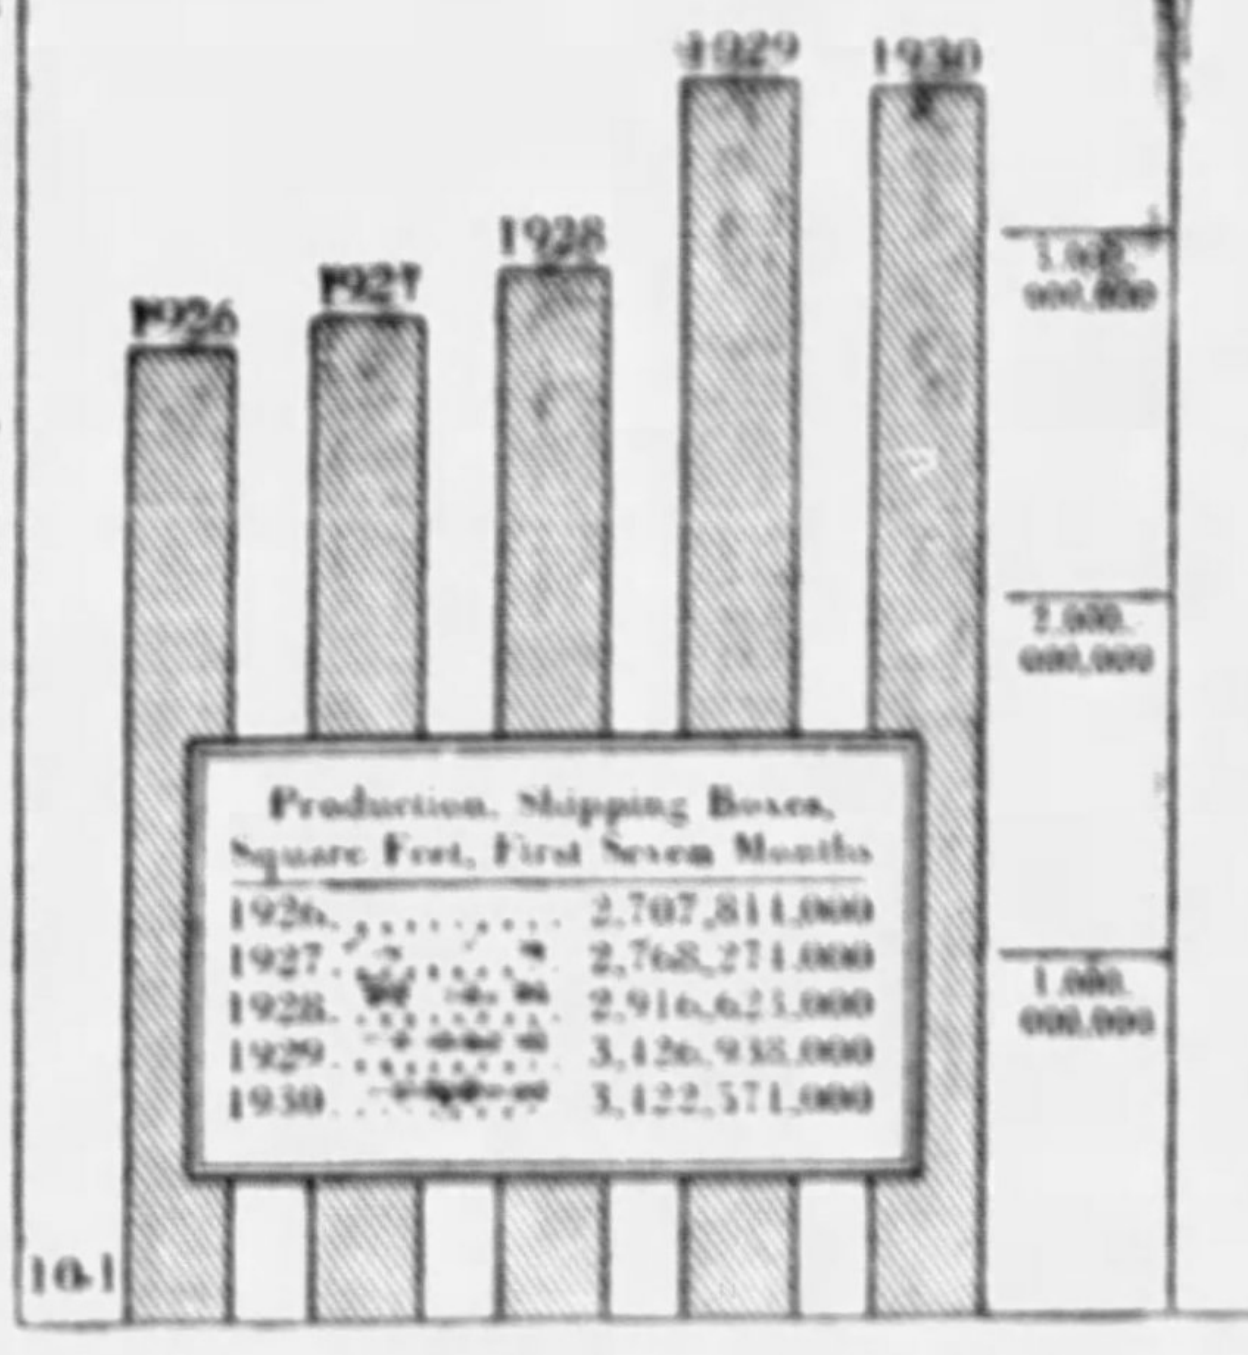
Shipping Boxes and Glass Containers

The production of paper-board shipping boxes and of glass containers during the first seven months of 1930 is compared with the corresponding figures for the past four years. Box Source: Paperboard Industries Association. Glass Source: Glass Container Association of America.

Production—Shipping Boxes

Based on the reports of 41 large manufacturers of both corrugated and solid fibre boxes.

These shipping boxes are used by a large variety of manufacturers, in fact by nearly all whose unit shipments do not exceed about 50 pounds. Production closely follows demand, and demand is a good index to general manufacturing. Production in 1930 is only 1/10 of 1% under 1929, but 17.3% over 1928, 23.6% over 1927, and 26.4% over 1926.



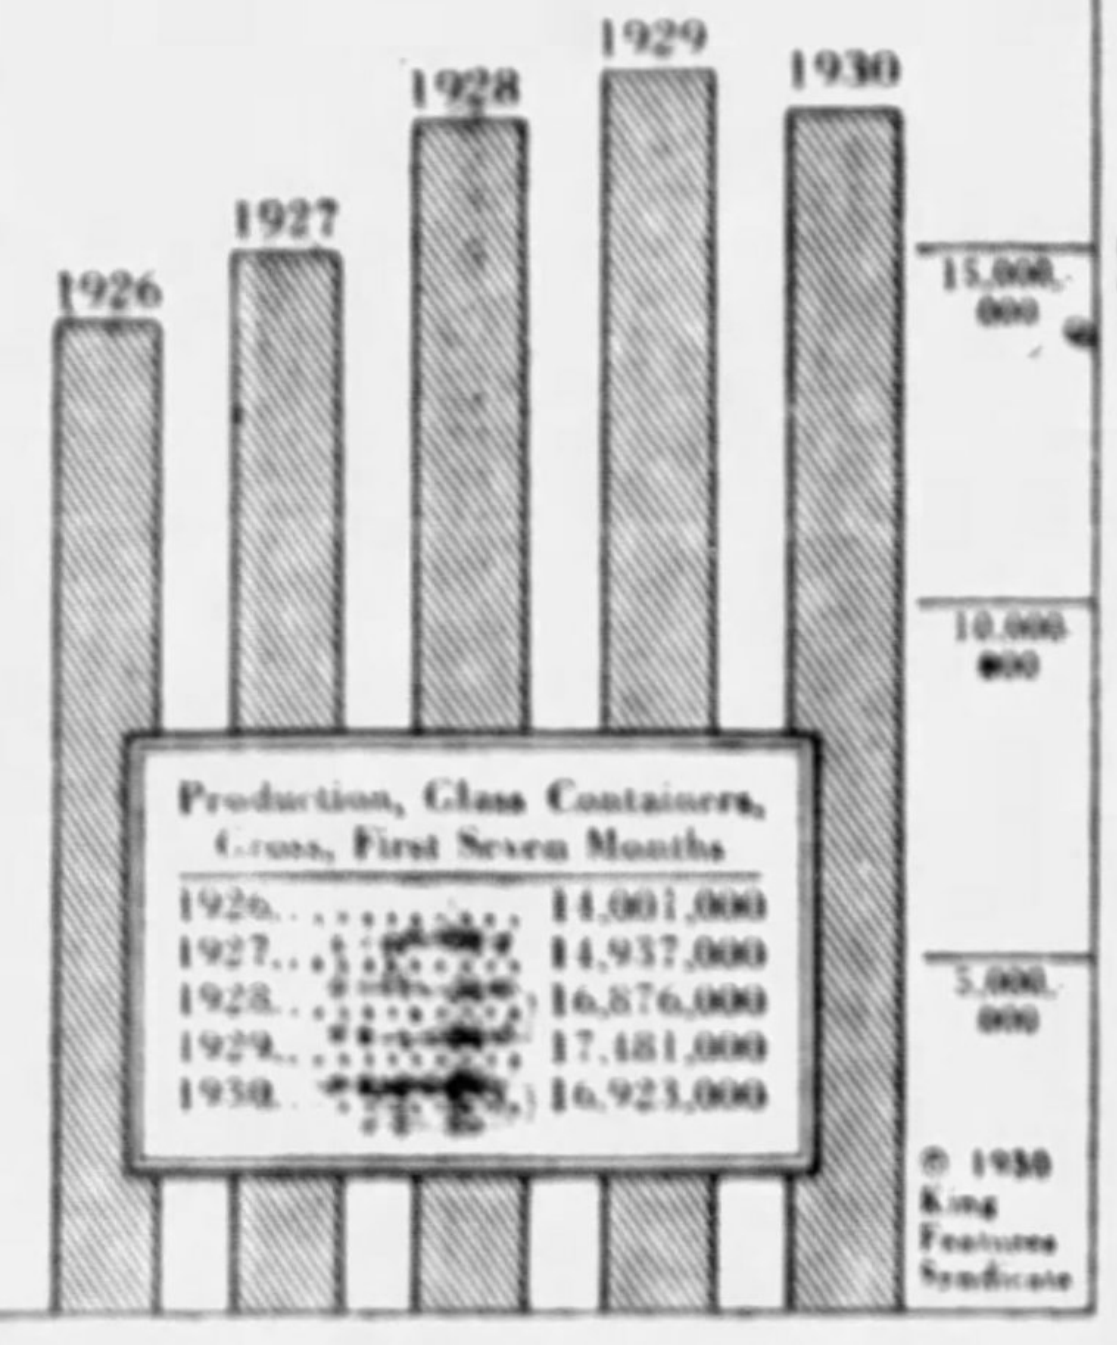
Production, Shipping Boxes, Square Feet, First Seven Months

1926	2,707,811,000
1927	2,768,271,000
1928	2,916,623,000
1929	3,126,938,000
1930	3,122,571,000

Production—Glass Containers

Comprises all kinds of bottles and jars for packing beverages and other liquids, foodstuffs, medical and toilet goods, etc. Based on the reports of 41 manufacturers who represent 85% of the industry.

The production of glass containers is a guide to the activity in a number of large industries whose products are packed in glass bottles and jars. With the exception of 1929, 1930 is the best year in the glass container industry. It is only 3.2% under 1929, slightly ahead of 1928, 13.3% over 1927 and 20.9% over 1926.



Production, Glass Containers, Gross, First Seven Months

1926	14,001,000
1927	14,937,000
1928	16,876,000
1929	17,481,000

BANK CAUTIONS ON OUTLOOK

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The month of September witnessed some improvement in business, says the National City Bank in its monthly review, but taking the situation as a whole the gains have been too uneven and have failed to touch too many important industries to carry conviction as to the permanency of the uptrend.

When allowance is made for the stimulus the usual seasonal increase at this time of year would impart to trade and industry, it must be admitted, says the review, "that the showing for fall business so far has not been very encouraging."

While pointing to reports indicating that excess stocks in the hands of manufacturers and wholesalers have been much reduced, preparing the ground for a recovery later on, the review cautions that until gains are participated in by the heavier industries, such as steel, building and automobiles, "business can hardly look for sustained revival, and just at present the outlook in these lines is much clouded."

The bank announced it had transferred $20,000,000 from the surplus to a reserve fund for contingencies "in view of the present worldwide economic disturbances."

The announcement, made in a statement of the bank's condition as of September 24, said it was "deemed wise to establish contingencies." Financial observers recalled that during the depression of 1920 the bank set up $10,000,000 as a similar reserve. It is understood, however, that the full amount thus appropriated was never used. The bank's statement listed total assets of $1,845,758,452 and deposits of $1,343,941,693.

Call Wilson Snyder Debentures at 103

The Wilson Snyder Manufacturing Corporation has called for redemption on December 1 all of its 6 per cent guaranteed debentures, amounting to $800,000, at 103 and accrued interest.

This action was taken following the sale of the Oil Well Supply Company, which owns Wilson-Snyder, to the United States Steel Corporation.

BUSINESS PAST LOW POINT, SAY U. S. BANKERS

American Association Hears Leaders Declare Trade Already Shows Recovery

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 1.—In spite of the prevailing hysteria in Wall Street, Arthur Reynolds, active head of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Company, the largest American financial institution outside of New York, who is in attendance here at the fifty-sixth annual convention of the American Bankers' Association, gave me an optimistic picture of the long term future of American business.

ON UP TREND

Whereas many individuals are muddled about the business outlook, Mr. Reynolds is extremely clear as to what his own expectations are. He said:

Mr. Rukeyser

"We have passed the bottom of the trade depression. The recovery may not be rapid. No one can put a definite date on the return of prosperity, but there is not the slightest doubt in my mind that we are already moving in the right direction. The only really adverse feature is the prevailing psychology of pessimism, which is as unwarranted as the extravagant optimism, which culminated a year ago."

Getting down to brass tacks Mr. Reynolds pointed out that, unlike in previous economic crises, there is today no question about the solvency of leading corporations, or for that matter of any large number of business establishments. Though earnings will be sharply down, Mr. Reynolds feels that leading corporations will this year earn as a minimum the actual amount of dividends disbursed in 1928.

The Chicagoan revealed:

"In our district we have recently, for example, been making substantial loans to the cotton textile industry. Stocks of merchandise were extremely low, and when seasonal demand picked up some plants found it necessary to work 24 hours a day. Moreover, the milling business has been good out our way. There is a very good demand—and a demand from Europe, too—for high grade flour.

"In my 43 years of banking experience, we have passed through numerous crises, which proved only temporary halts in the forward march of American business. This depression is likewise only a passing phase. Business will emerge stronger than ever, and in time will have another remarkable spurt ahead. But we should not under-estimate the amount of time needed to correct world-wide maladjustment between supply and demand.

"The corrective forces are now operating beneath the surface and will, I believe, slowly carry business forward from this point. A seasonal gain is now under way.

"Sentiment was disturbed by the coming of the destructive drought on top of the business depression. But when we analyse the facts, we find that crops will not be off more than 10 or 12 per cent, and in the case of corn dollar value will probably not be down at all.

"The trouble with us in this country is that we are impatient. We cannot seem to bide our time and wait. We go to extremes. We either all overspend together or underspend. We cannot expect to break records every year, but I think it will be marked by gradual improvement. Nobody can be familiar with America's economic history and its vast resources without being an optimist, but he must make allowances for temporary upsets. We are coming out of the recent depression and will go forward.

"There has been much talk about a new era. Well, we are really in a new era, with new high standards of living. But we expanded too rapidly, and have been going through a readjustment. The setback has had beneficial results. It gave executives a jolt, and caused them to eliminate waste. A remarkable improvement in methods of operation has been taking place."

As further tangible evidence of improvement, Mr. Reynolds said that leaders of the automobile industry had indicated that after long weeks of hesitation the trend in the automobile industry, after seasonal adjustment, had been distinctly upwards in the last five weeks.

Wieman & Ward Co. Joins Buffalo Firm

The uniting of interests of Waldo, Egbert & Maltby, Incorporated, of Buffalo, N. Y., and the Weiman and Ward Company, Pittsburgh, as of October 1, brings together under one management two of the country's well known concerns in the iron and fuel business. The combined interests will operate under the name of Waldo, Egbert, Maltby and Ward, Inc., with offices in Buffalo and Pittsburgh.

Waldo, Egbert & Maltby, Inc., are sales agents for several blast furnaces and a large number of coke and coal operations. Weiman and Ward are an old, established Pittsburgh house dealing in coke and coal.

LUCKY GIRL

Farnsworth, tell me for the love of God—"

Blames Self

Cathie Thinks She Is Cause of Shooting

Her wild eyes were staring at Cathie's dark-stained hands.

Cathie looked down at her own hands, dispassionately. She said softly, "Mr. Farnsworth is dead . . . I found him . . . quite dead. . . ."

Marguerite sprang out of bed like a wild woman. "Fool!" she cried. "Fool, touching him! Oh, what did you do that for? Don't you know . . . oh, what shall I do? Here, stand still I'll fix it. . . . You shouldn't have touched him. And after I TOLD you he didn't want to see you—"

Cathie sat down heavily on the edge of the bed. "He told you I wasn't to disturb him . . . you said that in that note you wrote me. He knew. He shot himself because . . . because . . . Oh, my God, I did it. I made him shoot himself. I killed him—my husband. I—"

"SHH . . . hh!" Marguerite's hands were over Cathie's mouth. "Shut up, you fool!" she hissed, from beneath clenched teeth, "think what you're saying. What if someone heard? And you all blood . . . Why couldn't you stay out of it, you silly thing?"

Cathie continued to stare at her hands. "I did it . . . It was he who opened the door that time and saw us together . . . and me kissing him . . . me, his wife . . . and he couldn't stand it, and he went upstairs and—"

"Listen!" Marguerite was on her knees, her strong arms were around Cathie's slim waist, shaking her. "Listen to me. ARE you listening?"

"Yes, Marguerite. But you don't have to tell me. You see, I know—"

"LISTEN! You DON'T know. Listen. It was me you heard."

"Was it?"

"Yes, so help me. If I lose my job for it."

"It doesn't matter. I don't mind your knowing. I think I'd like to tell you. I love Mr. Moore, Marguerite, and he loves me. There! I've told you! But you shouldn't listen at keyholes, it isn't—"

Marguerite snorted. "Keyholes—she talks of that now . . . with . . . Here, I'll have to wash your hands—"

Her long red hair dragging, her slimsy green nightgown slipping off her shoulder, she strode to the washbowl in one corner of the room, and running the water rapidly, plunged Cathie's hands into the basin.

"Why couldn't you keep out of it?" she mourned. "Why did you have to go touching him? Oh, Mrs. Farnsworth, you scare me, with your wild talk and all . . . Promise you won't say it to anyone else? Promise—"

"I promise," Cathie said meekly. She stood docilely, a shaky little figure in pale satin and lace, while Marguerite washed and dried her hands.

"But if he didn't see us, why did he do it?" She kept asking over and over again while Marguerite scrubbed. "Are you sure he didn't see us?"

Confused

Advised Not to Call The Police

"Of course. Didn't I see him come in the front door and and walk straight up the stairs as big as life, and stopping me in the upstairs hall. 'Tell Mrs. Farnsworth I'm going to bed, I'm not feeling well,' he says, just like that, 'and I'm not to be disturbed till morning.' Hold still . . . how can I wash, with you shaking so?"

"Then it wasn't my fault, was it, Marguerite? It really wasn't . . . oh, poor Alfred! Why did he do it? Marguerite, he's all bloody, and the back of his head isn't there any more. It's so dreadful . . . so dreadful . . ." She began to whimper again.

Marguerite had switched on all the lights, was walking around Cathie, scrutinizing her carefully . . . "Oh, God! A spot, you've gone and dripped bloody hands on the silk, Mrs. Farnsworth, darling!"

Cathie looked at it . . . "Take it off," she begged. "Take it off me!"

"No—it's nothing. I can get it right out. It will be better—"

Warm water . . . soap . . . Marguerite scrubbed . . . Cathie swayed dizzily. Caught herself. "Marguerite," she said earnestly, "Don't you think we ought to stop all this foolishness and call somebody? The police, you know. Isn't it customary?"

"No, no, no—hold still, Mrs. Farnsworth, darling . . . It's going through to your gown . . . oh, God, what shall I do?"

"Isn't it always the thing you do? Call the police? It's too late to call a doctor. He was dead, you know. Quite dead . . . that hole in his head, and the blood on the pillow . . ."

"Don't, for God's sake, tell it again—Don't—"

"But shouldn't we call the—"

"No! Keep still . . . What's that? Somebody's coming . . . They're all awake! Shut up. Don't you see the fix you've got us in?"

Cathie looked at her. She didn't see. She didn't care. She wondered who was running downstairs. What was the difference? What did a little thing like that matter, with Mr. Farnsworth dead?

That the Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works, for and in behalf of the City of Pittsburgh, shall be and they are hereby authorized and directed to enter into an agreement with the Commissioners of Allegheny County in substantially the following language:

THIS AGREEMENT

MADE and entered into this ...... day of ...... 1930, by and between the City of Pittsburgh, a municipal corporation of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, by Charles H. Kline, Mayor, and Edward G. Lang, director of the Department of Public Works, party of the first part and County of Allegheny, by Joseph G. Armstrong, E. V. Babcock and Charles C. McGovern, Commissioners, party of the second part, WITNESSETH:

WHEREAS, Pursuant to the Acts of May 21, 1921, P. L. 280 and 286, conferring upon cities and counties of the second class respectively the right to establish, operate and maintain jointly an Airdrome and Aviation Landing Field, the County of Allegheny has by condemnation acquired the site for a City and County Airdrome and Aviation Landing Field, situate on Lebanon Church Road, Mifflin Township, in the County of Allegheny, and has had approved and filed in Court its bond entitling it to take immediate possession of the several properties condemned and on July 2, 1929, bids were received and opened by the County for the grading, draining and construction of the runways for said City and County Airdrome and Aviation Landing Field, and to complete the contract it will be necessary for the County of Allegheny to receive from the City of Pittsburgh the sum of $[illegible] for the purpose of joining with the County of Allegheny in the said establishment, operation and maintenance of the aforesaid field under and by virtue of the Acts of Assembly referred to, and

WHEREAS—Since the acquisition by condemnation by the County of Allegheny of the site for said proposed City and County Airdrome and Aviation Landing Field, an Ordinance has been passed by Council and approved by the Mayor, authorizing and directing the increase of the indebtedness of the City of Pittsburgh in the sum of $[illegible] and providing for the issue and sale of bonds of said City in said amount to provide funds for the City's share of the cost of the improvement of a joint City and County Airdrome and Aviation Landing Field, situate in the County of Allegheny, providing for the redemption of said bonds and the payment of interest thereon, and,

WHEREAS, Bonds in the sum of $[illegible] have been sold by the City of Pittsburgh and said amount is now available and ready for transfer to the County of Allegheny as the City's share of the cost of the said establishment, operation and maintenance of the City and County Airdrome and Aviation Landing Field on the site condemned and acquired by the County of Allegheny, situate on Lebanon Church Road, Mifflin Township, in the County of Allegheny.

NOW, THEREFORE, IN CONSIDERATION OF THE MUTUAL COVENANTS AND AGREEMENTS herein contained, it is hereby agreed between the parties hereto as follows:

First. The City of Pittsburgh, party of the first part, upon the execution of this agreement, hereby agrees to transfer and deliver to the County of Allegheny, party of the second part, the sum of $[illegible] as the City's share of the cost of the establishment, operation and maintenance of the City and County Airdrome and Aviation Landing Field, situate on Lebanon Church Road, Mifflin Township, in the County of Allegheny.

Second. It is understood and agreed between the parties hereto that the said sum of $[illegible] to be transferred by said City of Pittsburgh to the County of Allegheny as the City's share of the establishment, operation and maintenance of said City and County Airdrome and Aviation Landing Field, shall be used solely for the establishment, operation and maintenance of said City and County Airdrome and Aviation Landing Field, and for no other purpose.

Third. It is further expressly understood and agreed between the parties hereto that if at any time it shall be deemed advisable for any purpose whatsoever by the corporate authorities of the County of Allegheny to transfer the establishment, operation and maintenance of said City and County Airdrome and Aviation Landing Field to any private individual, firm, corporation or interest, the approval and consent of the corporate authorities of the City of Pittsburgh shall first be obtained.

THIS AGREEMENT is executed by the City of Pittsburgh by virtue in pursuance of Ordinance No. ...... approved ...... 1930 and recorded in Ordinance Book, Volume ...... Page ...... and by the County of Allegheny by virtue and in pursuance of a Resolution passed at a meeting of the Commissioners of Allegheny County on the ...... day of ...... 1930, said Resolution being recorded in Minute Book, Volume ...... Page ......

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties to this Agreement have caused the same to be duly executed the day and year first above written.

DAILY TRUE STORY

One Bar Smythe

Percival Smythe was one of those nuisances that are commonly wished upon a National Guard outfit. He was a dapper little man, wearing an expensively tailored uniform and the shiny gold bars of a second lieutenant. A certain snobbishness colored his views of the enlisted men with a contempt that was too thinly veiled to make him popular in Battery B.

The little officer took his rank seriously and woe be unto the unfortunate private who failed to salute the single bar perched upon each of the lieutenant's narrow shoulders. He was the terror of the new recruits who couldn't tell a second lieutenant from a private—those poor boobs who broke their right arms in snappily saluting a Y. M. C. A. man, only to develop blindness in seeing anything less than the stars of a general.

And Hans Mueller was this type of recruit. He was an honest lad, built like an army supply wagon. His broad bovine face wore a blank expression and a pair of china-blue eyes stared dumbly at the complexities of military life. He was as new to the army as was Smythe to a shavetail's commission. Battery B was undergoing its final training and was quartered in Camp Coetquidan, a huddle of ungainly barracks, at the time Mueller was sent to the outfit. He was as out of place in the army as a bustle on a flapper until it was discovered that he understood horses, an aptitude that earned him the job of wheel team driver on the third section gun. The stolid Dutch lad was in his element when around the stables; the ammonia odor was a whiff of home to him; an aroma that recalled the fertile acres of his father's farm and the big team of iron-grays that he harnessed for their daily work in the fields.

A Disaster

But the horse scent recalled no such charming memories to Lieut. Smythe and his thin patrician nostrils would wrinkle whenever he approached the stables. It was beneath his dignity to see that the details of animal toilette were carried out and as he rounded the corner of the stable one morning his frame of mind was far from pleasant. And it took Mueller to further wound Smythe's aristocratic sensibilities.

The Dutch boy's team was housed at one end of the open-sided building. He had just finished grooming his pair when he noticed that the policing hadn't been properly done. The lad grabbed a fork and with a lusty heave sent the refuse flying in the direction of a pile at the corner of the stables.

His zeal for cleanliness was unfortunate—for at that moment the little officer minced around the corner in time to receive the forkful of flying debris.

Stable Sergt. Nelson smothered a laugh when he saw what happened and ran hastily toward Mueller who, unconscious of impending disaster, had put away the fork and was adding a final polish to one of his horses.

Threatens Court-Martial

"What in the blankety blank double asterisked—do you mean —you—" sputtered the little officer, dancing around like an enraged bantam rooster and shaking a riding crop under the astonished Mueller's nose.

Mueller stared at the lieutenant stupidly, then noticing some of the damp straw hanging from one of the officer's shoulder bars, his mouth widened into an apologetic grin.

"I'll show you!" gritted Smythe and before Sergt. Nelson could interfere he slashed savagely at Mueller with his riding crop, striking the big fellow across the shoulders.

A dull red stained Mueller's cheeks, his lips became a writhing, white scar and his right hand clinched into a ham-like fist.

"Here—none of that"— and the sergeant hastily thrust his big frame between the raging Mueller and the little officer. "Go to your quarters, Mueller," he ordered sharply.

Sullenly, the big fellow turned and tramped toward the barracks. The sergeant faced his superior officer. "Sir, it is against army regulations for an officer to strike an enlisted man," he cautioned evenly.

"I'll court-martial that man!" spluttered Smythe.

"I'd let the matter rest, sir. Mueller didn't do it purposely."

"Don't you dictate to me. I'll report you for insubordination," raved Smythe.

"Very well, sir," the stable sergeant saluted and returned to his duties.

Mueller Punished

Smythe reported the matter to Capt. McDonald but found his superior unsympathetic—although Mueller was given a week of kitchen police as a necessary emphasis of discipline. Mueller meekly scrubbed greasy pans and peeled potatoes for the mess sergeant, but whenever Smythe passed there was a look in the big fellow's eye that made the officer uncomfortable.

"Out of my way, you," he ordered.

The two men had met in front of a watering trough near the barracks and the next moment the little officer was picked up by his antagonist and plunged into the water, chugged up and down several times, then released.

By the time Smythe had climbed out of the trough there was no one in sight, but the officer immediately went to the barracks where Mueller was billeted.

The lieutenant cut a sorry figure as he burst into the long, low building where Mueller was quartered. There were some repressed snickers from the men when they saw Smythe's condition and someone called "attention."

Smythe pointed a shaking finger at Mueller. "Arrest that man."

No one moved. "What's wrong, sir?" inquired a sergeant.

"He threw me into the watering trough. Arrest him!"

"But Mueller hasn't been out of the barracks all of this evening. He's been playing blackjack with us, sir," explained one of the men.

Demands Arrest

"If what you say is true," lieutenant, Mueller's uniform would be wet around the sleeves," decided the sergeant. "Mueller, let the lieutenant look you over."

The big fellow stepped toward the officer and held out his hands. The blouse sleeves were perfectly dry. Smythe blinked in amazement.

"Arrest him anyway," he ordered.

"You've been drinking, sir," bluntly stated the sergeant. "If you insist upon Mueller's arrest, I'll report your drunkenness to the captain. I have enough witnesses here to prove Mueller's innocence."

"I might have been mistaken," reluctantly acknowledged Smythe, and with a final glare at the resolute sergeant, he left the barracks.

"Why should he think that you gave him a ducking, Dutchy?" puzzled the sergeant, and left the room to report matters to the captain.

A few minutes later the door opened and another man entered—an exact duplicate of Mueller. And the newcomer's sleeves were wet at the wrists.

"I'll be——" gasped one of the men in amazement. "Dutchy has a twin brother. I'll tell the world he's got an alibi. Better hide that wet blouse. And it was your twin in here with us all of the time."

Mueller grinned as he pulled off his damp blouse. "Don't squeal, fellers. Und Fritz, here, has been away from his outfit on a furlough—und will leave right away to go back to his company."

LET'S FIND THIS MAN A JOB!

As Calvin Coolidge has so clearly intimated, unemployment would vanish over night if everybody had a job. Henry Ford has said practically the same thing. It, therefore, becomes the duty of every conscientious citizen to step down and give his job to some man who is without work. We will publish applicants as they register in alphabetical order. The first applicant is Abram Abrams (above) who patriotically gave up his job to Aaron Aarons. Mr. Abrams is, by profession, a soiled, or dirty, photograph eraser, but will take any kind of work of similar nature. Merely call him, day or night, by his first name. Home town papers please copy.

Another Pittsburgh Baby That Has Grown Rapidly

The radio show at Duquesne Garden is calling forth comment on the remarkable development of the broadcasting industry, which originated in Pittsburgh only 10 years ago. Statistics on aluminum manufactures, issued yesterday by the Bureau of the Census, direct attention to another Pittsburgh industrial baby which has had an astonishing growth.

Forty or fifty years ago aluminum was one of the rarer metals—a laboratory curiosity more than anything else—and very costly. Total production in the United States in 1883 was only 83 pounds.

Then along came Charles M. Hall, the chemist. Working in a small laboratory on Smallman street, he discovered the electrolytic method of producing aluminum, now in use. This made it possible to produce inexpensive aluminum.

The Census Bureau reports that the total value of aluminum manufactures shipped in the United States last year was $147,307,270, an increase of 19 per cent as compared with the figures for 1927, the last preceding year in which a census for this industry was taken. There are 139 aluminum plants in the country and they employ 20,803 workers. The industry continues to center in Pittsburgh.

The history of aluminum, as well as of radio, should be very stimulating to the ambitious, by suggesting that there are other things to be invented which may also develop colossal industries within a few years. Youths with a taste for the technical and engineering sciences are fortunate if they live in Pittsburgh, the birthplace of so many great inventions, and so admirably equipped for research.

Steel Mine Props Might Help Local Industries

The current "Service Letter" of the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters contains a suggestion which might be useful to two of Pittsburgh's major industries and which certainly deserves wider circulation. It is that steel props be substituted for timbers in the mining of coal.

The foresters' interest in the matter lies in the fact that the use of wooden mine props imposes a heavy drain on our timber reserves. Pennsylvania is unable to supply the requirements of the coal operators, notwithstanding that they can utilize almost any kind of timber except aspen, poplar and gray birch. Much of this material must therefore be imported from other states.

Most persons have no conception of the quantity of posts or props that are used in mining. The Pittsburgh Coal Company uses on the average one timber for every six tons of coal taken out.

Now, in England, where there is a good deal of industrial stagnation, the steel companies have been trying to stimulate business by finding new uses for their products, and this has resulted in the manufacture of steel mine props.

The Bentley Mines in England have 12,000 steel mine props in use. They estimate the cost of these props, per ton of coal mined, at less than 1.2 cents, as compared with 1.8 cents (50 per cent greater) for wooden props. The Pittsburgh Coal Company spends from 3.5 to 4 cents, per ton of coal mined, for its mine timbers, while a study recently made of an anthracite mine in Pennsylvania revealed a cost for props of 39.6 cents per ton of coal produced.

The foresters' "Service Letter" quotes a technical journal as predicting that in the near future British mines, which now spend $28,000,000 a year for wooden posts, will generally use steel instead.

If the experiment is a success in England, it should also succeed in Pennsylvania. Its success would reduce the cost of coal mining and thereby help this stricken industry; it would create a large new market for steel, and it would help to solve the problem of forest conservation.

Salvation Army Appeal Merits Generous Answer

Beginning today and continuing until October 11, the Western Pennsylvania division of the Salvation Army will make its annual home service fund appeal.

There should be a more than ordinarily liberal response to the appeal this year. The demands on the Army's hospitality have been so exceptionally heavy in recent months that for the first time in its local history its funds have been exhausted.

Relief has been extended to 54,104 individuals and 10,821 families. Meals and lodgings have been provided for thousands of homeless and friendless men and women. Hundreds of mothers and children were given outings at the Army's fresh air camp. And, in addition, a number of institutions, such as the Women's Home and Maternity Hospital, and day nurseries, have been maintained. Who can estimate the value of these services, or calculate, how many persons have been saved from suffering and death?

The Salvation Army will need $112,000, besides the collections from its evangelistic meetings and the revenue from its institutions, to carry on its philanthropic work during the coming year. That its work will be done properly but not extravagantly, is assured by its past record and also by the fact that it has the guidance of an advisory board headed by Judge Joseph Buffington, of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, and composed of prominent Pittsburgh business and professional men.

Pittsburgh should donate the $112,000 in a jiffy.

SUN TELEGRAPH'S PLATFORM

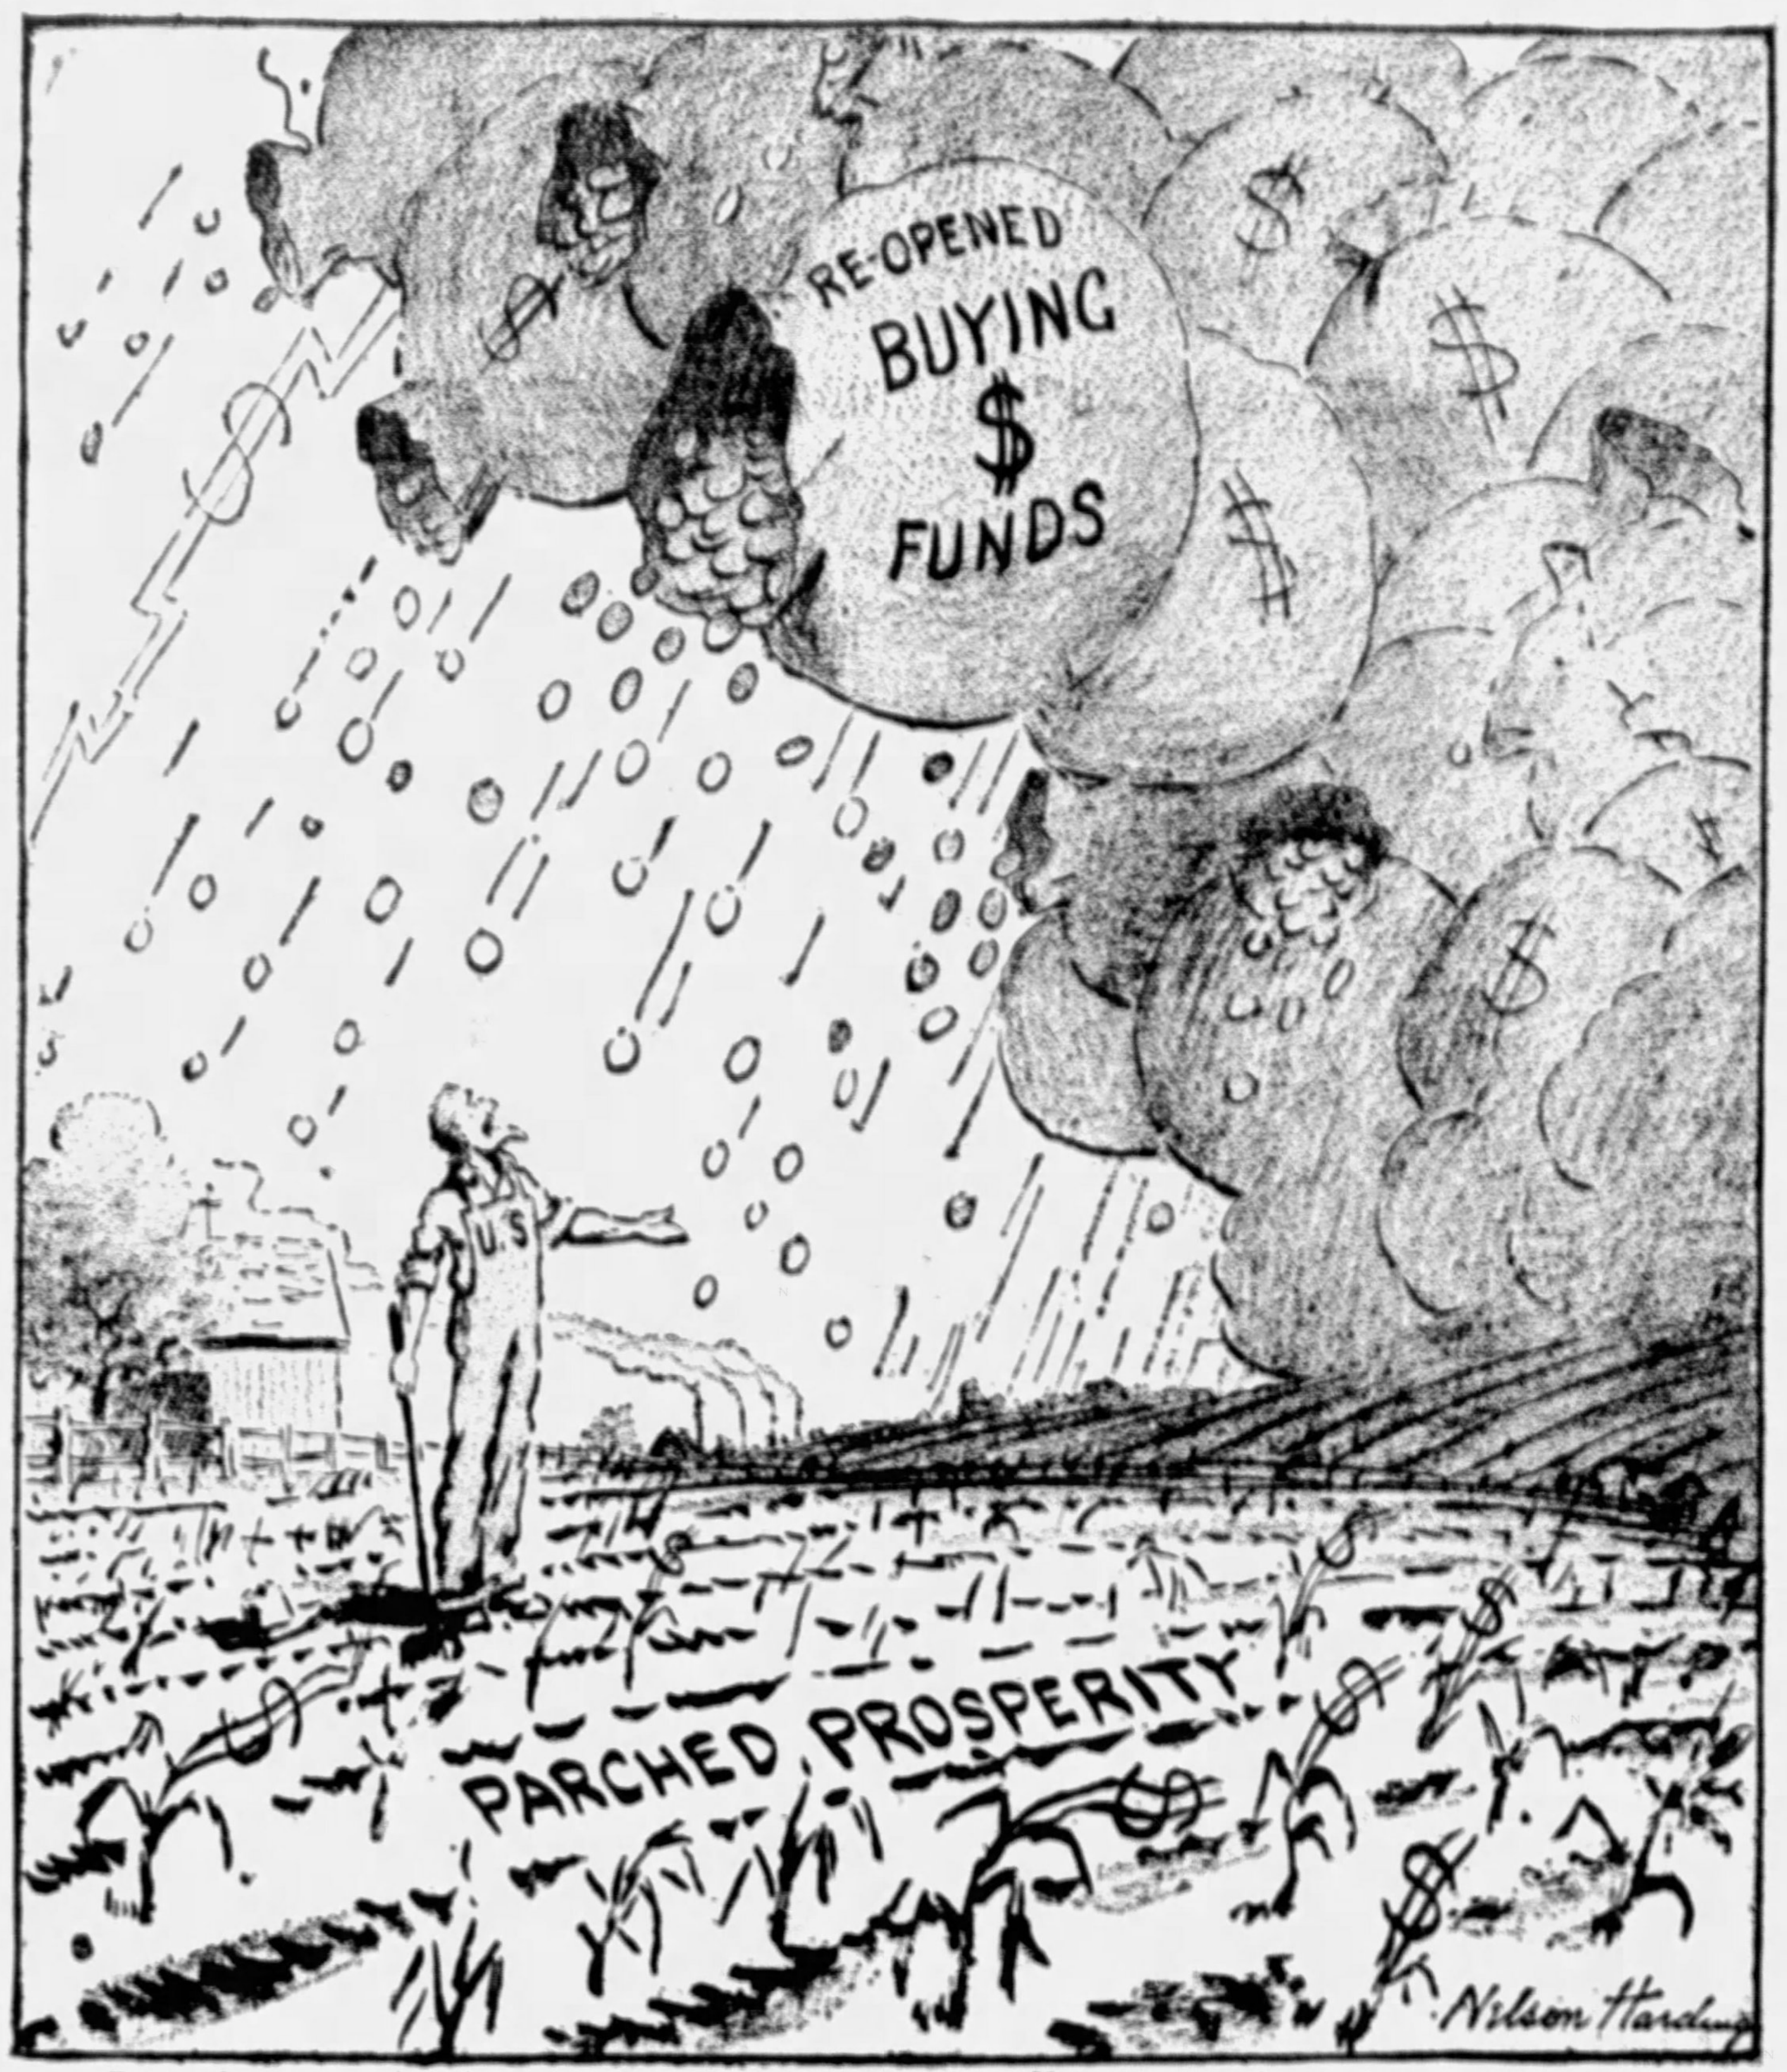
2—Rapid Transit.
3—Repeal or modification of "blue law."
4—Establishment of Pittsburgh metropolitan district.
5—Community Fund for charities.
6—Town Hall, seating at least 15,000.
7—Voting machines to insure honest elections.
8—Development of river transportation.
9—Development of air transportation.
10—Electrification of railroads.

Let It Rain ⁘ ⁘ ⁘

By Nelson Harding



Prosperity, now rather dry,
Will welcome rain clouds in the sky,
The clouds portrayed in this design
Would be particularly fine.

Yes, we need a heavy shower
Of that hoarded buying power,
"Business would bloom again,"
Says Uncle Sam, "if we had rain."

LOST WORLDS

By Archibald Henderson

Many a time my reader has looked up at the sky at night and seen a star shoot across the heavens in a long streak of light. There goes a shooting star, he exclaims. Sometimes they follow each other in rapid succession. The head of the meteor is the fireball; and sometimes it will split into three parts, each with colored edges, each leaving behind it a long trail of fire. Sometimes a great number of meteors will follow each other in rapid succession until sixty or seventy have passed.

Sometimes great swarms of shooting stars appear in the neighborhood of a comet. In 1872 and again in 1885 such dense swarms of meteorites appeared in a region whence Biela's Comet was expected. Scientists accordingly drew the inevitable conclusion that the comet had been divided not merely into two parts, but into thousands of fragments, which provided a truly magnificent spectacle. They came rushing out of the constellation of Andromeda, and hence were named Andromedids.

The presence of meteors is bound up with the question of the earth's atmosphere. Studies of the brightness of shooting stars indicate that the earth's atmosphere fifty miles above the surface is about the same temperature as the earth itself. Other questions which puzzled astronomers were: From what distances do these fireballs come, and from what regions of space? It has been established by Niessl in Vienna and Hoffmeister in Sonneburg that the fireballs or large meteors almost without exception come to us from regions far outside the solar system.

It is not difficult, from the reports of observations by amateurs, to determine the height at which a meteor explodes. Let us suppose that one observer sees a meteor explode immediately above him, or as we say, at the zenith. A second observer, some fifty miles to the south of the first, will report that he saw the meteor at an angle of forty-five degrees. It is easy to show, by drawing a little diagram, that the meteor must have burst about fifty miles in the air above the first observer.

Thomas, in his stimulating work, Heaven and Earth, has given simple directions for determining, roughly, the rate of speed at which a meteor moves. The observer determines the point where the meteor burst, as well as the point where it first became visible. We have to estimate how many seconds it took to cover the distance between these two points. Given these figures, the astronomer can quickly determine the meteor's velocity. Thus we might say: "The meteor passed from a point just under Vega." Or, we might use some such description as this: "The meteor appeared exactly in the west, and its point of extinction was due north; it moved horizontally half way between the horizon and the zenith." Or you might say that the meteor appeared so many inches above a church and ended above a certain tree. Much valuable information is thus gleaned by astronomers from the accurate observations of laymen.

⁘ LISTEN, WORLD ⁘

By Elsie Robinson

If you're really smart and you want to get the breaks in this country you'll arrange to be born a Belgian hare, or an onion or a cherry tree or even a chunk of coal—but never, never, a common American kid. For over articles of agriculture, over conditions of labor and commerce the federal government extends benevolent protection. But the youngsters, God help 'em, it leaves to the mercy of the individual states.

And the mercy of the individual states is a mighty chancey matter. Some state governments value education. Their schools are their pride. Others, in the grip of ignorant officials and greedy exploiters of child labor, ignore or actually fight efforts to advance education.

As a consequence we have areas in America—areas which embrace many states—of shameful illiteracy. Once the world referred with contempt to "darkest Africa." Now, behind our complacent back, other nations refer to darkest America, for our illiteracy has become a byword and scandal.

We have thousands, unnumbered thousands, of white children who can neither read, write nor "figger" because there is no law to compel them to go to school—and no school to go to. We exclaim with horror at the hoards of waif children in Russia, but we have armies of children in our own country who wander from one work camp to another, hardly seeing a book during the space of their childhood. And from this festering ignorance springs crime and degeneracy, shiftlessness and despair.

This condition doesn't "just happen." There is an obvious cause for it—an equally obvious cure. It exists because we have no centralized control over our children or their education . . . No Department of Education with a Secretary of Education in the President's cabinet. We have various, vague committees and bureaus which fumble around with feeble educational suggestions to the states, but we have no consolidated department back of our schools such as we have back of agriculture, commerce and labor.

For years such a department has been fought on the ground that it violates the state's "sovereign right" to regulate its own schools, which is guaranteed by the Constitution. But the state's sovereign right to regulate its own onions, long horns and work gangs is also guaranteed by the Constitution. Yet if a state is wrestling with peach blight, trying to export tubercular cattle or jam its workers, there's action at Washington, pronto and plenty.

Is a peach blight more costly than the blight of illiteracy? Are tubercular cattle more deadly than darkened minds? If a government can conserve its forests, why can't it conserve its children?

With the reopening of Congress, the Capper-Robison bill will come up again. This bill provides for a department of education with a Secretary of Education in the President's Cabinet . . . authorizes funds to enable the new department to conduct research and distribute the information thus obtained to the several states . . . establishes a departmental conference on education to be made up of representatives from each of the executive departments . . . creates a national council on education to consist of the chief school officers of the States and territories. Above all, it puts Uncle Sam's Big Stick of authority behind that most shamefully neglected of institutions—the Little Red Schoolhouse.

Sounds fine, doesn't it? And perhaps you think it will go through without a scrap? Don't fool yourself! Hundreds of stupid stick-in-the-muds, complacent fat-heads and greedy exploiters of youth will fight that bill to their vicious limit.

As they fought the Child Labor Bill which would have lifted our babies from slavery. As they fought the Sheppard-Towner act to protect motherhood. As they fight all progress and decency. If you don't want them to win in that fight, get busy!

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Every Day

Every day I cannot give
  Gauds and gifts to you,
Every day I can but live
  Faithful hours and true,
This the tribute I can bring
  As your portion, dear;
All my love and trust to sing
  In your listening ear.

Every day I can but tell
  Something of your worth,
And of how your laughter's spell
  Helps to gladden Earth;
Song and sunshine, these are kin
  To your gracious charm,
As they type the soul within,
  Song-sweet and sun-warm.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

New Campaign Speech

Looks like the Republicans will have to grab that old plank and do a little wood carving.

Former Senator Calder says he informed President Hoover that the G. O. P. was a panned oyster in New York state unless it repudiated the Eighteenth Amendment and started all over again.

Politicians are rushing to the aid of the party. All that you get now at a party is ade.

But Mr. Hoover will not choose up sides on the soption question. We don't even hear any gargling sounds from the White House spokesman.

There is no doubt that there is a pronounced reversal in public sediment. The boys are all swinging in for repeal and the result will be a different kind of campaign speech:

"Fellow citizens. We all know that population depends on the people. The man who says I am a sober, industrious gentleman told three consecutive lies with the same number of words.

"They passed the Eighteenth Amendment over my dead body. I'm always that way on election day. I would rather be the watch dog of the treasury than the water spaniel of prohibition.

"I am for beer enforcement. I am for light wines if they let me do the weighing. What this nation needs is more staggering in the right direction.

"Send me to the Senate and I will veto everything but bartender licenses. The man who says I drink wet and vote dry is a malcontent. When I drink I can't do anything.

"Folks, I was educated in the corner saloon. Until I was 30 I didn't know they put carpets on floors. I couldn't open a door unless it swung on hinges. I refused to attend the peace conference in the Hall of Mirrors at Versailles because Poincaire wouldn't soap the looking glasses.

"That's a record that nobody can stand on because it's more fun to fall down. Send me to Washington as your representative and it will take the biggest thirst in the city out of local competition.

"Look at my red nose, folks, for corroboration is indelible proof. I will protect America to my last breath. And I got a breath that lasts."

This kind of speech will solve the unemployment situation. For most of the boys on park benches are temperance lecturers who talked themselves out of jobs way back in 1920.

Isn't It So?

A woman's admiration for a man is inspired by his admiration for her.

How old you are depends upon how many and what kind of "times" you've had.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

II.—Do Races Become Senile?

When that limit is reached or neared various things may happen. Quite often specialized types continue to thrive without essential change. The fully specialized horses appeared in the pliocene (V.D.) and have remained with little change ever since.

H. G. Wells

The same is true for many other of the most specialized mammals, such as the whales. Crocodiles, the still more specialized tortoises and many families of flowering plants, have scarcely changed since the cretaceous (IV. C.); lobsters and many fish, including such very specialized types as skates and eagle rays, date back still earlier, and among the lamp shells, with their elaborate current-producing mechanism, some forms, as we have seen, have persisted from the earliest paleozoic (III A.).

In other cases a change of outer condition sets in and the specialized type, which was well adapted before, can no longer maintain itself and becomes extinct. Slow and gigantic herbivores that could thrive well enough when plant life was luxurious, are liable to die out if the climate grows drier and vegetation more sparse. So, too, die creatures who are tied to water for their reproduction.

And drought seems thus to have extinguished the giant amphibians of the trias (IV. A.). Forest dwellers must go if their home is all replaced by prairies. This appears to have happened to hypohippus, the side branch of the horse stock, which specialized its teeth for browsing on succulent forest vegetation.

As the miocene (V. C.) climate grew drier the forest shrank and it perished. Cold is an equally potent cause of extinction; the glacial period gives us abundant evidence of that.

But while some whole groups were then frozen out altogether, like the "tank armadillos" or glyptodonts, the giant sloths and the mastodon type of elephants, in other groups which appear to be equally specialized, like the rhinoceroses, camels or the true elephants, only some species became extinct, while others persisted—further proof that specialization in itself need not be the cause of extinction.

In perhaps the majority of cases, however, extinction is not due to so simple a cause. The specialized type is confronted with the competition or the attacks of new types which start from a higher level of organization or possess some special advantage.

And it is this competition which, often in conjunction with changed and less favorable conditions, brings about the old types' downfall. Some of the dinosaurs might well have survived the drought and the cold of the cretaceous (IV. C.) if they had not had to compete with the evolving mammals. Within the mammal stock itself the extinction of so many specialized groups in the first half of the tertiary (V. A and B), including such formidable creatures as the four-horned dinoceras and all its kin, was undoubtedly due to the rise of new mammalian types with better physical construction and, in particular, more elaborate brains.

And if we need another example we have only to think of the extinction of modern mammals which has been caused by the coming of man.

An example often invoked to support the idea both of orthogenesis and of racial old age, is that of the wonderful sabre-toothed cats which, first found early in the Oligocene (V. B.), became extinct only during the glacial epoch.

Their most striking character—to which they owe their popular name—is the elongation of their upper dog-teeth into a pair of exquisitely constructed and formidable daggers, almost as long as the whole jaw, thin blades of living ivory with fine saw-teeth on their cutting edges.

This construction is fully developed only in the latest evolved species types, such as Smilodon; in earlier forms the "sabres" are smaller, and the whole skull more like an ordinary cat's.

NEWYORKDAYBYDAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The lower East Side has emerged from the suspended life of the hottest summer in the memory of a living resident. For weeks the Ghetto was The City of Dreadful Night, its steaming asphalt an inferno. Almost its entire population drooped gasping on fire escapes.

Spindly children in loin cloths sat panting on curbs, too, awaiting the evening free spray from corner hydrants. Even elders joined in the drenching. Cool nights are here again and the East Side, like fever victims, forgets its bondage. The problems of winter confront them.

Penny drink stand proprietors reaped a harvest the past summer. So did the dinky carts dispensing hokey pokey and other iced yum-yums. After several visits on torrid days there is an unforgettable picture of fortitude and a fine consideration for fellow suffering.

Children on stoops fanned listless elders. Girl mothers walked up and down seeking a stirring of breeze for puling infants. From every window a protruding figure exchanged good natured banter with a perspiring leaner across the way. I heard more caterwauling around the Ritz barbershop after the October market dip.

On one after-midnight of an extremely sultry night I walked through Central Park with its ghostly array of spread newspapers and fitful sleepers. Police were on guard but not a case of petty thieving was reported. A cop stopped and removed his cap to fan a sleeping old lady.

The artificial lake suggested a stagnant pool acrawl with those gliding bugs. Boats were so thick they were moved about by being pushed away from each other with languid hand shoves. A few merely stood about waist deep in the water like so many weary sun-baked cattle.

Most newcomers to New York by train receive a first distinct impression of squalor approaching the city. For blocks they gaze into windows of cheerless tenements and fire-escapes criss-crossed with wet-wash. Suddenly the train dips into blackness and thunders into a brilliantly lighted marble terminal. The New York they first saw becomes a memory. They rarely see it again.

* * *

Sam Blythe revives the hilarious story of the first run of the crack Twentieth Century. A group of special writers were invited for the festive occasion with free food and copious free drink. One railroad editor whose career had hitherto been confined to inconsequential squibs under the caption "Railroad Notes" staggered off the train at Syracuse to write his story. He was found the next morning asleep on the floor by his typewriter. In the machine was a sheet of copy paper upon which he had written this much:

"Champagne flowed in great numbers——"

A novelist describes the reputed break between a very uptown motion picture couple—you know the pair they buzz so much about—as due to the husband being "smothered in an atmosphere of perfection."

* * *

The leather belt manufacturers will be a-writing me—and I'll not be a-answering them—but it must be broadcast that the reputed best dressed man in America wears suspenders all the time. He is reputed to have 28 pairs, one for each of his suits.

* * *

English tailors insist pantaloons lack a proper hang without what they call braces. Jack Buchanon is among the style tycoons addicted to suspenders. As are Mayor Walker, Roy Howard, Ray Long, Rudy Vallee, Floyd Gibbons, Sailing Baruch and Gene Tunney. Heywood Broun is reputed to spurn both belt and galuses. He has trained himself at auspicious moments to give his trousers a clutch and a hoist. And he never misses.

* * *

After several weeks of prowling in an ice box at midnight I feel a gush of poetizing coming on. Almost any day I expect to jitter "An Ode to a Cold Potato." And when I do I'll make it hum.

Further prowling about the manor brings the discovery that on a parapet near a dining room window is a tiny patch of earth which I have dubbed "My Garden." It isn't much, but you cannot tell what might happen if I could only find a seed to fit into it.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Are you a lukewarm friend?

You profess friendship for a certain person, but when you are with a crowd that makes derogatory remarks about him, you do nothing to refute false statements.

You don't want to antagonize those who have made untrue assertions.

So by keeping still you prove yourself disloyal.

You don't call it being false to a friend, but you don't feel called upon to make possible enemies so that he may keep his good name with a certain group.

If you, a known friend, do not act as his defender, those who hear him defamed are more likely to believe the wrong stories against him.

You want stanch friends yourself, but you don't stand by in the way you would like others to do in your behalf, do you?

You expect much and give little where any risk is involved.

You don't deserve good, true friends if you have never proved at the sacrifice of personal popularity that you can uphold a friend when you think he has been unjustly accused.

Friendship makes its demands. Do you meet them?

Isn't it true that you never risk your own popularity in defense of a friend?
